MILLS ASSAILS HOUSE MEASURE 'TAX ON INCOMES

Defends Capitalism Before Senators.

Deeper in the Red

Washington, D. C., April 6.—[Special.]—From 1917 until the end of the present fiscal year the government will have spent about $23,517,000,000 more than it collected from taxes and other ordinary sources of revenue. The figure includes the deficit of $2,500,000,000 anticipated on June 30.

The excess of outlay over revenue was greatest in the war years. In 1917 the deficit was $961,717,300. In 1918 the excess of expenditures was $9,611,482,000, and in 1919 came the record excess of $14,278,700,000. Last year's deficit was about $970,000,000.

The combined deficits of 1931 and 1932 will be about $3,370,000,000 compared to the $2,614,388,000 of the entire civil war.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 5.—[Special.]—An eulogy of the American system of capitalism and an arraignment of the use of the federal taxing power to build up a Socialistic system of economics in the United States were dramatically and vehemently proclaimed today by the secretary of the treasury, Ogden L. Mills.

OGDEN L. MILLS.

His audience was the senate finance committee. His text was the new revenue bill, with its taxes designed to raise more than a billion dollars of additional revenue. His thesis was found in the series of taxes laid upon the wealthy and the corporations, in which the house, during its recent consideration of the bill, went radical and knocked out the proposed sales tax.

It was such a defense of the capitalistic system in the United States as an august senate committee room has seldom heard before. It was such an indictment of the employment of the taxing power to redistribute the national wealth as the congressional radicals have not been made to listen in many months.

Rather Go All the Way.

Better go the whole road, said Secretary Mills, than achieve Socialism by indirection. Rather than see mobilized capital dissipated by legislation, its centralized force scattered and shattered like that of a regiment split into single, discordant units, the secretary asserted, he would prefer to see a semi-Socialistic state openly achieved, in which capital might still be concentrated in semi-public corporations granting limited returns to the investors.

He would go to that length, Mr Mills declared, rather than "sabotage existing industries" through such taxes as he said were contained in the revenue bill as it came from the house.

His chief and original purpose in coming before the finance committee was to argue that these taxes be stricken out and their places filled by others, taken from the treasury program as first proposed to the house ways and means committee.

He Sums Up Objections.

His objections to the bill as it now stands were summed up in the following paragraph taken from his formal statement:

"I believe that the corporation income tax rate is too high; that there is no justification for compelling corporations to pay for the privilege of filing income tax returns in accordance with their usual method of doing business and keeping their books; that the concealed double taxation involved in discontinuing the exemption of dividends from normal tax is unsound, resulting, as it does, in discrimination against the corporate form of doing business, with particular hardship to the smaller corporation as compared with a partnership; that completely doing away with the net loss provision is hard to justify in times like these; that the stock transfer tax is excessive under existing conditions, and that the estate tax rates are too high."

Against Bond Transfer Tax.

Later, Secretary Mills indicated that the treasury was against the proposed stamp tax on bond transfers

MASSIE JURY WILL BE ABOUT HALF CHINESE

Expect to Complete Panel This Week.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

HONOLULU, April 6.—A jury about equally divided between whites and Chinese, with a few other races thrown in, making a typical Hawaiian island mixture, was indicated by developments in the Fortescue-Massie murder trial today.

MRS. GRANVILLE B. FORTESCUE.

This is nothing to cause comment here, but it is a unique experience for the mainland lawyers who are defending Mrs. Granville B. Fortescue and Lieut. Thomas H. Massie, U. S. N., and two enlisted men, Albert O. Jones and E. J. Lord, for the killing on Jan. 8 of Joseph Kahahawai, one of the defendants charged with the rape of Mrs. Thalia Massie, the naval officer's wife.

Mrs. Fortescue Aloof.

Mrs. Fortescue seldom raised her eyes to the jury box as brown, black, and white were called for examination for the right to sit in judgment on her liberty.

With supreme disregard of the staring groups in the corridor, she held a conference with Clarence Darrow of Chicago, leading the defense, at a table in the open foyer of the courthouse just before the opening of court. She had changed her wine colored attire for a print frock and a new hat, but it seemed to bring her no happiness.

Frequently she sighed under the nervous strain of the slow process of jury selection led by Darrow and the prosecutor, John C. Kelley.

The progress was marked today by the exercise of five more peremptory challenges by each side, leaving sixteen each still available to the defense and prosecution.

Jury to Be Complete Soon.

At this rate the jury should be completed this week. Kelley threw out three white citizens, one Portuguese and a Japanese today, while the defense got rid of three Chinese, one white old timer of the islands and one Chinese-Hawaiian.

One of the prominent visitors to court today was Mrs. Ann Kluegel, head of the good government organization, a scourge to local politicians and a source of worry to the business elements since Honolulu's troubles have brought it to world attention.

She is determined, fearless in criticism and convinced that this present government is unable to function.

Summon 25 More Jurors.

The third day began with the summoning of 25 more venitremen, making 100 called altogether so far in the jury sitting process. The prosecution accepted a young Portuguese laborer. Darrow brought out that he had played football with Ben Ahakuelo, one of the Ala Moana rape defendants. The Portuguese still insisted he has no opinion in this case.

Darrow is in deep waters in dealing with these island mentalities. He addresses them in a simple, fatherly manner but is frequently at a loss to penetrate the smiling elusiveness before him.

The prosecutor exercised a peremptory challenge against Kenneth Thomas Bankstone, a white clerk of the Hawaiian Electric company, thus continuing the tactics of yesterday. The jury began to take on a Chinese complexion, young products of high school and college.

Darrow Pleased With Chinese.

Darrow seemed pleased with Kam Tai-lee particularly. This young man is a graduate of the University of Hawaii and was formerly the editor of the English section of a Chinese newspaper here. He ran a contest in college for the most beautiful Chinese girl.

James K. Williams, a Hawaiian mechanic and a friend of Kahahawai for eight years, faced Mrs. Fortescue and swore he would give her a fair trial, but he was excused by agreement.

Two substantial looking white business executives were excused because they frankly expressed fixed opinions. Business relations with the United States navy entered into the questioning. This amounts to many millions yearly and is expected to creep into

Cicero to Keep 175 Saloons; Still Be Good

President Elect Joseph G. Cerny of Cicero, who will assume office on April 18, conferred yesterday with Mayor Cermak concerning plans for the redemption of Cicero's reputation in the eyes of the country. Every occupant of an appointive office under the old régime is due to go, it was stated.

RICHEY V. GRAHAM

"I'm no reformer," said Cerny. "Cicero people want beer. There are 175 places selling beer in the town. We will not bother them so long as they handle themselves properly. But hoodlumism will be driven from the town. Cicero people are good, law-abiding citizens and we want the world to know it."

Graham New Political Boss.

State Senator Richey V. Graham, son-in-law of Mayor Cermak, becomes the new political boss in Cicero as a result of the election, it was revealed. Cerny won by a majority of 5,399 votes over his Republican opponent, Joseph Z. Klenha, and the entire Democratic ticket was also swept into office.

"The greatest cleanup in the history of the Chicago district is due to take place," said Graham. "From now on Cicero will be clean and respectable and free of the taint of Caponeism. Gangs will be cleaned out and economy in government administration will be the watchword."

Mayor Cermak said he was proud that the presence of Chicago police in Cicero while the vote was being cast on Tuesday had kept the election orderly.

"End of Council Secrecy."

The aldermanic victories in Evanston of Edwin B. Jourdain Jr., 31 year old colored Harvard graduate, and Miss Ada Sandidge, opponent of the Evanston city administration, were hailed as the end of secrecy in Evanston city council meetings by Prof. A. R. Hatton, head of Northwestern university's political science department.

"Evanston can now really have good government, free from an alliance with Small or Crowe groups," he said.

The Human Race

Council Bluffs, Ia., April 6.—[Special.]—Darrel McAtee, 30, today established a new state record in an eating marathon when he consumed fifteen large hamburger sandwiches, five bottles of pop and several glasses of water in four hours. The former record was thirteen sandwiches established at Marshalltown.

Mishawaka, Ind., April 6.—[Special.]—Former Patrolman Joseph Weber, although 66 years old, is cutting his third set of teeth. They have made their appearance under his false teeth plate.

MR. MAY SPENDS AN EVENING WITH 4 (HIC!) BANDITS

Jack May, 35 years old, 6350 South Artesian avenue, stopped his car for a traffic light on Ashland avenue at 67th street last night. Four men, unsteady on their feet, crowded about his car.

"This is a stickup," announced one of them. All four drew pistols. One went through Mr. May's pockets, but found only 40 cents. Then they made him drive them to 86th place and Vincennes avenue.

Leaving one man to guard Mr. May, the other three moved to one side and held a bandit court martial. The charge was "having too little money." Now and then they drank from a flask. Finally they decided upon a fitting punishment.

'Off with your clothes," commanded the leader. Mr. May protested, but to no avail, and the drunken bandits departed in Mr. May's automobile, with his clothes, leaving him without even a budding bush for shelter.

Mr. May besought aid at a home at 852 West 86th street. There a kindly Samaritan tossed out a robe and shoes. Eventually he reached home in the automobile of Sergt. John Fogarty of the Englewood station.

Woman Slays Love Rival on the Field of Honor

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WARSAW, April 6.—The last stronghold of man—the field of honor—was lost to the gentler sex today when Michalina Ozgow, 24, fought a duel with Janina Burakowska, 22, whom she suspected of too friendly relations with her husband. Armed with army revolvers, the two women faced each other, standing ten yards apart. At the signal to fire the two revolvers spat and Miss Burakowska fell dead.

Verdict Says He's Guilty; "Won't Be a Party to It"

Los Angeles, Cal., April 6.—(AP)—Frederick Grant White, former churchman of Venice, Cal., and former convict in Illinois and California, was angered today when a federal jury convicted him of five counts of violating the narcotic laws. "It's an outrage," White shouted. "It's a terrible verdict. I won't be a party to it."

War Vets Quell New Rioting in Newfoundland

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., April 6.—New rioting broke out here tonight when a mob, using a battering ram, tried to break into the government's main liquor depot. World war veterans and police, about 600 strong, attacked and dispersed the crowd.

Meanwhile, Prime Minister Sir Richard Squires emitted no indication of what course his government will take to fulfill promises to the mob, which yesterday seized and beat him after running riot through the government buildings, that he would resign.

Squires Back at Office.

The premier was back in his office today. He suffered only minor injuries as a result of the rough handling he received from the mob yesterday. His clothes were badly torn, however, while he struggled to get through the crowd. Sir Richard made no announcement of his intentions, but it is rumored that the government will resign within the next 48 hours.

Peter Cashin, former minister of finance, who resigned two months ago, voiced an opinion that the Squires cabinet would resign, a new administration formed and a general election called in May. Sir William Coaker, minister without portfolio, expressed opposition sentiment by proposing a new government with F. C. Alderdice, opposition leader, at the head. Alderdice said that he had not been approached.

Ask Governor to Intervene.

Cashin and Coaker yesterday went to Sir John Middleton, governor general for the crown, and asked him to require the premier's resignation.

Today war veterans helped municipal police to maintain order and guard against a reassembling of the mob of 10,000 that ran wild yesterday. Citizens, led by a band and with clergymen and business men among them, gathered at the legislative buildings to demand an investigation of the minutes of the executive council, which Squires was accused of falsifying.

Members of the assembly declined to see a deputation at once. The mob, becoming angry and restless, broke over the protests of leaders, mauled helpless policemen and tore through the buildings, leaving damage in their wake.

Premier Is Beaten Up.

Prime Minister Squires was captured by the mob, which had besieged him in a room for several hours. He was trampled and threatened with hanging. His captors also threatened to throw him into the harbor. Three ministers saved him from the crowd and secreted him for the moment in a nearby police station.

The mob had gone to the legislative buildings to demand investigation of the council minutes, but there were many unemployed in the crowd, whose tempers were high over the recent reduction in the dole allowance. The new allowance was to be $1.60 per person a month on the advice of R. J. Magor, an expert in charge of relief, who explained that the reduction was necessary because of the serious condition of New Foundland's finances. Objectors maintained that the reduced ration was insufficient to sustain life.

Premier Under Fire.

The investigation demanded yesterday was based on charges by Cashin that Prime Minister Squires had falsified the minutes of the executive council to manipulate public funds. He also charged Walter Skanes, a member of the assembly, and Dr. Alexander Campbell, member of the cabinet without portfolio, with irregularities in handling funds under their control.

Liquor stores were looted during the turmoil last night, but veterans checked that and gave protection to other establishments. The colonial building suffered the worst damage. The mob smashed windows, broke down doors and tossed movable objects around. Government documents and papers were strewn around. Many persons suffered minor injuries by hurled missles.

CURTIS MAKES 'CONTACT' WITH ENVOY OF GANG

Links 4-Day Trip and Colonel's Flights.

COL. CHARLES A. LINDBERGH. [A. P. Photo.]

He revealed that at some time in the four days that he was away he met Col. Lindbergh, thus for the first time suggesting a connection between his own mysterious actions and the two recent unexplained flights of the baby's father to islands off the Massachusetts coast.

Only a few meager facts about the progress of negotiations for the child's return to its parents were disclosed by Mr. Curtis and these were contained in a terse statement he issued after an hour's conference with the Rev. H. Dobson Peacock and Rear Admiral Guy H. Burrage, the two Norfolk citizens associated with him as intermediaries.

Saw Kidnapers Agent.

The statement follows:

"I made contact with the person I went to see regarding the kidnaped son of Col. Lindbergh and was informed that the child is well. I saw Col. Lindbergh in person and advised him of the information I had obtained. He was greatly relieved and thanked me for my efforts. That is all I can say at this time."

The return of the Norfolk shipbuilder and his somewhat cryptic announcement came as a climax to a day of rumors that the baby, who was stolen from his nursery on the night of March 1, was about to be or had been restored to his anxious parents at their home on Sourland mountain, near Hopewell, N. J.

Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, superintendent of the New Jersey police, finally issued a flat denial that the child was home and pledged his word that when the event occurred the news would be given out through the liaison office in the state house at Trenton. Some professed to see significance in the fact that Col. Schwarzkopf used the word "when" rather than "if" in making his promise.

Governor More Hopeful.

So persistent were the rumors that Gov. A. Harry Moore summoned Col. Schwarzkopf before him at Trenton and announced afterward that the reports that the lost baby was home with its parents was "baseless." The governor, discussing the kidnaping for the first time in weeks, said:

"Col. Schwarzkopf conferred with me and reported in detail on the general situation, including police activities and progress. He told me the situation remains about the same as it has been for several days.

"While it is my sincere hope that the baby is alive and well and that it will be returned, I have no definite knowledge to indicate that either hope will be borne out."

In his nightly statement Col. Schwarzkopf declared there was no significance in the fact that lights have been burning in the nursery of the Lindbergh home for the last few nights and said there was no reason to believe that the "baby will be returned tonight either to his parents' home in Hopewell or to the Morrow home in Englewood."

Denies Maniac Is Kidnaper.

Answering a question, he said the police have found no evidence to indicate that the kidnaping was done "by a demented person."

"Three naval airplanes flew over the Lindbergh home today, but none of them dropped a package as reported," he said. "They merely dipped in salute and continued on their way."

There were other indications that whatever justification there might be for the widespread belief that the 36 day search for the 21 month old Charles Augustus Jr. is drawing to a close still lay in private negotiations rather than police activity.

The police of Newark, who have been holding Henry "Red" Johnson, the sailor suitor of Betty Gow, the lost baby's nursemaid, since a few days after the kidnaping, announced that they would turn him over to immigration officials on Monday, thus indicating that they had definitely abandoned any hope that he might aid them to a solution of the crime.

Cables from England hinted also that Maj. Charles H. Schoeffel's search for evidence on that side of the Atlantic was likely to prove as unproductive of results as the investigation here and it was suggested that if he went to Glasgow to see Miss Gow's mother, Mrs. John Taylor, it would be in the nature of a courtesy call rather than a quest for information.

From that section of Massachusetts, whose residents have been roused to a high state of excitement by Col. Lindbergh's two airplane visits and the reported strange movements of vessels in neighboring waters, there came a story of a futile hunt by police for a woman and a man who were reported to have come ashore from a small boat at Waquoit, trundling a baby carriage.

The incident, reported by two fishermen, who said the couple disappeared on a lonely road near South Mashpee.

Link Flights to Curtis.

It was revealed today that Col. Lindbergh and his three companions had dinner Sunday night at the Long Island Aviation Country club at Hicksville, where the borrowed amphibian used for the flight was left. The party stayed at the club about three hours and drove away in Col. Lindbergh's automobile. He arrived at his Sourland mountain estate about midnight, starting off on another flight to the vicinity of Martha's Vineyard the next day with Col. Henry Breckinridge, his attorney.

The disclosure that Sunday's flight ended at Hicksville was regarded as significant in view of the fact that Mrs. Curtis, the Norfolk shipbuilder's wife who said she saw her husband Sunday, was reported to have spent the week-end with relatives at Babylon, L. I., which is not far from Hicksville. If Mr. Curtis were a member of the flying party, it might indicate that in accordance with instructions from the kidnapers' go-between, he had undertaken to direct Col. Lindbergh to the yacht for which he was searching.

POLICEMAN ON HOLIDAY IS SHOT IN LAKE COUNTY

James Fiklik, 40 years old, a policeman assigned to the Marquette district, was shot below the heart and perhaps fatally wounded last night during an altercation at the Ingleside hotel in the village of Ingleside, one and a half miles east of Fox Lake in Lake county, where he had gone for a holiday.

Deputy sheriffs arrested his assailant, Steve Brodie, 49 years old, caretaker of a cottage near the hotel. Brodie pleaded self-defense, asserting that when he had tried to patch up a quarrel between the hotel caretaker, Walter Rumpola, and Rumpola's helper, the policeman began to abuse him, calling him names and jarring loose two of his teeth with blows.

Brodie fired with a pistol which he said he had taken from a shelf in the hotel early in the afternoon lest Rumpola or his assistant use it in the quarrel. Brodie was locked up in the county jail at Waukegan. Policeman Kiklik was taken to the St. Therese hospital in Waukegan. Fiklik lives at 2800 South Spaulding avenue. He is married and the father of one child. He has been on the police force ten years.

Milk Dealers and Drivers Meet Again on Wage Pact

Another meeting was held yesterday between committees of the milk dealers of Chicago and the Chicago Milk Wagon Drivers' union to discuss a revised renewal of the wage contract which expires April 30. The meeting was held in the Hotel La Salle. Dr. Fred D. Walmsley of the Borden Farm Products company, a spokesman for the dealers, said that the main theme was the general condition of the industry rather than the wage scale, which will come up for specific action later. Robert Fitchie, president of the drivers' union, represented the local.

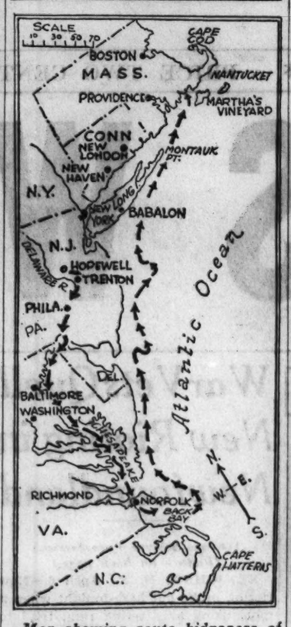
Woman with Shotgun Robs Woman in Her Apartment

A woman, armed with a shotgun, and a male accomplice held up Mrs. Anna Kerman yesterday in her apartment at 4248 West Congress street. They took $80, a pair of diamond earrings, a fur coat, and a violin valued at $500. Mrs. Kerman's mother, Mrs. Sam Levinsky, 80 years old, lay bedridden in an adjoining room while the robbery was in progress.

4 Year Old Boy Saves Baby Brother from Fire

Anderson, Ind., April 6.—[Special.]—Richard Eads, 2, suffered severe burns today on one leg, but his life was saved by his older brother, Jack, 4. Jack tore off his brother's burning garments after they had been ignited by children playing with a match.

Kidnapers' Route?



Map showing route kidnapers of Lindbergh baby may have taken from Hopewell down inland waterway to Norfolk and then north to Martha's Vineyard and Buzzard's bay. Babylon, L. I., where John H. Curtis may have contacted kidnapers, is also shown.

ANCIENT MAYANS LINKED TO ASIA, EXPERT ASSERTS

[Copyright: 1932: By the Associated Press.]

BOGOTA, Colombia, April 6.—Languages of the ancient Mayan Indians may be linked with the tongues of Asia if proof follows the theory of Dr. Herman Walde-Waldegg of the Colombian National library. Studying hieroglyphics of the Mixtecs and Toltecs, cousins of the Mayans, he believes they used actual syllables instead of pure picture writing.

If the theory is borne out, the dragon of China and the feathered snake of the Mayans will be the key to the kinship. Dr. Walde found the feathered snake appearing frequently in the Borgian codex, a Mixtec document found in the 17th century. In the Colombian library he found four dictionaries of Indian languages, compiled by ancient Catholic missionaries.

Noting the frequency of the feathered snake, its similarity to the dragon led him to try Sanscrit, Chinese and Japanese. The snake, like the dragon, he found represents a union between heaven and earth, and to the Mayans it was the creator god. From the dictionaries he took the name of the god and other key syllables and applied them to the Borgian codex. He found recurring syllables and translated the first few lines. He is certain that the Mixtec codex will be translated and will supply the basis for deciphering Mayan hieroglyphics.

Clarence Caesar, assault with a deadly weapon, sentenced to 1 year in the Bridewell by Judge Phillip L. Sullivan.

Alfred Volkman, murder, sentenced to life in the penitentiary by Judge George Fred Rush.

A true bill charging Oswald Obeldobel, former village clerk and collector of Riverdale, with the embezzlement of $37,000 from special assessment tax funds, was reported to have been voted by the grand jury yesterday. Obeldobel is 50 years old.

According to the report, Assistant State's Attorneys Homer Dodge and Edwin J. Spiro went before the grand jury with evidence that Obeldobel had retained a large part of the taxes he collected in his office. The period of the alleged defalcation extended from 1927 to 1931. Auditors started to investigate his accounts secretly in 1931 at the order of W. J. Clausen, village president.

Orders All Glencoe Dogs Vaccinated Against Rabies

All dogs in Glencoe must be vaccinated against rabies, Police Chief Jacob Rudolph said yesterday, after a conference with Dr. Dana A. Palmer of the state department of agriculture. Chief Rudolph told Dr. Palmer that one dog went mad several days ago, and bit three other dogs. All three developed rabies, and were killed with the first dog.

JUDGE O'CONNOR WILL PRESIDE AT BAIN BANK TRIAL

Conspiracy Case to Open on May 16.

Judge John M. O'Connor of the Appellate court will preside at the trial of the Bain banks' conspiracy case to begin on May 16. The announcement was made yesterday by Chief Justice Harry Fisher as he set the date of trial.

The defense insisted on the selection of Judge O'Connor under threat of demanding a change of venue from Cook county. Assistant State's Attorneys Edwin J. Raber and Harold M. Keele agreed to present their case before the judge.

Considered Venue Plea.

Attorneys Francis X. Busch and Grover Niemeyer, representing the defendants, were prepared to seek a change of venue on declarations that a fair trial could not be had here because of public prejudice. The defendants are John Bain, head of the chain of twelve Bain banks; his sons, John H. and Robert A. Bain; his physician, Dr. Walter Buhlig; his son-in-law, W. Merle Fisher, and Frank Mulholland, director of one of the banks. None of the defendants appeared in court.

Judge O'Connor, who has served in the Appellate court since 1915, consented to hear the case. During his service the judge has left the bench of the higher court four times to preside over trials at the request of state and defense attorneys. The last was when he heard the election conspiracy case of the henchmen of Morris Eller, boss of the 20th ward.

Save Time and Money.

"Hearing of the case by Judge O'Connor will save time and expense," Chief Justice Fisher said. "If a change of venue had been asked, I would have been constrained to grant it because of prejudice against bankers. Certain politicians, by statements from platforms and over radio, have been discrediting bankers to aid their campaign, which would tend to make it difficult for bankers to secure a fair trial whether they are innocent or guilty."

Melvin B. Ericson, receiver for the Waukegan National bank, announced that a 20 per cent dividend will be paid within two weeks. Approximately $500,000 is to be paid 8,000 depositors. The bank closed last June.

Still Plan New Bank.

The payment will not interfere with the organization of a new bank in Waukegan, the Citizens' Trust and Savings bank, with a portion of the assets of the national bank and all of the assets of the closed Waukegan State bank. He is also negotiating a loan from the Reconstruction Finance corporation, through which he hopes to pay another dividend of 35 per cent.

Jacob Logan Fox, attorney for the receiver of the Northtown State bank, said a second dividend to depositors may be paid shortly. The bank paid a 10 per cent dividend last October and now has $35,000 in cash on hand.

EXPECTING HEIR

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BRUSSELS, April 6.—An heir to the nonexistent throne of France and possibly to the equally mythical imperial crown of Brazil will be born here only a few weeks after the 23 year old Count Henri de Paris and his 21 year old bride, Isabella d'Orleans celebrate their first wedding anniversary next Friday. Count Henri, hope of the French royalists, is the only son of the French pretender to the throne, the Duc de Guise.

There will be keen disappointment in the home of the French "king," Jean, and of "Crown Prince" Henri if the couple's baby happens to be a girl. Women cannot reign over France.

Henri and Isabella were married April 8, 1931, at Palermo in the most gorgeous weddin. the Italian town has seen since the Renaissance, with practically all the European royalty and still more ex-royalty represented.

Isabella's parents, the Prince and Princess Braganza, have arrived here for the event and the tranquil manoir is being visited daily by delegations of French royalists presenting anticipatory congratulations.

OUSTS RECEIVER FOR FLAT AFTER FINDING FRAUD

Judge Discovers Accounts Were Padded.

Circuit Judge Joseph Burke yesterday held Milton L. Schwartz, a real estate broker and the receiver for a 30 flat building at 3424 Elaine place, in contempt of court. The action was taken when the judge found Schwartz guilty of padding his accounts and defrauding the estate of sums which may total several thousand dollars.

The court ordered Schwartz to resign immediately and to file his final accounts for approval within a ten day period. He was granted until Monday morning to answer the contempt charges and was directed to appear before Master in Chancery Roswell B. Mason to present testimony on several alleged frauds on which the court refused to rule until additional evidence is obtained.

Schwartz was brought into court upon a contempt petition presented by Milton S. Yondorf and Attorney David L. Golden, who represent the bondholders of the property. The building will be deeded to the bondholders on April 30, the foreclosure proceedings having been completed on Jan. 2, 1931, before Judge Burke.

After an extended hearing on the contempt citation Judge Burke found that ten transactions, mostly in the form of rebates given to the receiver on purchases, were fraudulent. All of these, according to his findings, had been entered into by Schwartz and his cousin, Martin Schwart, who was a tenant in the apartment building.

Martin Schwartz was not included in the order because the proceedings were in the civil branch of the court and he is not within the jurisdiction of Judge Burke.

POSTER OF CAMPAIGN BILLS FACES COURT IN CERMAK DRIVE

Charles Skalic, 2218 North Halsted street, was arraigned yesterday before Municipal Judge Justin F. McCarthy, charged with violation of the ordinance prohibiting the pasting of campaign posters on polls or walls. The case was continued to April 15 after Judge McCarthy had warned him not to repeat the offense. Skalic was puting up posters for State Senator Harold L. Ward, Democrat, candidate for renomination in the 31st district. His was the first arrest under Mayor Cermak's order to prevent the defacing of streets with campaign material.

BRITONS SPEND $90,000,000 LESS IN '31 ON LIQUOR

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, April 6.—The British people spent about £18,000,000 [90 million dollars at par[less on liquor last year than in 1930, it was announced tonight.

Figures prepared by the United Kingdom alliance show the total expenditure dropped from £227,500,000 [$1,387,500,000] in 1930 to £259,400,000 [$1,297,000,000] last year. At present it represents an annual outlay of about £5 15s 6d [about $26] for every man, woman and child in the country.

The lessened expenditure cannot be explained by lower prices, since intoxicants are one of the few commodities the price of which has remained high. Consumption of beer dropped by 100 million gallons in a year, although in this case there is a partial explanation in the additional penny a pint tax imposed last September.

Mussolini Visits Site of $650,000 Health Institute

ROME, April 6.—(AP)—Premier Mussolini today inspected the preliminary work on the new public health institute being built by the Rockefeller Foundation at a cost of $650,000. The building will occupy two square blocks and will be maintained by the Italian government.

14 PLACES SHUT, 21 SEIZED IN NEW RAIDS BY DRYS

Continuing their raids on small speakeasies and saloons prohibition agents under Deputy Administrator Al Aman late yesterday closed fourteen places in and near the loop, confiscated quantities of beer, moonshine, gin, whisky, and cordials, and took in custody 21 prisoners, including a woman.

Among the addresses visited were 72 West Randolph street, 180 West Adams street, 405 South Wabash avenue, 337 South Wabash avenue, 226 South Wabash avenue, 569 West Madison street, 1010 West Madison street, 221 South Halsted street, 627 West Madison street, 917 West Madison street, 417 South Halsted street, 629 West Madison street, and 23 East Ohio street. In each case the agents had a search warrant from United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker.

Twenty-nine prisoners arrested in raids on Tuesday were arraigned before Commissioner Walker and held in bonds ranging from $1,000 to $21,000. Among those held was Mrs. Edith Long, 3343 North Halsted street, in whose flat the agents claimed to have found three barrels of beer and some bottled gin and whisky.

CHICAGO 10 TO 1 FOR DRY REPEAL IN DIGEST POLL

How Chicago regards the prohibition question was revealed yesterday. According to the Literary Digest's annual poll, Chicago citizens stand almost ten to one in favor of repeal of the eighteenth amendment. An announcement by the Literary Digest showed that 109,773 persons in this city voted for the repeal of the amendment and only 11,563 favored its continuance. The returns are still incomplete.

AUSTRALIAN LAW FOR GARNISHEE OF STATE UPHELD

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SYDNEY, Australia, April 6.—The high court today upheld as valid the federal government's garnishee act to collect taxes due New South Wales until the state's total default of £2,000,000 [about $7,500,000 at current exchange rates] on its overseas debts, which are guaranteed by the commonwealth, is satisfied.

Several weeks ago the federal government under Prime Minister J. A. Lyons agreed to pay the state's defaulted interest on bonds to English and American holders. To secure the agreement parliament passed the garnishee act. The act was upheld today by a vote of 4 to 2.

It is anticipated that Premier John T. Lang's Labor government in New South Wales will offer resistance to the commonwealth's action, for without revenue the state will be in a predicament. The New South Wales' default occurred when interest payments were passed on Feb. 1 and April 1.

Part of 3 Yar Plan.

The federal government's dealings with New South Wales is part of the three year plan to balance federal and state budgets, a plan now in its second year. The New South Wales default became a technical obligation of the commonwealth under the loan council agreement of June, 1927. Success of the federal balancing plan depends in a large measure on the support of New South Wales, for the state owes approximately 22 per cent of the total commonwealth debt.

If the plan is to succeed, the New South Wales Labor government under Lang, which has become very radical, must swing into line with other state governments by reducing government expenditures to meet the general 20 per cent reduction agreed upon by all state members of the fedral loan council. The present unwillingness of the Lang government is the stumbling block of the whole rehabilitation plan.

Lang Has 2 More Years.

The present Lang Labor government has two more years in office, although there is some popular appeal today for the king's governor, Sir Philip Game, to dissolve parliament and compel an election. It is taken for granted that the Lang clique will attempt to hold on at all costs.

Lang rode into power easily in October, 1930. Since then he has been guilty of such moves as the nominating of his own candidates against those of the federal Labor party in his own state. Moderates believe that the temper of the people has changed and that an election now would oust Lang.

Attacks Interest.

He is a "straight out" repudiationist. He holds that interest is something for nothing and would have the state debts written off. He is particularly bitter against war debt payments which he says were incurred in fighting Great Britain's war and should be cancelled. Accordingly his policy has been one of continuous financial obstruction to the federal government.

New South Wales, the largest state of the commonwealth, has been the home of many radical and expensive experiments. Its dole runs to $30,000,000 annually and its high average basic wage is $20 a week. New South Wales is credited today with the highest taxation in the world, approximately $100 per capita, which does not include federal taxation.

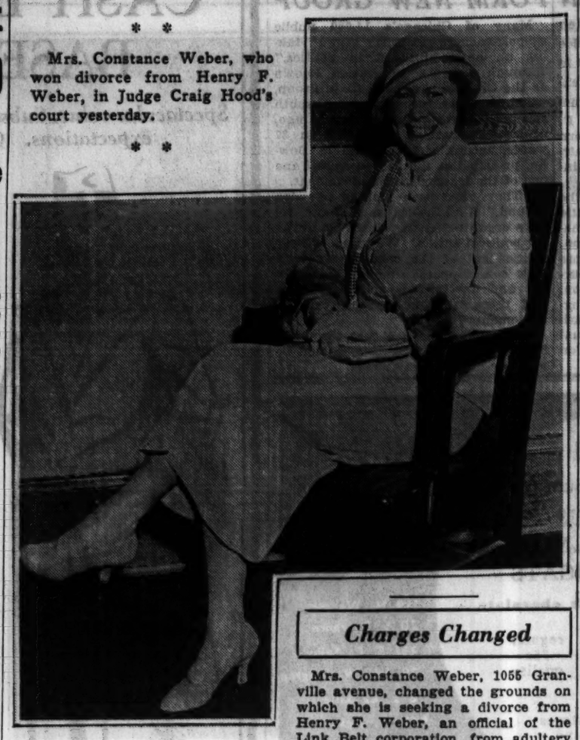
WOMAN LAWYER FILES ANSWER TO HUSBAND'S SUIT

Dispatches from Reno, Nev., last night revealed that Mrs. Helen C. Hunnewell, Chicago attorney and former president of the Illinois Women's Bar association, had filed an answer and cross complaint to a divorce suit brought in Reno on March 1, by her husband, Harry H. Hunnewell of Boston. Hunnewell's bill charged cruelty.

In her answer Mrs. Hunnewell accused her husband of cruelty and adultery. She asks a decree of separate maintenance "in such amount as shall be deemed fair, just and equitable." She alleges that they not only own considerable community property but that Hunnewell possesses a fortune in excess of $1,000,000.

In reply to his wife's cross complaint, Hunnewell yesterday entered a general denial to her charges, thereby clearing the way for what attorneys expect to become a sensational case. The couple were married March 18, 1931, at Indianapolis.

Mrs. Constance Weber Wins Divorce



Mrs. Constance Weber, who won divorce from Henry F. Weber, in Judge Craig Hood's court yesterday.

Charges Changed

Mrs. Constance Weber, 1055 Granville avenue, changed the grounds on which she is seeking a divorce from Henry F. Weber, an official of the Link Belt corporation, from adultery to desertion yesterday in the Circuit court and Judge Craig Hood said that he would grant her a decree.

Weber, who lives at 6101 Sheridan road, contested his wife's action last week. Judge Hood ruled out additional charges of drinking and cruelty after it was testified that Mrs. Weber also drank. The judge held that her actions aggravated her husband to strike her.

The action yesterday was not contested. Mrs. Weber's father, Wilson E. McCulloch, testified that Weber and his daughter separated in May, 1930. In the previous hearing Mrs. Weber testified that a woman fortune teller "read the cards" and warned her of alleged infidelity on her husband's part.

The hearing was continued until Saturday so that attorneys might arrange a property settlement.

WIVES END LIVES AS 2 HUSBANDS HUNT FOR WORK

Young Women Found Shot to Death.

Two young wives, finding the worries of the depression too heavy to bear, committed suicide yesterday afternoon while their unemployed husbands were seeking work.

Mrs. Mary Farrington, 25 years old, shot herself through the head with a rifle in a rooming house at 2836 North Albany avenue. Another roomer summoned Shakespeare avenue police, who found the woman's 2½ year old son, Thomas, crying over her body.

Find Farewell Note.

A farewell note to the husband, Harry Farrington, read as follows:

"Please forgive me. I can't go on any longer. God didn't give me a break. Be good to Tommy. I will love you always. Mary."

Farrington said the wife had worried over her own poor health, the illness of her mother, and his inability to find a job. On Tuesday, he said, she went to the lake intending to drown herself, but returned home, told him of her plan, and promised not to think of suicide again.

The other wife who killed herself was Mrs. Marie Danelius, 31 years old, 2005 Greenleaf avenue. She and her husband, Mathias, an unemployed painter, were living with the wife's mother, Mrs. Cecilia Raddatz.

Bride of 5 Months.

A bride of five months, Mrs. Danelius had been in ill health for several weeks, Mrs. Raddatz told Rogers Park police. Her worry was heightened by the husband's inability to find work, she added.

The mother was doing the weekly baking yesterday afternoon, and the daughter seemed quite cheerful. Danelius was hunting a job. Mrs. Raddatz left the house to do an hour's shopping. Upon returning, she found her daughter dead in her bedroom with a bullet in her temple and a pistol near her hand. She left no message.

COUNTY LOSES DEMURRER PLEA IN PAY CUT SUIT

Circuit Judge Thomas Taylor refused yesterday to allow Assistant State's Attorney Louis Gelman to file a demurrer to the mandamus action by which Mario Pollustrini, a deputy sheriff, is seeking to knock out the 15 per cent pay cut imposed on county employés and the two weeks payless vacations instituted last summer in the county building as a budgetary economy.

The judge ordered Geiman to file an answer to Pollustrini's bill and to be prepared to argue on it Monday. Pollustrini, through Attorney Victor Frohlich, seeks an order on the county commissioners for the two weeks he worked without pay last September, and for the 15 per cent deduction in his salary imposed for the period from Dec. 1, 1931, to March 1, 1932.

WILLIAM M. BLAIR HURT IN MYSTERY FALL OR ASSAULT

A mysterious assault or accident, with William Mitchell Blair as the victim, was revealed last night. His injuries caused him to lose consciousness for two hours late Saturday night in the vestibule leading to Mr. Blair's apartment at 1311 Astor street. Earlier he and Ralph Hines, son of the late lumber magnate, had visited a north side club. They rode together in a cab as far as Mr. Blair's apartment, where he alighted. What happened after he entered the hallway is a mystery to Mr. Blair, he said last night.

"I saw no one in the hall," he said, "but I do not believe I was robbed. What money I had when I entered the vestibule was still in my pockets later. My physician, Dr. Ira Frank, says I must have been slugged because of the nature of my injuries. They could not have been sustained in a fall, he feels."

The injuries consist of discolorations about the eyes, a fracture of the nose, and a severe blow on the left side of the head. It was this blow, it is thought, which caused Mr. Blair to lose consciousness. Mr. Blair is the former owner of the Petrushka club, society cabaret.

CHICAGOAN DIES IN SMASHUP ON MICHIGAN ROAD

Kolouff Kellogg, 38 years old, 6314 Maryland avenue, a building contractor, was killed yesterday afternoon when the small coupe in which he was riding near Somerset, Mich., crashed through a guard rail on a curve and turned over three times. Although the car was demolished, the driver, Nicholas Bargy, 37 years old, who lived with Kellogg, escaped with slight bruises.

There were no automobile deaths in Cook county yesterday. The toll since Jan. 1 remained at 288 for the second successive day.

WAR VETS LIFT BAR ON BACKERS OF HINDENBURG

Steel Helmets 'Make Up' with President.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, April 6.—The Steel Helmet, an association of veterans which opposed Paul von Hindenburg at the first presidential election on March 13, made peace with the president today. Von Hindenburg had threatened to resign from the organization unless it reinstated all members who had been excluded because they favored him instead of Adolf Hitler, Fascist leader, in the first presidential ballot.

The Steel Helmet officers today reinstated all these members, explaining that "the expulsions were decreed by local groups which were not authorized to take such a measure."

A group of prominent noblemen of East Prussia issued a manifesto supporting Von Hindenburg today, but the bulk of East Prussian junkers, whose estates were saved by Von Hindenburg during the world war, continue to back Hitler.

Hindenburg Aids Farmers.

Thanks to Von Hindenburg's influence, the reich has voted big appropriations to help the East Prussian farmers. This year alone the appropriations to farmers in this province total $140,000,000. But the junker farmers are clamoring for more and prefer to gamble on the promises of Hitler.

East Prussia's farmers elected their chamber of agriculture today. They gave 50 seats to Hitlerites, 21 to the Professional Farmers' association, and three to the Peasants' group.

Hitler is now on the way by airplane to East Prussia to make campaign speeches for the runoff election next Sunday. He will speak at Koenigsburg.

Bruening Fights for Hindenburg.

The Republicans, however, are not giving up East Prussia without a fight. Chancellor Bruening will speak on behalf of Von Hindenburg at Koenigsburg Saturday. The chief of the East Prussian wireless station, which is a semi-government organization, announced today that he will refuse to permit the chancellor's speech to be broadcast. Bruening tonight spoke at Erfurt and in Goethe's town, Weimar.

"President von Hindenburg, like all great men of history, is being calumniated by his opponents," he said. "Even George Washington was the butt of calumnies and lies in the days of crisis in his country. The same as Americans today are shocked by these lies, Germans of coming generations will not be able to understand how present day Germany could fail to elect Von Hindenburg on the first ballot."

Break Up Red Meeting.

Berlin police tonight dissolved a communist meeting in the Sportspalast amid turbulent scenes. The communists, who know that their candidate, Ernest Thaelmann, has no chance of winning, are combining their presidential campaign with a pro-Chenese and anti-Japanese campaign.

Today they obtained the prescribed police permissions for their regular orators to speak. Then they smuggled a Chinese to the rostrum. When the Chinese started to talk the policeman on duty arose and declared that he had not asked for a police O. K. and that consequently the meeting was dissolved. A wild tumult ensued. Police who had been hidden in back corridors of the Sportspalast cleared the hall.

Prince Seeks Diet Seat.

BERLIN, April 5.—(AP)—August Wilhelm, fourth son of the former kaiser, is one of 15 official candidates of the National Socialist party for election to the Prussian diet on April 24. Adolf Hitler, leader of the party, today approved the list, in which the prince is included with a bank clerk, a teacher, metal workers and other commoners.

Eight Hurt in Riots.

LEIPZIG, Germany, April 6.—(AP)—Eight persons were wounded in fights over the German election campaign in suburban towns near here today. Two Social Democrats and one National Socialist were wounded by bullets in a pistol fight at Mockau. Five National Socialists were hurt in a clash with communists at Loessnig.

Note to Alderman Threatens Son

David L. Sutton Jr., 5 years old, son of alderman from Eighth ward, whose safety was threatened in note received by father. The note demanded the alderman place $5,000 at designated spot or the boy would be harmed.

$5,000 Demanded

The Burnside police last night were investigating a blackmail letter left under the front door of Ald. David L. Sutton of the 8th ward, which threatened the life of his 5 year old son, David Jr. Ald. Sutton resides at 8134 Eberhart avenue.

The note was found by the alderman last Saturday morning. It said that if he valued the life of his son he would place $5,000 in $5 and $50 bills in a tomato can and put the can between two other cans of similar design in a lot at 8137-41 Vernon avenue. No time was specified.

Ald. Sutton notified Detectives Thomas Murphy and John Geisler. They have been working on the case ever since and last night were ordered by Police Commissioner Allman to maintain a constant watch over the boy. Nothing further has been heard from the writer or writers of the missive. The only signature was "The Blackhand." The note, Ald. Sutton said, was well written.

SIX WOMEN IN FINAL CONTEST FOR J. P.'S HAND

Six women have been chosen for the finals in the contest for the heart and hand of Justice of the Peace Samuel H. Harrison of Evanston, the 79 year old magistrate announced yesterday.

"I want the world to know the contest is closed," said Mr. Harrison. "I don't want any more poor women to be disillusioned of false hopes. I have narrowed my choice—if I make any—to six applicants."

The magistrate's matrimonial mail last night had mounted to 292 letters. Reports that five women waited to press their suits the previous night until Harrison returned from a wrestling match at midnight were disputed by the magistrate's son, George Harrison, 45 years old and a constable.

"No, sir, they all got tired about 10 p. m. and went home," said the constable. "I entertained them with gingerale and cookies and they all seemed right nice. They said they would come back later."

Dies After Air Rifle Shot Severs His Spinal Cord

While Emil Savich, 43 years old, 4601 South Paulina street, talked with his friend, Theodore Gaidelis, in his home at 4459 South Wood street on March 27, the latter's son, Theodore Jr., 8 years old, played with an air rifle. The rifle discharged and the lead pellet entered Savich's back. He died yesterday at the Washington Park hospital. Dr. Walter A. Eziuk said that the shot had severed the spinal cord. A verdict of accidental death was returned by a coroner's jury.

HEARING ON GAS RATES WILL BE RESUMED TODAY

After a recess of ten days, the Illinois commerce commission will resume its hearing today to determine the rates to be charged by the Peoples Gas Light and Coke company for its new mixture of natural and artificial gas. Joseph F. Grossman, assistant corporation counsel, is representing the city in the hearings. The council finance committee has not yet acted on a request of Corporation Counsel Sexton for an appropriation.

HIJACKERS SEIZE 3,000 DUCKS BUT POLICE FIND 'EM

John Moore, a poultry man of Monticello, Ill., was driving to Chicago early yesterday with a load of 1,200 live and 1,800 dressed ducks on a truck and trailer. Near Joliet three hijackers seized him.

Moore remembered only that the hijackers had a sedan with a cracked window, held together with tape. He told his story to State's Attorney R. P. Shoukwider of Piatt county who telephoned every law enforcement agency in the Chicago area.

Sergt. William Wickham of Chicago Heights was patrolling that suburb last night when he saw a sedan with a taped window. The occupant was Bio Smith, 19 years old, 17801 South Halsted street. In the barn of his father, Lawrence Smith, the sergeant found the ducks. The Smiths, father and son, and Jerry Chandler of South Chicago Heights, an alleged accomplice, were locked up.

26 Years on one job

"...and a good job it was this dentist did...to protect your teeth against pyorrhea"

Your own dentist will tell you about pyorrhea. It is one of his grave problems. It comes eventually to four out of five people. It actually is the cause of half the adult teeth which are lost.

Nobody today believes that simple polishing is all that is needed to keep healthy teeth. There is much more to it than that. When teeth "come out" there is a deeper cause than mere cleanliness or non-cleanliness. As often as not this deeper cause is pyorrhea.

Dr. R. J. Forhan specialized in this disease which starts in the gums and works downward to the tooth sockets. He spent twenty-six years in his chosen work and produced the toothpaste which bears his name—"Forhan's." Brush your teeth and massage your gums with Forhan's. Trust Forhan's to keep your teeth white and glistening. Even for this purpose there is no finer toothpaste made. But that is only one duty of Forhan's—and Forhan's is a double-duty toothpaste. Its other duty is to protect your gums.

Dentists all over the country are using the professional formula of Dr. Forhan in treating pyorrhea and Forhan's Toothpaste preserves the same scientific principle for preventive hygiene at home. Forhan's is a pleasant-tasting, agreeable toothpaste for general family use. It is pure and mild—liked by the children. But remember: "it's more than a toothpaste." It comes in a big brown tube, and owing to its individual character, it lasts surprisingly long.

HORNER TELLS VOTERS HE'S FREE FROM BOSS RULE

Answers Attacks of Rivals for Governorship.

BY PARKE BROWN.

His freedom from bossism and any desire to build up a political machine was proclaimed yesterday by Judge Henry Horner, regular Democratic candidate for nomination for the governorship.

It was the biggest day the state organization's choice for the executive mansion has seen during his weeks of campaigning. For the first time he spoke at a noon meeting in a loop theater, the Apollo. Then, after keeping other engagements, he dashed to Waukegan for an early evening speech and raced back by special train in order to address a huge massmeeting at the Trianon.

Judge Horner's crowd at the Trianon broke all records for this campaign. The full seating capacity—placed at 8,900 by the management of the hall—was exhausted. All available standing room was filled and outside in the street was an overflow, estimated as including 7,000, listening to the amplifiers.

At the Waukegan High school Judge Horner was heard by approximately 2,500, while the attendance at a Campbell meeting in Pythian hall, not far distant, did not exceed 300.

"Freedom from Boss Rule."

At each of his meetings Judge Horner referred to his independence of boss rule. His two principal opponents, Michael L. Igoe and Bruce A. Campbell, have centered most of their campaign talks on the organization, with at least an implication now and then that Mayor Cermak would run the statehouse if the party wins with Horner in November.

"I don't know what they mean when they say that I would be bossed," said Judge Horner. "For seventeen years I have been judge of the Probate court. To many people, at many times, that court and its administration was as important as the state.

"No one tried to boss me there. No one came to me with the suggestion that I place some dead weight on one end of the scales of justice so that some one might benefit. I kept those scales balanced perfectly; and I will take those same slender scales to Springfield.

"The only boss that I recognize is my conscience and it has been a good boss, one that bossed in the interests of the citizens of my community for more than thirty years.

"You can be certain that Gov. Horner will be the governor and that he will be the governor for all the state."

Reply to Opponents.

Without mentioning names, Judge Horner referred statements by the opposition that he will not receive anything but a small vote outside of Cook county.

"Since they began making those statements," said Judge Horner, "I have spent several weeks with my fellow Democrats downstate. I visited some seventy counties, and, as a result of my trip, there has been aroused throughout the state such genuine enthusiasm that there is no doubt remaining that we shall carry the vast majority of the counties of Illinois over both of the opposing candidates."

Igoe Attacks Cermak.

In his speeches during the day, which included a noon meeting at the Grand Opera house, Igoe continued to direct his attack at Mayor Cermak.

"The mayor of Chicago, ably advised by his banker friends who so faithfully represent Wall street," he said, "seemed to think he suddenly has become not only a high financier but a learned economist. If he keeps on, I wouldn't be surprised to see Robert Maynard Hutchins hang something around his neck and bestow upon him the degree of master of arts.

"In economics Tony seems to be a supreme authority. To solve any problem, all he has to do is take a lot of the taxpayers' money and rent the services of a person like J. L. Jacobs."

Indorsements of Brundage.

Headquarters of Edward J. Brundage, Republican candidate, made public two warm indorsements, one from Frank J. Loesch, head of the Chicago Crime commission, and the other from Dr. Charles E. Merriam of the University of Chicago.

"His record as attorney general was creditable in the highest," said Loesch in announcing his decision to vote for Brundage. "He put aside personal and party considerations when he brought suits, which were successful, against Small for withholding interest from the state amounting to many hundreds of thousands of dollars.

"He is an able lawyer with a record of thirty years' high standing at the Chicago bar. In this contest he is the only candidate for governor who has shown knowledge and courage in exposing the working of the alliances between certain ward leaders and the criminal syndicates to dictate the choice of a majority of the ward committeemen, who then would control the Republican organization in Chicago."

Dr. Merriam in his indorsement of Brundage said:

"He has a long established reputation for competent public service in this city, county, and state, as legislator, legal adviser, and administrator.

His integrity is unchallenged. He showed his courage and persistence in starting and fighting the various suits against Small which resulted in the return of over $600,000 to the public treasury. He is pledged to a thorough reorganization of the finances of the state government and can be relied on to carry through such a program."

Speaking at the Cort theater, William H. Malone, who is called by his managers "the taxpayers' candidate," challenged Attorney General Carlstrom to publish his pay rolls.

"During the last few days," he said, "Mr. Carlstrom's friends have been after me continuously by phone and through the medium of anonymous letters, urging me to withdraw from the race. I declare here and now that I will not go back on the voters and taxpayers of Illinois whose battles I have been fighting for many years."

DEMOCRATS FORM A CHICAGO CAMP OF MINUTE MEN

A Chicago camp of the Minute Men of the Democratic party, a nonoffice holding organization, was organized in the Palmer house yesterday with expressions of optimism on the Democratic outlook for 1932. Robert F. Carr, president of the Dearborn Chemical company, was elected chairman of the Chicago group, which includes 39 Illinois members.

Jouett Shouse, chairman of the executive committee of the Democratic party and recommended for permanent chairman of the 1932 convention, attended the initial meeting before returning to Washington. The purpose of the Minute Men's organization, which has headquarters in Washington, is to keep Democrats in the various states informed on congressional activities and to centralize pressure on the administration in Washington.

TEACHERS STEP INTO POLITICS; FORM NEW GROUP

Many of Chicago's 14,000 public school teachers yesterday began "taking an active interest in politics." Through a new organization known as the Chicago Teachers' Civic group, which had its inception at a south side massmeeting several weeks ago, afternoon meetings were held in 37 wards, according to William R. Bowlin, principal of the Fulton school and one of the leaders in the movement.

"They have been kicking our dog around," Mr. Bowlin said, "and we have organized the teachers by wards for political action. We mean to keep politics out of the schools, create a civic consciousness among the teachers and develop an active interest. But there is to be no slate, no indorsements."

Supt. Bogan ordered that the meetings, when held in schools, should be paid for at the regular rate.

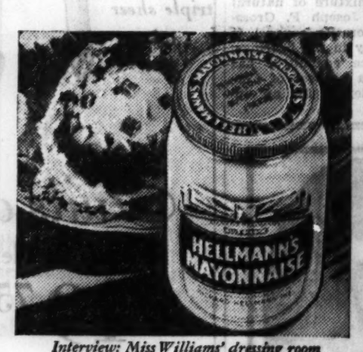
Frances Williams joins this Fight against FAT



Interview: Miss Williams' dressing room at the Shubert Theatre, New York City

INTERVIEWER: You were superb tonight, Miss Williams. And in that blue crepe gown, your figure was absolutely ravishing. Come on! Tell me how you keep yourself so slender.

MISS WILLIAMS: I spend no time on those exercise machines, I'll tell you that. My secret, if you call it a secret, is very simple. I follow the Hellmann Slenderizing Plan.

INTERVIEWER: So you're following that plan, too! What does it allow you to eat?

MISS WILLIAMS: Almost everything, and that's why I like it. Just eat two salads every day covered with Hellmann's Mayonnaise in place of too many heavy soups and rich, fattening foods. Then cross any tendency towards increasing weight right off your list of worries!

What a delightful sounding way to keep slender and healthy! Two delicious, inexpensive salads every day covered with Hellmann's Mayonnaise, in place of heavy, fattening foods! Why not begin at once?

Remember to insist on Hellmann's. The quality, double-whipped mayonnaise. It contains breakfast eggs, special salad oils, vinegar and spices. Certain mayonnaise makers have recently introduced cheap, inferior fillers into their products in a frantic effort to lower prices. This we refuse to do. Hellmann's Mayonnaise remains a quality mayonnaise, absolutely unchanged, absolutely uncheapened.

So get your jar of Hellmann's from your grocer. And start the Hellmann Slenderizing Plan at once. Results will amaze you.

Lovely Frances Williams (at the right), one of America's most perfectly formed women, follows this plan daily. And what it does for her, it can also do for you.

CARLSTROM SAYS HE WILL LIGHTEN STATE TAX LOAD

Assails Spending Orgy of Governments.

Attorney General Oscar E. Carlstrom, candidate for the Republican nomination for governor, last night pledged a program of strict economy in the conduct of the state government as the most direct means of reducing the tremendous burden of taxation. He spoke before a 40th ward audience in the auditorium of the Von Steuben Junior High school at 5039 North Kimball avenue.

Mr. Carlstrom called attention to the manner in which he has conducted the office of attorney general during the two terms of his incumbency. More than $9,000,000 has been saved for the state by litigation during his seven and one-half years in office, he said, and during that period 3,500 opinions have been given and 1,630 cases conducted in courts of record.

Points to His Economy.

"Despite the steady increase in the volume of work that passes through the attorney general's office, $69,300 less was asked for the operation of the office for the biennium just ended than for the previous two year period," Mr. Carlstrom declared. "The appropriation of the last biennium was only $79,000 more than the appropriation made fifteen years ago. In that period the cost of state government increased 505 per cent, while the cost of the attorney general's office increased only 9 per cent.

"I pledge myself, if elected governor of this state, to the same economy of operation that has prevailed in the office that I now hold."

The attorney general decried the free spending orgy since the world war during which, he said, public expenditures for "wasteful purposes mounted to terrific figures." He assailed the bureaucrats and the manner in which they have grown from small groups to powerful organizations that are draining through taxation, he declared, from 25 to 28 per cent of the nation's income.

Rips "Greedy Tax Eaters."

"Now they are attempting to fool us," he said. "'Tax the rich,' they say. Rather, they should ask openly to be allowed to liquidate the capital of the nation, to kill the goose that laid the golden egg. They disregard entirely, and without compunction, the inevitable collapse that will surely result from the continuation of such greedy, grasping taxation.

"They ask for inheritance taxes that rise to such proportions that they would destroy large business organizations upon which thousands of men, women, and children are dependent for their very livelihood. It has reached the point where we must stop this terrific drain on the public purse and cut out such graft on a grand scale as was exposed in the 'whoopee days' of the sanitary district."

Mr. Carlstrom urged the revision of banking laws to allow more rapid liquidation of assets at their true value rather than the price they bring in forced sales. He asserted the blue sky laws also should be revised to prevent real estate bond frauds through the sale of mortgage issues that exceed the equitable 75 per cent of the true value of properties.

Prohibition a Failure.

Then the attorney general took up prohibition.

"After thirteen years of earnest trial prohibition has failed utterly," he said. "It would be a thousand times better if we had legally manufactured beer and wines instead of the poisonous concoctions of the Volstead era.

"We can not create character and temperance by law. I would like to see our return to the day when every one of us stands again on his own two feet. I want to see the resubmission of the whole prohibition system to the several states, the defeat of the eighteenth amendment, and each state given the right to adopt whatever system of control its citizens desire."

Speaks Before Veterans.

Mr. Carlstrom also spoke briefly at Guyon's Paradise ballroom, 4000 Washington boulevard, where the Edward Hines Jr. post, Disabled American Veterans of the World War, was holding its annual ball.

Mayor Herbert E. Clayton of Morris, county seat of Grundy county, one of the three minor Republican candidates for governor, yesterday announced that he was withdrawing from the race in favor of Attorney General Carlstrom. Mayor Clayton is a war veteran and his indorsement was welcomed by Mr. Carlstrom as an indication of the support of service men.

Carlstrom was also indorsed by Jan Romaszkiewicz, president of the Polish National Alliance, and by John S. Rybicki, general counsel for the Polish Roman Catholic Union of America.

LEGION REPORTS ON PACIFISM OF 2 CANDIDATES

A report of the attitude of Illinois candidates for congress on national defense was issued yesterday by the committee on military affairs of the Cook county council of the American Legion. It found that of the candidates for congressman at large, two returned unsatisfactory answers to the Legion's questionnaire. They are Mrs. Anna M. Schaedler, Republican, of Wilmette, and Walter Nesbit, Democrat, of Belleville, who is on the organization slate. The Legion report says:

"Walter Nesbit writes that he is a pacifist and against all war, that he would advocate total disarmament for the United States tomorrow if the state of the world mind were such that he deemed it safe; that Russia has proposed simultaneous world disarmament, but that the other nations have refused, and that while the Sino-Japanese situation continues we should not jeopardize our safety by further weakening our national defenses while nations in Europe and Asia continue their mad scramble for armament."

The report says that Charles A. Karch, Democratic congressman of East St. Louis, has written in similar vein.

On district candidates for congress the report lists the following as candidates "in whose hands we believe plans for national defense would not be safe: Second district, R. E. Blackwood, Republican; Michael C. Walsh, Democrat; Fifth district, Congressman A. J. Sabath, Democrat; Eighth district, Leo Kocialkowski, Democrat.

Of Congressman Carl R. Chindblom [Rep.] the report says his December letter of reply was satisfactory, while "his record is considered unsatisfactory by many Legionnaires."

FINED 1 CENT, ALL HE HAS.

John Kosiauski, 38 years old, was fined one cent, all he had in his pockets, and sentenced to the House of Correction for ten days by Judge Francis B. Allegretti yesterday in the Grand Crossing court on a drunk and disorderly charge.

TAX PARASITES RUIN U. S., WARNS COL. McCORMICK

Rallies Business Leaders to Combat Peril.

Ten years of excessive taxation have brought the nation to the verge of ruin, and its recovery hinges wholly upon a drastic curtailment of public spending and a consequent easing of the tax load. That was the warning given yesterday by Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, in an address at the Chicago Association of Commerce luncheon at the Hotel La Salle.

Vanished incomes, closed factories and idle men have made no impression on those who hold the public purse, he pointed out. Instead of reducing expenditures they have increased them and concentrated their efforts on seeking new sources of revenue when the old ones fail.

A Time for Action.

"If you are to exist," Col. McCormick said, "you must tear these weasels from the throat of the nation. To attend meetings like this is not enough; to pass resolutions is not enough. You will have to go into every detail of political organization and activity. If you do less, you will be destroyed."

He commended the association on the campaign that it has originated to force curtailment of government expenditures, a campaign which has already extended to 700 cities.

"It's a proud thing that the movement for national economy starts in Chicago," he said in closing. "There are serious times ahead, but I am confident that your leadership will save our country."

Tells Conditions in Cities.

Col. McCormick began by outlining the condition of municipal finance in the nation's leading cities.

"Our states, counties and cities," he said, "divide into two classes, the bankrupt and the about-to-become bankrupt. Chicago, Detroit and Philadelphia are the best known of the former class; of the latter, New York City is utterly insolvent. With a debt approaching two billion dollars, an outgo far exceeding income, she is increasing her expenditures constantly.

"One wonders how much longer the banks and the insurance companies of New York will dare to loan money to finance wasteful public business. Her budget for 1932 was $631,000,000. Since 1920 our largest city has much more than doubled its budget. This year's deficit will reach $100,000,000 by June.

Cleveland's Credit Sour.

"Cleveland has a deficit of two million dollars in her general fund and two million dollars in her educational fund, and her credit has gone sour.

"Boston is so much older than our midwestern cities that she ought to know better. However, last year she permitted her city officers to spend $10,000,000 more than they had ever spent before. And thus she has a deficit of at least $5,000,000 for this year. Soon Boston will join the ranks of the other bankrupts.

"Such is the plight of the larger cities, but the smaller ones have not done better. In 28 states there are known to be defaults. In the others it is just a question of time. Defaults and repudiations are the order of the day in government as a result of submersion in debts beyond ability to pay.

"National expenditures are exceeding income by one hundred per cent, or two billion dollars.

"The United States senate sits snugly on the horns of the dilemma—whether to fail to meet its obligations or to levy taxes which will destroy the entire economic structure of the country as the house has done.

"No serious thought of retrenchment appears to have entered the heads of our office holding tyrants. Not since the states ratified the federal constitution has there been so dark an outlook in all the history of our people.

"If we are to save ourselves from the threatened cataclysm we must find by what steps we were led into this morass that we may learn how to retrace them.

The Rise of Bureaucracy.

"In a recent address before the Chicago Better Business bureau I traced the rise of bureaucracy in this country, which, hardly noticeable for the first century of our existence, may have found its germ in the vast activities of government in the civil war, because it was in the following generation that government expansion got its start.

"Before Europe went to war there had been added to the constitutional offices a department of justice, a civil service commission, an interstate commerce commission, a department of agriculture, a department of commerce, a bureau of forestry, a department of labor, the federal reserve board, and the federal trade commission. Between them and our declaration of war arrived the national advisory commission for aeronautics, the employés compensation commission, the tariff commission, and the federal board for vocational education.

Innocent in Appearance.

"The act creating the last named board was innocent enough in appearance. It provided for federal assistance on a fifty-fifty basis to states which would match the federal government gift to them in expenditures for teaching boys in the schools to become machinists and carpenters and girls to do fancy work. But that entering wedge opened the way for the shiftless states to spend money like thrifty ones, with the national government providing half the funds.

"That was the means by which Illinois money came to be taken to build roads in Utah. That is the means through which citizens of Chicago, who can't pay their teachers, contribute to the culinary education of Alabama farmer ladies.

"But we're getting ahead of our story. Federal government expenditures, which increased quite steadily prior to the war, did so at a rate that might cause the Democrats and Progressive party of 1912 to view with alarm, but they were still very moderate. Less than a billion dollars paid for everything the congressmen could get each other to vote for. Less than a billion took care of the army and the navy, the postal deficit, the Panama canal, and all the waste.

A BILLION IN 1914

"Nineteen-fourteen was the first year that federal government expenditures went over a billion dollars, and by 1916, a year before we declared war, the total was only a billion forty-two million. But at that time there were fewer than 40,000 federal employés in Washington and slightly more than 400,000 outside of Washington.

"It was, however, the great war that changed the entire scale of national income and national expenditure.

"First the prices of agricultural products soared. Cotton mounted from 7c to 43c a pound, and wheat from 80c to $3.50. Although the value of cotton was due entirely to the temporary demand for explosives, and the demand for wheat was caused by the drafting of European farm workers into armies and the shortage of shipping which prevented South American and Australian competition, farm lands advanced in price as though farm incomes would be permanently stabilized on a war basis.

Boom in Manufacturing.

"Next, factories making war material boomed, and factories which could be turned to war manufactures zoomed after them. In consequence, factories unadaptable for war manufactures became insufficient to supply the civilian needs of the country, and the demand exceeding supply brought the inevitable high prices of nearly all commodities, while so-called prosperity and the high cost of living brought about increase of wages on an average of 172 per cent.

"Neither financiers nor soldiers had thought that armies of the size prepared in Europe could be supported for more than a few weeks, and the various war plans of general staffs all aimed at a decision to be reached shortly after the declaration of war. The Schlieffen plan of Germany, plan 17 of France, the Conrad plan of Austria, and the Russian plan all aimed at this result, and all failed because the book-trained staffs had no conception of modern combat.

Expansion of Credit.

"It was only when the war settled into a siege that the world perceived for the first time to what extent credit could be extended and to what taxes men and industries would submit under the impulse of patriotism.

"During three years Europe pinched and fought while we merely increased our production, our cost of production, and our cost of living. When finally we declared war, we felt rich; some felt a sense of moral delinquency because we had not entered the war earlier, and all realized that we had incurred a national peril.

"We found it necessary to raise our soldiers by conscription, and this led to the moral consequence that the unconscripted could deny them nothing.

"I have detailed upon another occasion the expansiveness which spread through the country. A willingness for personal sacrifice was spread far and wide, but, unfortunately, in step with it marched a scheming demand for public plunder. Side by side with necessary war activities were perpetrated the grossest frauds in the history of the world up to that time.

"Armies were raised, supported, and transported with no more idea of defeating the enemy in the field than with that of private profiteering at national expense. To embattle an average of one million men for twenty days, an outside estimate puts the cost at thirty-two billion dollars.

Taxation Is Expanded.

"In consequence of this we established enormous organizations for the collection and expenditure of taxes and for the creation and enlargement of public debt.

"Naturally, with the end of the war the jobholders and the industries which had been created from war conditions wished to continue; the honest as well as the dishonest, and the dishonest as well as the honest.

"Those that could not remain in the federal service flowed over into the states, the counties, and the cities. The propagandists found new euphemisms for public expenditures in civil life to take the place of patriotism and self-sacrifice for unnecessary wastefulness in war time.

"The greatest post-war thefts of public funds have been camouflaged as desirable projects or indispensable services.

INJURY TO INDUSTRY

"One weapon of the peace time propagandists has been to direct the public attitude toward wartime profiteering, which they were largely responsible for, against necessary peacetime industries. There was a natural antipathy towards the men who got rich from war necessities. Progressive taxation was imposed no more to provide revenue than to punish the profiteers.

Tax thieves have perpetuated this attitude and have hamstrung essential industries and forced millions of workingmen out of employment on the generalization that private profit, however honestly gained and however indispensable to the common welfare, should be penalized.

"Before the war our public expenditures were $3,000,000,000 per year, including state and local governments. Five years after the war they were $10,263,000,000. Before the war our national indebtedness, including states and counties, was $4,850,000,000, while five years after the war it had risen to $31,000,000,000.

"These costs seemed bearable because of the steep, if temporary, increase in values of all kinds.

Inflation in Farm Values.

"The inflations of values began with farm land during wartime, and then like a wave passed through all other land—Florida land, subdivision land, and even conservative business property.

"One citizen, the speaker, invested the bulk of his savings of the prosperous years in Chicago real estate and farm lands, upon which he is assessed an annual tax of almost $40,000. Inflation went through the securities listed on the exchanges and the owners of property not on the market felt a glow of wealth, which they could not realize upon, to be sure, but upon which they were not loath to pay increasing taxation.

"How to account for this phenomenon I am not sure. Increased income from property was responsible for but a small part. The effect of spending borrowed money had some share. The energy created by war enthusiasm and the natural optimism following victory all contributed.

"The consequence has been that property of every kind was raised, as a ship on a wave, and left by the receding wave high and dry on the jagged rocks of ruinous taxation.

Taxes Overload Earnings.

"Earnings never were high enough to support the levels of taxation which were imposed. The unbearable load was concealed, like the face of Mephistopheles, behind a mask of plenty. Now, under the grinding load of taxation, industry is everywhere slowing up. Incomes are falling and disappearing.

"Industries, contracting or closing down altogether, are unable to furnish employment to workmen. Everywhere we find economies and hardship excepting on the part of those people who have their hands, under color of law, in the pockets of others, and even these are suffering as the pockets become empty.

"They are like the wolves of Anticosti. At one time the island of Anticosti was populated by limitless droves of caribou. One year some Labrador wolves were carried to the island on the ice. The island was favorable to the pursuit of wolves, and its shores prevented escape to the pursued. The wolves waxed in number. Finally they destroyed all the caribou, and then, with nothing to feed upon, all died of hunger. That is the prospect which lies before our tax eaters.

Citizens Unable to Pay.

"The evil talk of tax strikes is heard throughout the land, but far more serious than strikes is the growing inability of taxpayers to pay. Strike or no strike, it is absolutely impossible to pay the taxes assessed. Owners of buildings are tearing them down because the taxes are more than the receipts. Owners of unimproved property are unable to pay their taxes, and tax buyers cannot be found to evict them. Individuals, estates, and corporations are beginning to find it impossible to meet federal taxation extorted with all the ruthlessness of the Germans in Belgium.

"In this community there has been a strongly organized effort to transfer the tax burden from real estate of all kinds to other forms of wealth. It has been accompanied with considerable propaganda attacking other forms of wealth—an unwise adaptation of the methods of the tax eaters.

"Let us look for a moment at the forms of personal property upon which it is proposed to levy titanic burdens.

Personality Is Examined.

"The most visible, the most obvious, of course, are bank deposits. There are, first, the savings deposits, which are easily grabbed, because they may not be removed at will. There are $96 millions of them in Chicago alone. Well, no one proposes to tax them.

"Next we find the balances from other states and cities carried in Chicago for convenience of transacting business. If we would impose a tax on them we would not only lose the money but would lose the business which they nourish. We cannot touch them.

"We are now reduced to the bank balances of our own enterprises. Are we to handicap them in the world-wide competition, and if we are willing so to do, how long can they stand this handicap, and how soon will those balances disappear from the state if $200,000,000 has fled from Chicago banks during the last week under the threat of hostile propaganda?

A Limit to Levies.

"How much can we take from what may be termed 'decorative property,' running from jewelry to household furnishings? I believe that in the minds of the owners jewelry has largely been considered a form of non-interest bearing savings; and pictures, objects of art, have been considered as money spent.

"Certainly the owners will not pay any considerable tax for the mere pleasure of ownership. Furthermore, they cannot sell precious stones, graven metals, or art luxuries for any substantial sum on this market, and cannot provide cash for the tax collector.

"Taxation of machinery used in business! There's a good one. Soak it! A man cannot do business without his machinery. Surely we have got that man on the hip.

EXAMPLE OF ENGLAND

"Look across the ocean. Look at England, the founder of industrial civilization, the originator of steam machinery. There you will see industries of all kinds groaning along on out-of-date, worn-out machines, incapable of competition in the world market. Why should the English endeavor to manufacture with out-of-date, worn-out machinery? Because taxation has risen to such heights in England that the owners cannot afford to modernize their plants. What money the Englishman can get he puts in hiding, in a losing effort to maintain his declining civilization.

"Will you tax stocks and bonds? These in times when they are valuable have a nation-wide or world-wide market. They will not remain over the week-end in any community which by taxing them makes them less valuable than they are elsewhere.

One Final Alternative.

"There remain the necessary objects of personal property—the cradle, the stove, the washing machines, the beds, and the tables. How much will you tax these to build marble schoolrooms, private swimming pools for public employés, and hydraulic developments in the Arizona desert?

"Taxes on personal property may furnish a useful peg on which to hang speeches subversive of public order, but as producers of revenue they are ephemeral.

"Overtaxed real estate owners will be better advised to demand lower taxation for all than to stir up mob impulses against owners of other property.

"Ever since the war the government has been living on and living off income taxes and taxes that it called 'income' taxes. Where the taxes were levied on profit in the purchase and sale of a fixed article, such as a piece of real estate, or a certificate representing the ownership of a company owning real estate, improved or unimproved, a railroad or a factory, the tax is not on income, but is a capital levy. This fact is recognized in the present proposed tax law under which losses in the resale of such property may not be deducted.

Extortion of Whole Value.

"Obviously, by the continuation of the principle of taxes, exacting tribute on values as they rise and returning nothing when they decline, sooner or later the government will have extorted the entire value of all property.

"It will be like the fisherman who, hauling in line as the fish comes his way and snubbing his line when the fish would run, soon has him gaffed. If I were inclined to pun on so serious an occasion, I would continue the illustration and say that the American taxpayer is a poor fish.

"Now as to taxes on incomes proper. It being the purpose of our government to take away from its citizens, like the Roman conquerors from their subject peoples, all their property in so far as it is profitable for the government to do so—how far can they be extended before they destroy the source of income?

"Here we enter a less defined field of political economy, but there is ample evidence visible to those willing to see. The great industrial enterprises which pay so large a part of all kinds of taxes, real, personal, and income, started from small beginnings and have been built up from accumulations. If these accumulations had been sequestered in the past as they will be in the future, the industries never could have grown. If we stop accumulations at this time, no more industries may grow to take up the slack of unemployment and to pay the cost of government.

Debts a Vital Factor.

"A no less vital factor is the repayment of debts. The existence of banks, and hence the existence of bank depositors, depends upon the ability of debtors to pay. To the non-producing theorist on the outside, perhaps a strictly limited return on capital may seem sufficient and all that is morally justified, but for the borrower, a return sufficient to pay not only the interest but the principal of his debt is necessary lest he lose his all. If the opportunity of repaying his debt is denied him he cannot venture, and if the government will take from the borrower the money which is needed to repay the lender, this man dare not lend.

"Nothing is more popular today than the progressive estate tax. If, it is argued, it is fair that the creator of wealth is entitled to its use, this right does not extend to his children, his heirs who did nothing to produce it—an argument plausible to those who wish to see it that way, but one which, carried to its logical conclusion, injures the very people it is supposed to benefit.

NEW FORM OF PROPERTY

"Modern property is no longer in the patriarch stage. The rich man does not own one thousand goats or ten thousand sheep, of which five hundred or seven thousand and fifty may be taken by Pharaoh, still leaving the heirs a considerable quantity of mutton and wool.

"In its simplest form, for the tax-gatherer, this wealth will be found represented in bonds and shares of stocks listed on an exchange, part of which can be sold to pay the tax on the whole. Forced sales of stocks to pay taxes are another form of bear raids, of short selling. Stock which in the natural order of events would be kept off the market will be forced on the market, breaking the market. The forced sale of the stock sold destroys the value of that retained.

"Any glee caused by the confiscation of the estate of a rich man will be turned to dismay when it is found out that all stock, in whoever's hands it may be, is thereby depreciated in value. Not only every share of the particular stock sold will be depreciated, but as these fall in value they will bring all the other shares down with them. The recent collapse of the stock market is partly due to stocks forced upon the market by government exactions and for which buyers are wanting.

Value of Going Concern.

"But more difficult than this by far will be the case of the many businesses of one kind or another which are operating successfully, employing labor and paying taxes, which are not listed on any stock exchange and which in many cases do not consist of capital stock. The machinery and fixtures cannot be separated and sold piece by piece. They would produce nothing.

"Assuming the enterprise to have a given value in the hands of its owners, say, one million or ten million dollars, how much will it bring at a forced sale, a sale forced upon the citizen by his government? How much will the individual so fortunately situated as to have his competitor's property auctioned off to him by the federal government bid for it? Will he bid its fair value? Will he bid its value as fixed by Caesar's legates, and if he bids less, will the government demand a tax on a larger sum than it realizes for its victim?

"And how long will enterprises exist if they are to be overtaxed during the generation of their founder and confiscated with his death?

"The course which our rulers have laid out for us, and from which they show no sign of deviating, is the road to complete and inescapable ruin. If they proceed as they are going, they will dry up every profit, every interest payment, and every pay roll. They will bring upon us a fall like the fall of the Dutch republic and of the Roman empire. With our ruin their ruin is also inextricably bound up.

GOVERNMENT WASTE

"If you ask me what is the alternative, I will make this statement and I will continue to make it. There is not a cabinet officer, there is not a member of congress who can demonstrate that one-half of the money appropriated for any department of government is used for the purpose designated.

"I will be specific; not one-half of the money appropriated for the war department is spent to make an army; not one-half of the money appropriated for the navy department is spent to build, operate, and maintain a combat fleet; not one-half of the money appropriated for the postoffice department is spent to move the mails.

"As for other great branches of the government—the department of commerce, the department of the interior, the department of agriculture—are not much better than rackets. Rackets, I regret to say, which are supported by a small element of our population who are persuaded that they are receiving from them special benefits at the expense of the general taxpayer.

Face to Face with Ruin.

"It took centuries for enough wealth to accumulate to raise our civilization from the misery of the middle ages to the high estate we have witnessed. It has taken ten years of excessive taxation to bring us down to the verge of ruin. The tax bill passed by the national house destroys all hope for the future.

"Like the nobility of royal France and pre-revolutionary England, our officeholders are a privileged class, becoming hereditary, holding sinecures established by law. They look down upon civilians with contempt as fit only to work for the support of their masters. They dominate and exchange places with elected officers, with whom they conspire for special benefit.

"Civilization could not start until the old privileged aristocracy was overthrown. Now it is reëstablished in another form and is again sucking the lifeblood of the working world.

"If you are to exist, you must tear these weasels from the throat of the nation. To attend meetings like this is not enough; to pass resolutions is not enough. You will have to go into every detail of political organization and activity. If you do less, you will be destroyed.

"Since I prepared this speech yesterday 40,000 farms have been sold for taxes in Mississippi. Since the passage of the new tax bill by the house of representatives we read that $1½ billion dollars have been lost in stocks listed on the exchange. There has been a bloody insurrection in Newfoundland.

"But we are the descendants of the people who dared the impenetrable ocean and the trackless forests and who, in the face of obstacles greater by far than those we face today, established the greatest nation in the world and overthrew a tyrant king.

"We face the threat and accept the challenge. It's a proud thing that the movement for national economy starts in Chicago. There are serious times ahead, but I'm confident that your leadership will save our country."

Introduced by Wahlman.

John Philip Wahlman, chairman of the meeting, introduced Col. McCormick.

"The Chicago Association of Commerce," said Mr. Wahlman, "contends that in order to balance the budget and give the taxpayer a break it is absolutely essential that government expenses be reduced and government extravagances be eliminated."

CITY OF DETROIT FAILS TO MEET PAY ROLLS FOR THE FIRST TIME

Detroit, Mich., April 6.—(AP)—For the first time in its history the city of Detroit was in default on municipal pay rolls tonight.

Controller G. Hall Roosevelt today held up payment of $496,024.85 due to a group of employés, some of whom are laborers, while he awaited instructions from the city council and Mayor Frank Murphy on how to handle funds available for pay roll purposes between now and the end of the fiscal year, June 30.

He is to meet with the city council tomorrow morning and then expects to receive instructions, in accordance with a council resolution adopted last night to allot pay roll funds pro rata among all employés. The council has 72 hours in which to reconsider that action.

There was available today $950,000. Had he met today's pay roll in full, he explained, there would be insufficient funds left to meet pay rolls for the bulk of city employés, due April 15.

SWANSON CALLS FEINBERG BANK ACTIONS A SHAM

Assails Attorneys' Fees in Receiverships.

State's Attorney John A. Swanson, a candidate for reëlection, paid a tribute to union labor yesterday at a noon meeting in the Erlanger theater and declared that the workingman would not be confused by "the sham battle Judge Feinberg is waging in behalf of the poor and distressed depositors of closed banks." He again assailed the cost of attorneys' fees in receivership cases handled by Judge Feinberg, his Republican opponent.

"Union labor has constantly cooperated with my office to rid the city of the grafting racketeers," said the state's attorney. "The unions have made a real contribution to the best interests of the city and have done much to elevate the standard of living among the laboring people."

Turning to Judge Feinberg's claims of aiding the bank depositors, Mr. Swanson declared that witnesses in the case of the Lake View State bank were brought in at a cost of $7.40 apiece, when a postage stamp would have accomplished the result.

Friends Favored, Swanson Says.

"That's just another means of providing jobs for his favorite friends," said Mr. Swanson. "My office has exposed the almost unbelievable fees paid out to Feinberg's favored friends whom he appointed attorneys for receivers. These fees show the naked truth. It is that the Feinberg candidacy is but the shadow of a former state's attorney, his pal, Robert E. Crowe.

"This professed sympathy of Feinberg's for the poor bank depositors did not become known until he started to run for state's attorney, and when al is said and done, when he gets through with that hippodrome he's runing in his court, you'll find that everything he collects will be offset by what was paid out.

"The poor people with money in those closed banks will have to pay for the friendship that exists between Feinberg and his pal Crowe. Those attorneys' fees alone will run into hundreds of thousands of dollars."

Judge Feinberg, in his talks yesterday, charged that Swanson is friendly with known police characters and predicted that Banker John Bain, one of Swanson's supporters in 1928, would never be prosecuted.

Cites Victory in Cicero.

Thomas J. Courtney, Democratic candidate for state's attorney, declared in his talks yesterday that the Democratic victory in Cicero was proof that his party did not need the support of gangsters.

"I went out there and defied the gangsters on the eve of the election," he said. "The decent people of Cicero have demonstrated their disgust with gangster oppression and the people of Cook county will do the same thing.

"The gangsters were with the Republicans under the former state's attorney and they are with both of factions of the Republican party today, including the candidate for state's attorney supported by the former holder of that office. We Democrats want the gangsters to stay there. We won't have anything to do with them."

MARCONI INVENTS RADIOPHONE FOR USE IN A HOME

GENOA, April 6.—(AP)—Guglielmo Marconi has developed a successful ultra short wave radio telephone, capable of both receiving and sending, according to witnesses who attended a test conducted by him today. The test was over a distance of eight miles on a 52 centimeter wave.

Baron Cancio Masson, mayor of Levanto, who was among the witnesses, said the new radiophone could establish contact with an ordinary telephone system. Hence a person with the radiophone could converse with any one on a wire telephone circuit.

The inventor, seated at the villa of a friend, conversed for ten minutes with Engineers Ricardi and Mathieu of the Marconi company at Villa Gualino, eight miles away. Witnesses said reception was so clear that they all heard the voices of the engineers. The spectators said the apparatus was compact and that with some elaborations it could be used in an ordinary home.

SARCASM GREETS JAPAN'S OFFER OF PHILIPPINE PACT

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

MANILA, April 6.—Ironical treatment of Japan's reported offer to enter into treaty to guarantee the independence of the Philippines was given today in the Manila Bulletin.

"Japan also guaranteed the neutrality of Manchuria," said the Bulletin, "and is now enforcing it."

A sensation was caused by a report in the Herald that Consul General Kimura of Japan had said: "There is room to doubt that Japan would sign any treaty with other powers guaranteeing independence of the Philippines, especially in view of the present unsettled conditions on the Pacific."

DEPLORE WASTE OF WEALTH IN ODD BEQUESTS

Meeting Voices Plea for Wisdom in Charity.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Wisdom in philanthropy and solution of problems arising from crankish or unwise restrictions laid on bequests by donors are topics of discussion at a two day conference of 70 representatives of midwest colleges, church boards and philanthropic agencies closing tonight at the Windermere hotel. The conference is sponsored by the Federal Council of Churches in America.

At yesterday morning's session Rush C. Butler, Chicago attorney, illustrating foolish bequests, told of a man back in the horse and buggy days who bequeathed $350,000 to an anti-cruelty society "for the establishment of horse troughs throughout the world." This bequest, he pointed out, is practically useless now.

Ben Franklin's Mistake.

Another unwise bequest cited was Benjamin Franklin's fund for young apprentices in Boston and New York. The Franklin endowment was described in a paper prepared for the conference by Henry E. Sargent of the American Bankers' association, New York. Even the wise Benjamin Franklin, Mr. Sargent said, did not foresee the time when the indentured apprentice system would disappear.

In an address at the afternoon session Prof. George G. Bogart of the University of Chicago told of a fund establishing a Philadelphia home for retired ministers where tobacco and wives were excluded. After great difficulty, he said, these requirements were set aside by court order on the ground that no retired ministers could be found who would agree to live under such restrictions.

Horse Troughs for the World.

Another trust pointed out by conference leaders as a reason for a uniform system of writing trust agreements was set up in 1852 by Mayor Byron Mullandphy of St. Louis "to aid distressed emigrants passing through St. Louis to seek homes in the west."

The chairman of the conference is President Donald J. Cowling of Carleton college, Northfield, Minn. "We should make it clear to trust companies that it is to their interest as well as to ours that we be advised of possible gifts from wealthy persons which might be administered through trust funds," said Dr. Cowling.

In reply to this Attorney Butler told the conference that institutions represented in its membership should let trust companies know their financial status and charitable appeal and thus invite consideration of wealthy donors.

CERMAK HUNTING $350,000 TO PAY PRIMARY CLERKS

Mayor Cermak held a conference yesterday with County Judge Jarecki and County Treasurer McDonough in an effort to find $350,000 for the payment of clerks and judges in the primary next Tuesday.

They were unable to solve the problem, and will meet again on the same subject. Meanwhile, banks will be approached with a request that they buy tax warrants from the county, which must pay the officials.

City firemen assembled yesterday afternoon at Carmen's hall, Ashland avenue and Van Buren streets, at the call of Mayor Cermak, who gave them a detailed explanation of the city's financial condition and asked them to be patient while the city is solving its fiscal problems.

HARRISON GIBES AT HOOVER PLEA FOR ECONOMIES

All Talk, He Insists, for Political Effect.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 6.—[Special.]—The nearer election day approaches the more words on economy are uttered by President Hoover, but the less specific are the words, Senator Pat Harrison [Dem., Miss.] charged in the senate today as he bitterly assailed the President's recent messages to congress urging reduction in government expenditures.

Then Senator Glenn [Rep., Ill.] came to the defense of the administration by shrugging his shoulders, throwing up his hands in dismay, and asking the Democrats across the aisle this question:

"What in the world would you have the President do? Feb. 17 he asked for power to bring about the very economies the senator from Mississippi urges, and you denied him the power and called him a would-be tyrant, a despot, a Nero. Now, because he begs congress to do what they wouldn't let him do, you call him a spineless creature. What is the answer?"

Awakened Too Late, Says Harrison.

The answer, according to Senator Harrison, is that "the President didn't catch the idea of economy until the last few days. If he gets an idea he always delays too long; always waits until the horse is out of the stable before he locks the door."

Long ago, Mr. Harrison argued, the President should have seen the handwriting of reduced expenses on the wall of his office and he then should have summoned his cabinet officers to him. Picking out the secretary of commerce [and the Democrats particularly enjoy singling out the department over which Mr. Hoover was formerly chief], Senator Harrison said he should have called in Mr. Lamont and told him:

"That 54 million dollars you asked for is too much. You say you've cut it some; but you'll have to cut it some more."

Asks "Cut or Resign" Policy.

If Secretary Lamont had refused to cut it further, then President Hoover, according to Senator Harrison's theory, should have said:

"All right, you send in your resignation. I will get somebody who will do it."

When the senator from Mississippi shouted "and that technique should have applied to everybody," up rose Senator Smoot [Rep., Utah] to defend Secretary of the Interior Wilbur for his recent suggested reductions in his department. Senator Harrison turned on Senator Smoot a most beguiling smile and murmured:

"If the senator from Utah were President, he would slash, he would cut to the bone, because he is a real economist. Why, he'd make the present President look like a doll baby in comparison with his wonderful efforts along lines of economy."

The lean, lugubrious Mr. Smoot blushed red at the reference to "doll baby."

Senator Harrison pulled out a clipping from THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE for March 29 and read an item about the South Bend, Ind., chamber of commerce passing a resolution asking for the abolishment of the commerce department. After reading it he added:

"Now, some of those men no doubt were Republicans. There are not many of them left, but some of those probably were Republicans."

Glenn Denounces Denouncers.

When Senator Harrison had concluded his criticism of the President for not coming out "in direct and manly fashion" and making specific economy recommendations, Senator Glenn denounced the denouncers:

"We want to evade all responsibility ourselves, then blame the President for everything; that's the whole game here. We want him to specify every little item, and, when he does, one faction will attack one item, another group will pick on another item, and nothing will be accomplished."

Government extravagance, while a very real problem just now, is really partly the fault of private business, the senator from Illinois pointed out. Private business, private individuals spent, expanded, never counted the cost in the boom days, and government followed suit.

"They who cry loudest condemning congress for extravagance are the ones who set the bad example," he charged.

"We followed the miracle men of American finance into the paths of folly, and it is our solemn duty to follow them now when they, ahead of government, have reduced expenditures. Having followed them to the peaks, we must follow them to the depths and cut to the bone."

FLOWER SHOW IS CROWDED AFTER BENNETT STORY

Attendance at the sixth annual flower show of the Garden club of Illinois at Navy pier, jumped more than 50 per cent yesterday. From the opening on Saturday until Tuesday the turnstiles showed an average of 15,000 admissions from 10 a. m. to 10 p. m. daily. Although yesterday was somewhat chilly and cloudy the attendance jumped to 23,000. Mrs. William L. Karcher, president of the club, stated that in the judgment of the sponsors the increase was largely due to an article about the show, written by James O'Donnell Bennett and published in THE TRIBUNE yesterday.

Oust Cop for Profanity in Presence of Women

Two policemen, Daniel P. O'Brien of the South Chicago station and Emmett J. Irwin of the Kensington station, were discharged from the force yesterday after trials before the civil service commission. Irwin was charged with intoxication and O'Brien with using profane language and conduct unbecoming a police officer. The testimony in the O'Brien case was that the policeman had used profane language in the presence of two women.

MILLS ASSAILS HOUSE MEASURE TAX ON INCOMES

Backs Capitalism Before Senate Committee.

and that it believed banks and bond transactions should be exempted under the provision limiting income tax deductions for securities losses.

Lacking definite figures, which the treasury has not yet submitted, it was estimated that Mr. Mills' recommendation, if adopted, would mean striking out of the bill some 175 to 200 millions of revenue, which must be replaced by other taxes.

One substitute which Mr. Mills said he would recommend is a tax on bank checks, estimated to produce 85 millions.

Any of the taxes in the original treasury program, the secretary asserted, was better than the taxes he wanted stricken.

Sees Harm to Business.

Chunky, red faced, forceful of gesture, Secretary Mills told what the house provisions would do to already depressed business.

"The cumulative effect of all these provisions is very great," he said. "They tend to converge the full weight of each of them upon capital actively employed in business and to discourage the normal flow of capital into industry and commerce at a time when business men are hesitant and industry stagnant. Their combined restrictive effect magnified by the deadening influence of the depression will in my judgment tend to retard business recovery.

"What we want to accomplish above all else at the present time is to break down the vicious circle of deflation of credit, industrial stagnation, falling prices, and loss of purchasing power. To put men to work capital must go to work. Credit must be sought and freely offered. But capital must see some chance of profit to compensate for the risk. Business men will not borrow and banks will not lend unless the enterprise offers some fair prospect of return.

"Yet the particular provisions to which I refer, and which were written into the bill at the very last minute, certainly without any great amount of consideration, have a definitely inhibiting effect."

Urges Slash in Costs.

But this was not the only message Secretary Mills carried to the senators headed by Senator Reed Smoot [Rep., Utah], committee chairman, who sat about the rim of the long, green baize covered table.

He warned them that they must cut the cost of government.

"When asked to assume an enormously heavy tax burden," he said, "the people are entitled to have the cost of government reduced to a minimum and every expenditure not essential to the proper functioning of government eliminated."

"This is one of the essential tasks which confronts the executive and legislative branches of the government. It is a fundamental and indispensable element in our program. The more you examine the difficulties of raising adequate revenue the more you will appreciate the compelling necessity of addressing yourselves as well to the task of reducing the cost of government."

Discuss Estate Taxes.

When it came to a discussion of the estate tax, which the house lifted to a maximum rate of 45 per cent, and Senator Connally [Dem., Tex.] suggested that "the states ought to be entitled to levy their own inheritance taxes and the federal government to levy its taxes," Mr. Mills was moved to make a vigorous reply.

"If you are going to have the federal government and the state governments taxing the same subject entirely independently," he declared, "you are going to have the greatest tax chaos in this country that you have ever seen.

"We are rapidly approaching that point, and I venture to say that before another year is up what you gentlemen will be considering is the relationship between state and federal taxes, because there is a very direct relationship."

He flung out a hand toward Senator La Follette [radical Rep., Wis.], sitting across the table.

"In your state, Senator La Follette," Mr. Mills went on, "you have a 14 per cent tax on incomes. Now, you cannot in levying an income tax just blindly shut your eyes to the fact that Wisconsin has a 14 per cent income tax. What we have got to do is to recognize that there exists a real comity between the federal and the state governments, and we have got to respect the rights of each and adjust our respective systems of taxation so that the unfortunate taxpayer will not be crucified between two different systems of taxes in two separate sovereignties acting independently on the same taxpayer."

It is the state and local taxes that are crushing the people and not the federal taxes, Mr. Mills went on. Farmer and city dweller, both are being "crucified" by real estate and other local taxes, he asserted.

Senator La Follette wanted to know more about the necessity for balancing the budget. Why not by borrowing as the country did during the war? he inquired.

"That is the reason for the huge war debt," Mr. Mills replied.

"Why deal with it by the year, saying that the budget must be balanced at the end of this year or that?" asked the Wisconsin senator. "Could the budget balancing period not be somewhat prolonged and the burden spread out?"

Points to Growing Deficit.

"We are not dealing with a single year. At the end of 1931 we had a deficit of more than 900 millions; at the end of this fiscal year we shall have an additional deficit of 2¼ billions and we have not yet done anything about it," was the secretary's reply.

"Then you think that to fail to balance the budget would be an unsound and unwise policy?" said Senator La Follette.

"It would be a dangerous policy," corrected Mr. Mills.

"The nation that hasn't the courage, the guts, to tax itself to pay its bills," he concluded, "is on the toboggan and no one can tell how far down that toboggan will take it."

The secretary's statement showed that revenue for the fiscal year 1933 under existing laws would amount to only $2,375,000,000, with expenditures to be met of $4,113,000,000, leaving a deficit of $1,738,000,000, including the sinking fund requirements, or of $1,241,000,000 with the sinking fund excluded.

HOUSE SHARPENS SHEARS TO SNIP HOOVER BUDGET

Members 'Play Hooky' as Debates Begin.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 6.—[Special.]—To the accompaniment of much oratory assailing government extravagance, the house today began consideration of the 1933 appropriations for the White House and 29 boards, commissions and other independent offices.

The bill submitted by the appropriations committee calls for a total expenditure for these agencies of $936,446,506, of which $949,237,795 is for the veterans' administration alone. The total of the committee bill is $319,750,271 less than the 1932 expenditures so far appropriated for and $51,161,732 less than President Hoover recommended in his budget.

Veteran Budget Cut.

The reduction below the budget figures is almost entirely achieved, however, by a 50 million dollar cut in the 150 millions Mr. Hoover estimated would be necessary for loans to veterans on adjusted service certificates in 1933. If 100 millions should prove insufficient for this purpose, this hoped for saving will be wiped out by a deficiency appropriation at the next session of congress.

In the meantime the senate appropriations committee complied with the mandate of the senate when it recommitted the interior department appropriation bill with instructions to cut the total 10 per cent below the amount allowed by the house. As passed by the house the bill called for $50,446,432. The senate raised it to $54,870,754. Today the senate committee approved a revised bill aggregating $45,398,672 which will be reported to the senate tomorrow.

Drastic Slashes Made.

Comparison of the bill first framed by the committee with the bill as revised today constitutes a testimonial to the economic medicine administered—before and after taking.

Instead of being increased $115,000 over the house figures the general land appropriation is reduced $75,000. Instead of receiving $374,902 more the bureau of Indian affairs gets $1,062,900 less. The bureau of reclamation item is cut $2,674,860 instead of being boosted $3,174,000. Instead of $248,240 more, the geological survey receives $98,500 less. The national park service is to get along with $500,000 less instead of $1,003,000 more.

The expenses of Secretary Wilbur's office, untouched before, are reduced $31,500 in the new bill. Other cuts are $105,000 in the allowance for the bureau of education and $50,000 in operating expense of the Alaska railroad. The house bill's allotment of $8,000,000 for construction of the Boulder cañon dam is reduced to $6,000,000.

Show Lack of Interest.

Despite the clamor for economy, the consideration of this billion dollar appropriation bill attracted fewer than 100 of the 433 members to the floor. In fact, there has been a noticeable lack of interest in the framing of the appropriation bills notwithstanding the universal realization that there must be drastic curtailment of expenditures if the budget is to be balanced.

Up to date four appropriation bills have been passed by the house. The only Illinois members who took part in the debates on all of them were Adolph J. Sabath [Dem.] and Claude V. Parsons [Dem.]. Participating in the debate on three bills was Charles Adkins [Rep.], and in the discussion of two of them were Oscar De Priest [Rep.], Morton D. Hull [Rep.], William E. Hull [Rep.], Carl R. Chindblom [Rep.], William W. Arnold [Dem.], and Kent E. Keller [Dem.], James T. Igoe [Dem.], Fred A. Britten [Rep.], William P. Holaday [Rep.], J. Earl Major [Dem.], and Charles A. Karch [Dem.] took part in the debate of one bill.

Unheard on any of the bills were Richard Yates [Rep.], William H. Dieterich [Dem.], Edward A. Kelly [Dem.], Harry P. Beam [Dem.], Leonard W. Schuetz [Dem.], Peter C. Granata [Rep.], Frank R. Reid [Rep.], John T. Buckbee [Rep.], William R. Johnson [Rep.], John C. Allen [Rep.], B. M. Chiperfield [Rep.], Homer W. Hall [Rep.], and Henry T. Rainey [Dem.].

Byrns Ready for Fray.

Representative Joseph W. Byrns [Dem., Tenn.], chairman of the appropriations committee, intends to take the floor tomorrow to challenge the President to submit specific economy recommendations.

"Mr. Hoover is one of our most extravagant spenders," said Mr. Byrns. "You will notice that he is proposing no economies in the White House establishment. He has four high salaried secretaries where his predecessors got along with one, and every one of his four secretaries has an expensive automobile and chauffeurs, all maintained at government expense."

Representative Clifton A. Woodrum [Dem., Va.] was in charge of the independent offices bill, but there were some of its provisions which he did not attempt to defend, such as the $152,135 for the board of mediation and control which is composed of five members drawing salaries of $12,000 each.

"They sit in Washington part of the time and are out of Washington a great deal of the time," he said. "The fundamental idea underlying the board is sound, but the need is negative. That board should be abolished."

Demands for abolition of the farm board marked the debate on the 1933 allowance for that institution which the committee reduced from $1,880,000 to $1,000,000.

Slaps at Farm Board.

"On the one hand," said Representative Carl Vinson [Dem., Ga.], "we have the department of agriculture teaching the farmers to make larger yields per acre than ever before, to make two blades of grass grow where one grew before, and on the other hand we have the farm board telling the farmers to destroy every third row of cotton. There is no use to finance these two institutions. One must certainly be wrong.

"A quarter of a billion dollars admitted lost, unknown millions dissipated or wasted, the generosity of a nation to aid our basic industry poorly administered, mounting distress and continued difficulty among farmers leave us with only one sensible course to pursue—abolish this instrument of inefficiency and contributory distress.

"I say to you that the hour has come when the people of this nation in every walk of life are demanding as never before that the useless boards and bureaus be abolished and there is no better place for congress to start than with the federal farm board."

Board Branded Extravagant.

"Although the farm board," said Mr. Woodrum, "represents the most impoverished industry in America, yet it has exorbitant ideas about spending money. It is very liberal with other peoples' money. You have the ridiculous spectacle of your 500 million dollar farm board with men who are willing to serve this impoverished industry at salaries of $12,000, and yet the Grain Stabilization corporation and the Cotton Coöperative association pay much larger salaries. A $10,000 man is a very low man in their ranks. They run from $20,000 to $75,000.

"The answer will be made that the federal farm board has nothing to do with this. This is a specious argument. Somebody is paying them, either the federal government or they are getting it out of the pockets of the farmers and they are racketeers whomever they get it from."

Chairman John McDuffie [Dem., Ala.] of the special house economy committee said today that his committee will recommend the abolition of the commerce department's steamboat inspection service as an economy move. The action, he said, will save about $350,000. A proposal to charge radio stations a fixed rate for services rendered by the commerce department, thereby making the radio division self-supporting, is also being considered, Mr. McDuffie stated, though no action has been taken.

Refuses Farewell to Bank Bandit

Miss Evelyn Kiser of Mishawaka, Ind., who had been courted by Donald Loftus, confessed bank bandit. She refused to bid him farewell yesterday when he was turned over to McHenry county authorities for trial. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Facing Trial

Donald Loftus, the bandit who, after his capture last Saturday in Mishawaka, Ind., confessed the robbery of ten banks, was turned over to McHenry county deputy sheriffs and lodged in the jail at Woodstock last night to face trial on charges of holding up two banks in that county. Miss Evelyn Kiser of Mishawaka, the young woman whom he had been courting, refused to bid him farewell. One of his wives, Evelyn Neath, came twice to visit him in his cell at the detective bureau before he was led away, shackled to a deputy sheriff. Loftus told Sheriff Edinger in the Woodstock jail last night that he intended to plead guilty.

BARKLEY TALKS ECONOMY, BUT IS SHORT ON DETAIL

Vague as to How Burden Is to Be Cut.

Paducah, Ky., April 6.—[Special.]—"Lip service in economy" is not satisfactory, Senator Alben W. Barkley, Democratic senior senator from Kentucky, said tonight.

"The budget will be balanced," the senator said, "by the double process of raising revenue and reducing expenses."

Senator Barkley issued the interview on the eve of his departure for Louisville to attend the convention of the state bar association there tomorrow. Friday he will leave for Washington, where he will make preparations for his keynote speech before the national Democratic convention in Chicago.

"In my opinion," the senator averred, "congress cannot justify the levying of a billion dollars in taxes in times like this unless at the same time it makes every possible effort to reduce the burden of governmental expense."

Senator Barkley steadfastly refused to enter into any of the controversial topics that face the party as it prepares for its convention. The dry law and some intimation of what his "economy program" might be was met with stout silence.

"The Democrats are naturally very interested in an economy program," the statement said, "We have repeatedly said that neither national, state nor local government can be satisfied with mere lip service in economy.

"In the senate we have sent back to the appropriations committee two of the annual appropriations bills with instructions that they must be reduced a total amount by not less than 10 per cent. This shows that a real effort is being made to reduce the burden of governmental expenses.

"I believe every possible effort will be made to cut the annual appropriations for operation of the national government as drastically as possible."

STIMSON STANDS PAT ON APPROVAL OF WORLD COURT

Borah Sees Action in This Session.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 6.—[Special.]—Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson appeared today before the senate foreign affairs committe and reaffirmed the position he had previously outlined in a letter to the committee that the Root protocol for adherence of the United States to the world court amply protects us against any advisory opinions. He held to this theory under repeated questioning by Senators Johnson [Rep., Cal.], La Follette [radical Rep., Wis.], and Pittman [Dem., Nev.].

Senator Borah [radical Rep., Ida.], chairman of the committee, declined to make public the testimony, given in executive session, until it had been checked by Secretary Stimson. He indicated that there is a good chance of the world court going to a vote in this session. Hearings on it, he declared, are at an end.

Later in the day, Senator Capper [Rep., Kas.] introduced a resolution extending the scope of the Kellogg anti-war pact to prevent American recognition of any treaty or agreement created contrary to the covenant of the peace pact.

Senator Capper's resolution would have the United States declare an embargo on all war materials against any nation violating the pact.

HUSBAND LOSES FIFI WIDENER BY DECREE IN RENO

Reno, Nev., April 6.—(AP)—Josephine "Fifi" Widener Holden, of Philadelphia, divorced her second husband, Milton W. Holden, here today, and smilingly asserted she was not contemplating another marriage.

Reputed one of the wealthiest women ever to secure a Reno divorce, Mrs. Holden walked from the courtroom and announced "it wasn't so bad." Attorneys said the charge on which the decree was granted was mental cruelty.

Mrs. Holden married Holden Dec. 2, 1926. Her first husband was Carter Randolph Leidy, member of a prominent Philadelphia family, with whom she eloped to Knoxville, Tenn., in 1920 at the age of 17. They were divorced.

ORDER JURYMEN TO APPEAR FOR ELECTION QUIZ

Subpoenas were served by deputy sheriffs yesterday on a special venire of 100 men, from whom 23 are to be chosen tomorrow morning to serve on a special grand jury investigating campaign charges made by the two leading Republican candidates for state's attorney.

Circuit Judge Michael Feinberg, one of the candidates, who called the special grand jury to conduct an inquiry into alleged violence and terrorism, said the names of the veniremen are being kept a secret. From his press bureau in his chambers it was said Louis E. Hart, the newly appointed special assistant state's attorney, will take over an office in the county building and will probably name one or more assistants today.

Mr. Hart said that he would do nothing prior to the primary which might be used as political capital. He declared he is not in politics and does not expect to be. He added that he had never known Judge Feinberg until Tuesday.

"The investigation will be made without fear or favor," he said. "False registrations and terrorism, as charged in the petition for the grand jury, will be investigated first."

A Sound Investment

Millions have been lost through depreciation of investments during the depression. Fortunes have melted away; the volume of business has greatly shrunk; and measures of economy have in many instances become necessary. Nevertheless, the men who have patronized the better Tailors, the better Shirtmakers, the better Haberdashers and other shops of high quality standards find their wardrobes a great pleasure, a sound investment, and an asset in personal appearance.

Quality merchandise through the assurance of its long wear, its becomingness and distinctive character has many advantages. Regardless of conditions, we strictly maintain our established standards of quality in Shirts to measure, Neckwear, Hosiery, and other unusual requisites. Lower prices prevail in our four Shops—New York, Chicago, London, and Paris.

MASSIE JURY TO BE ABOUT HALF CHINESE

Panel Expected to Be Filled This Week.

the jury in some manner. One young part-Hawaiian was found to be a member of the navy reserve.

Admits Opinion on Guilt.

The defense excused Samuel J. Lyle, white shipwright born in Nova Scotia, who has been here for 49 years. Douglas Alexander Cooke, member of a prominent island missionary family, said he has an opinion on the guilt of Kahahawai which could be changed by evidence. A fine blond type with culture, thought, and character, he said he could be a fair juror. Both sides held him.

W. R. Chellgard, white advertising salesman, was dismissed by the prosecution and his place was taken by Francis Drake Rosehill, Hawaiian bookkeeper.

The defense excused Kenneth Sun Chuin and his place was filled by Young Sang Lau, an elderly Chinese grocer. With great affability he said it is his opinion that Kahahawai was killed by the people, but he was excused because he could not understand long English words. Harold Clarence Nott, white cashier, said he could be an impartial juror but smiled as he said it.

Postal Clerk Rejected.

The prosecution excused Manuel Souza, postal clerk. Alaf Lauritz Sorenson was called and questioned as to whether he knew Walter Dillingham, head of firms which do a large business with the navy and one of the men who pressed early for a clean-up in Honolulu.

The defense used its sixth challenge against Charles C. Hao, naval reserve youth.

Hoon Chong Yim, salesman for American factories, said he did a large business with the army and navy. He said he is "not afraid" and that he would make a good juror. He Choy Zane, Chinese bookkeeper, said he has an opinion on the guilt of the defendants and in fairness should not sit.

Walter K. Kealoha, Hawaiian stevedore, came in. He was like the much discussed "beach boys" in appearance. He said he has no opinion and would give a fair trial. He wore large smoked glasses. He quit school in the sixth grade.

Disqualified By Court.

Darrow sought to remove him as obviously unfit. The prosecutor resisted. The court gave an educational test and said it is a borderline case, but after much cogitation declared he was unqualified.

Willy B. Ebeyer, German, took the chair. He has been here five years. He said he looked up the word "presumption" on this occasion but forgot it in court. Darrow left him without a question.

Bernard Stevens Ahlo, a young Hawaiian, was accepted by the prosecution. He said he has a "viewpoint" but no opinion. He is dark brown with sleek black hair. He remained in the box.

The eighth defense challenge was against Hoon Chong Yim.

Hawaii Report Says Vice Flourishes at Honolulu

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 6.—[Special.]—Prostitution and vice flourish in Honolulu, according to an official report on crime conditions in the Hawaiian islands placed before the senate by the department of justice. In this document, prepared by Assistant Attorney General Seth W. Richardson at the direction of a senate resolution, the statement is made that prostitution is exceedingly prevalent, while vice conditions in Honolulu are comparable with those found in the slums in oriental cities.

SETH W. RICHARDSON.
[Harris & Ewing.]

The justice report, a summary of which was made public last Monday, followed an epidemic of rape cases in the islands culminated by the rape of a naval officer's wife and the slaying of her alleged attacker. Mrs. Grace Fortescue, mother of Mrs. Thalia Massie, the naval officer's wife, Lieut. Thomas H. Massie, and two naval enlisted men are now on trial in Honolulu, charged with the murder of Joseph Kahahawai, the man accused of attacking Mrs. Massie.

Minimizes Sex Crimes.

While presenting a sordid picture of vice conditions in the territory of Hawaii, the Richardson investigation group minimized reports that an abnormal number of sex crimes have occurred in the territory recently. He presented figures showing that but nine sex cases of violence against white women had been placed in the Honolulu official records during the last five years.

"Unquestionably there is a large amount of vice in certain sections of Honolulu, although it is conducted on an individual as opposed to an organized basis," Mr. Richardson said. "While vice cannot be said to be located in any particular section or sections, it is to a considerable extent confined to and is inseparably associated with a few small areas, such as Hell's Half Acre, Tin Can alley, Aala park, etc., not far removed from important business or residential districts. In squalor, crowded living conditions, apparent lack of sanitation, insidiousness, and vulgar practices these areas are on a scale comparable to the slums in cities of the orient.

Control Almost Impossible.

"Surrounded by innocent-appearing stores and shops and affording entrance only by means of narrow, inconspicuous alleys or passageways through shops, they are not apparent to the passerby. The existence of such areas tends to foster vice and to make its control impossible. Too much stress cannot be placed upon the necessity for the board of health and other civic organizations to eliminate such slum areas before the police will be able effectively to control vice in Honolulu.

"There is a large amount of prostitution in Honolulu, as might well be expected in view of the presence of the service personnel and the large proportion of male persons. All the evidence available indicates that it is conducted on an individual rather than a syndicated basis. Although there are some houses where as many as 8 or 10 prostitutes are employed, there does not appear to be any organization or concerted action on the part of any number of houses.

The report here classified the number of white and native prostitutes, of which there were 290 known.

According to the Richardson report the two chief classes of patrons of prostitutes are the service personnel and the Filipino laborers from the plantations. Other regular customers are derived from crews of vessels passing in and out of Honolulu, the report said.

"The location of the chief 'white' houses of prostitution," said the report, "of which there are about 25, and the names and addresses of the white prostitutes, most of whom come from the mainland, are well known to the civil police and the service police. Because of the careful manner in which these houses operate, convictions for prostitution are difficult to secure, and, generally speaking, the police do not disturb these houses in the absence of evidence of white slavery or of crimes other than prostitution. In fact, the evidence discloses instances of undue friendly relations between prostitutes and members of the police force.

Invade Residential Districts.

"Prostitution in Honolulu is not localized. Most of the 'white' houses are located on upper Fort and Nunanu streets, and on Kuakini, North School and South Vineyard streets. Many of these houses are close to, and some are actually in, respectable residential districts. Most of the native houses are to be found on River street between Kukui and Vineyard streets, Aala street and Aala park, Liliha street, and Tin Can alley. There are numerous reports, some of a reliable character, that practices of the most vicious character are carried on in some of these places.

"For many years prior to 1917 a so-called restricted district was maintained in the section of Iwilei, now occupied largely by pineapple canneries. At that time an effort was made to confine all prostitutes to this district. This effort was largely successful, but the evidence now available indicates that little supervision was maintained over the district by the police. In 1917 the restricted district was abolished, partly as a military measure.

Disagree on Restricted Area.

"There are many prominent citizens of Honolulu who contend that vice conditions would be immensely improved by the reëstablishment of a restricted district, into which all prostitutes would be segregated with official supervision. Other citizens equally prominent and intelligent point out the obvious objections to a restricted district, but, conceding the impossibility of the complete eradication of prostitution in Honolulu, contend that a quasi restriction somewhat along the lines now being followed is the best solution. No attempt is here made to answer this age old problem other than to suggest that in view of the large proportion of males in the population an attempt to eradicate prostitution entirely might result in a serious increase in the volume of sex crimes of violence."

Hines as commander of the Philippine department of the United States army. Maj. Gen. Booth expects to complete his army career in the Philippines, as did Maj. Gen. Hines, who is retiring on account of his age.

STRIKE THREAT MADE AS 27 LOSE HOSPITAL JOBS

Emmet T. Flood, labor organizer, agent for a group known as the Illinois State Hospital and Penal Institution Nurses and Attendants' union, threatened last night to call a sympathy strike affecting all departments of the county psychopathic hospital unless 27 discharged orderlies were taken back to work. The employés lost their jobs by reason of a $166,000 economy cut in the county nursing service.

Flood said that 41 orderlies not affected by the cut would refuse to work today, out of sympathy for those discharged. He said he would ask teamsters, janitors, engineers, scrubwomen, and window washers to quit also.

Dr. Francis Gerty, director of the hospital, seemed unconcerned by Flood's threats. In the event of a strike, he said, graduate and student nurses would be able to keep the patients comfortable. Emmett Whealan, president of the county board, called Floor a "self-appointed union agent" and expressed doubt that responsible union officials would support Flood's position.

SMALL PROPERTY OWNERS THRONG IN TO PAY TAXES

But Collections Still Lag Behind Other Years.

Six thousand to ten thousand persons a day have been paying their 1930 taxes this week. Nearly all of them are small property owners and the total in taxes collected is relatively small. The largest collection in one day has been in the neighborhood of $3,000,000. In normal years three times that amount is collected in a day, when the penalty date is as near as it is now.

The total collections on the 1930 taxes so far are about $30,000,000 for the property within Chicago, which has been assessed for an aggregate of $234,000,000.

Opens 30 Cashiers' Windows.

County Treasurer McDonough opened 30 cashiers' windows yesterday to accommodate the crowds which thronged the office in the county building. By this method he said taxpayers could be cared for within 15 minutes after they got in one of the 30 waiting lines.

The delinquent date, when penalties will be attached to the tax bills, is April 15. Treasurer McDonough said he expected the size of the crowds will increase daily from now on. Thousands who heretofore have paid their taxes at outlying banks have been driven to the treasurer's office to make their payments this year because many of these banks are closed.

County Asks More Receivers.

The county asked receivers for two more large buildings yesterday because of delinquent taxes. The petitions were filed in the Superior court by Special County Attorney Henry M. Ashton.

One petition is directed against the Michigan-Lake Building corporation, 180 North Michigan avenue. The county has a tax claim of $259,945.58 against this property. The other case is against the Great Northern Majestic company, 20 West Jackson boulevard, which the county claims owes $199,138.96 in taxes.

BRITISH CHURCH OFFERS PASTOR DEFENSE MONEY

Willing to Finance Him Against Its Charges.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, April 6.—The bishop of Norwich is so determined to press the prosecution of the Rev. Harold F. Davidson, rector of Stiffkey, on charges of immorality and molestation of young girls that when the defense counsel announced today that the case must be interrupted while the preacher finds more funds to finance the defense, the counsel for the church offered to supply the money.

The Rev. Mr. Davidson's counsel, W. F. Levy, secured an agreement with Chancellor North at the opening of the hearing this morning for an adjournment of the consistory court inquiry until May 19, an understanding in which the prosecution concurred.

Prosecution Offers Money.

After the luncheon interval, however, Roland Oliver, chief counsel for the bishop, volunteered $1,250 toward the rector's assistance and announced that he would be willing to consider further advances when that is gone. Levy's decision will be announced tomorrow.

Christopher Searle, former British intelligence service officer and an investigator assigned to build up the case against the rector, spent a warm day in the witness chair under a barrage of questions in which he was forced to admit that he took Rosie Ellis, the woman with whom the bishop alleges the rector had illicit relations, to a saloon and gave her drinks while she was being questioned.

Admits Giving Woman Money.

Searle also admitted that he gave the girl $10, but tripped himself up over reasons for his generosity. First he testified that it was compensation for lost time, but later he confessed that a woman investigator during the first interview mentioned that the girl was in need of a new coat and that the money might have been given her so that she could buy one.

Later Searle made a mistake in the date of his interview with Barbara Harris, one of the rector's chief accusers, and was reprimanded by the chancellor. Searle testified that the bishop's sleuths trailed the rector and the 18 year old Barbara for six months.

DRY CHIEF O. K.'S LOOSER REIN ON MEDICAL LIQUOR

Proposes Ending "Pint in 10 Days" Limit.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 6.—[Special.]—Elimination of present restrictions on the frequency and quantity of medicinal liquor prescriptions was indorsed today before the house judiciary committee by Director of Prohibition Amos W. W. Woodcock and Commissioner of Industrial Alcohol James M. Doran.

AMOS W. W. WOODCOCK.

Mr. Woodcock told the committee he was in favor of "cautious modification" of the medicinal liquor restrictions of the Volstead act, which allows only a pint every ten days to each patient. The dry head was of the opinion that regulations drafted by the prohibition bureau with the cooperation of physicians would prove more satisfactory in controlling liquor prescriptions than statutory restrictions.

Mr. Woodcock opposed a proposal by Representative Cellar [Dem., N. Y.] to abolish all restrictions on the number of prescriptions which might be issued by physicians with the result the New York representative announced he would withdraw his suggestion.

Doctors Criticize Plan.

Earlier Commissioner Doran indorsed the proposal on the ground that the medicinal liquor restrictions had proved the source of the most severe criticism directed at the dry law by the medical profession.

Declaring that the prescription limitation "was one of the irritating things in the law that might very well be made subject to regulation rather than to statutory control, Mr. Doran said:

"With respect to the frequency of prescribing for any one patient, I believe that the statutory limitation should be withdrawn.

"I do not believe we should lose control of the number of prescriptions and the quantity that may have to be prescribed."

Mr. Doran made it clear, however, that his indorsement of the proposal to remove the frequency limitation, depended upon retaining stringent regulatory powers to curb diversion of medicinal liquor to illegal channels.

Would O. K. Malt Liquors.

Asked if he thought removal of the restrictions would aid enforcement Mr. Doran stated that he thought "it would not be injurious" and by meeting the approval of the medical profession might better enforcement conditions.

Dr. William C. Woodward, representing the American Medical association declared during his testimony that limitations on prescriptions are a "prohibition on the patient rather than the physician."

"The association believes," he said "that the physician administering the prescription and watching its results is best able to prescribe."

In addition to the proposals now pending to do away with prescription restrictions Representative Goss [Rep., Conn.] today introduced a bill to legalize the prescribing of malt liquors.

Uses Infra Ray

A device to detect kidnapers has been invented by Thomas Marshall Jr., 7449 North Hoyne avenue, and was demonstrated by him yesterday in the scientific crime detection laboratory of Northwestern university. The device consists of an apparatus which projects an infra red light beam on a photostatic cell. When the beam, which is invisible, is broken by an object passing between the projector and the cell, an alarm bell automatically sounds.

WOMAN, AGED 78, WINS GUN DUEL WITH BANDITS

Battles with Pair All Night in Home.

Morris, Ill., April 6.—[Special.]—Miss Kate McArdle, 78 years old, with a .22 caliber rifle as her weapon, battled all last night in her home with two men who demanded the hiding place of her supposed wealth of $50,000. The bandits were armed with a .12 gauge shotgun. She fired 15 bullets through the panels of a stair door in her battle to prevent the men from tearing down the door to get her.

The bandits returned the fire. The men entered her home by breaking a window after she had retired for the night. She heard the breaking glass and grabbed the rifle. One of the bandits told her that they were prohibition agents looking for a still and asked her to come down and help. She refused. They then told her they were after $50,000 they knew she had concealed in the house and were going to get it or kill her. They attempted to pry open the stair door she had locked and she greeted them with a volley from her rifle.

Until daylight she kept guard. When she was certain the men had departed, she walked three-fourths of a mile to the home of a nephew, Phil McArdle, where she collapsed. She is still under a physician's care. The bandits ransacked the entire lower floor of the house and demolished the furniture in searching for the money. They took her radio when they finally departed.

FIRE THREATENS HOME.

Fire swept through the home of Mrs. Augusta De Grazia, a widow, at 357 East 88th place yesterday while she was away and caused $1,000 damage.

Dies of Burns Received When Beard Catches Fire

Burns suffered March 19 when his flowing beard caught afire caused the death of John Naber, 88 years old, in St. Mary's hospital last night. The accident occurred when Naber poked the embers of a stove fire in his home at 1450 Cornell street. A spark flew out and nestled in the beard, setting it afire. Naber tried to extinguish the blaze, but his actions caused his clothing to ignite.

MAN AND WOMAN SENTENCED BY POLAND AS SPIES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WARSAW, April 6.—Antony Staniszewski, an engineer, and his sweetheart were sentenced today to ten and three years' imprisonment respectively by the Warsaw District court on charges of being soviet Russian spies. Their trial was held in secret. Staniszewski was arrested in Vilna last July with incriminating documents in his possession. Police said they had tried to trap him for several years. More than 60 persons have been executed in Poland as soviet spies in the last seven months. Polish authorities charge that soviet spying activities in Poland have become increasingly alarming.

Frees Husband Jailed by Trude in Divorce Case

Superior Judge Michael L. McKinley, acting on a writ of habeas corpus yesterday, freed Arthur Anderson, former owner of a chain of south side gasoline filling stations, from the county jail where he was committed by Circuit Judge Daniel P. Trude on March 31, for a refusal to comply with a property settlement granted his wife, Ruth, when her divorce decree was signed a year ago. Judge McKinley held that since the property settlement was not included in the divorce records, Judge Trude who heard the case lost jurisdiction.

Sovetsky, Wife and Partner Indicted by Federal Jury

John Sovetsky, known as the "million dollar fence," his wife, Martha, and his partner, Sam Ginsberg, were indicted yesterday by the federal grand jury in true bills returned before Federal Judge Barnes charging possession of merchandise stolen from interstate shipments. The three were arrested in Sovetsky's store at 6234 South Western avenue two weeks ago and released on bonds by United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker pending a hearing on the charges. A large quantity of stolen merchandise was discovered in the store.

EGGS AND FISTS LIVEN STUDENT STRIKE BATTLES

Expelled Editor's Friends Riot Over Campus.

New York, April 6.—[Special.]—With eggs and tear gas, fists and fire hose, red paint, placards, and a vast tumult of noise some 4,000 Columbia university students "demonstrated" today for and against the expulsion of Reed Harris, the editor of the student newspaper, The Spectator.

They rioted over the steps of the library and up and down the stairs of Avery hall, the architectural building. Fists and eggs started flying every time an incendiary banner was "unfurled," and the "football crowd," the athletes charged with professionalism by Harris in an editorial campaign that contributed to his dismissal, plunged into the fray time after time.

Numerically they were outnumbered, but in brawn and determination they carried things before them and no banners stayed up for long.

Walk Out of Class.

The Columbia college group was out on strike, and the strikers asserted it was 100 per cent effective, with at least 2,000 students out. That was a little exaggerated. But at least six professors dismissed classes for the day, all but six men walked out of another class, and one professor voluntarily excused any students who wanted to demonstrate.

University authorities were gritting their teeth and smiling pleasantly about the whole affair. Dean Herbert E. Hawkes ,who expelled Harris on the charge of making reckless statements that he could not prove and for "discourtesy," received a delegation of strikers a little after noon and listened to their demand that Harris be reinstated and that a committee be allowed to inspect the food and cleanliness of John Jay dining hall, another subject of Harris' editorials.

No Retaliation Likely.

The dean categorically denied the first demand and said that as for inspecting the dining hall that was a matter for the hall's manager to decide.

"We're not going to take any retaliatory action," Assistant Dean N. M. McKnight told reporters when they tried to see Dean Hawkes.

OVERDOSE OF SLEEPING DRUG FATAL TO GIRL

Miss Hilda Rose Kalish, 23 years old, a stenographer, died last night at the Woodlawn hospital from an overdose of sleeping medicine. She was found unconscious Monday in the home of her brother-in-law, Morton L. Pereira, 6720 Oglesby avenue, an architect, where she had been staying recently. In her room were found several tablets of sleeping medicine.

Sunday night Miss Kalish went out with Attorney Sidney Alexander of 7825 Phillips avenue. He escorted her to the Pereira home about 1 o'clock Monday morning. Catherine McGann, a maid, admitted her. The next morning Miss Kalish was discovered in a stupor. Dr. Jacob Meyers ordered her to the hospital. She never regained consciousness. Mr. Pereira said last night that Miss Kalish had been ill recently. Her home, he said, was at 5230 Drexel boulevard.

BUCK PASSING IN WASHINGTON.

The roar of the taxpayers is beginning to be heard in Washington.

On Monday the President addressed a message to congress recommending the appointment of a joint commission, composed of members of the house, the senate, and representatives of the executive departments, to prepare a program for the reduction of government expenses. The President contemplates the consolidation of some bureaus, the temporary suppression of other functions and the permanent suppression of still others.

The proposal was greeted with unmerited derision by Democrats in the house and senate. The President was accused of dodging his own responsibility and of insincerity. To these charges he has now replied, saying he knows of no other practical means of bringing about the desired result than the one he put forward. That statement, whether the Democrats accept it or not, is a direct challenge to them to produce an economy program of their own. Apparently it is a challenge which they are not yet willing to accept. Mr. Garner, who may be presumed to speak for his party, replied that he would guarantee to enact any program of specific savings which the President submitted.

There may be a subconscious notion in Washington that this passing of compliments back and forth from the executive to congress and from Democrats to Republicans will wear out those who are demanding substantial reductions. There is no foundation for such hopes. The taxpayers are demanding results. They are determined to punish those office holders who do nothing to bring the desired results about and to reward those who do. If the President wishes to take advantage of this situation he will waste no time in submitting the specific recommendations which Mr. Garner has requested; and if congressmen enjoy life in Washington and wish to continue to enjoy it they will accept the President's proposals for a joint commission to consider additional economies.

A word of caution might be added. The proposals to consolidate departments and bureaus may promise a good deal more economy than is actually achieved by such measures. Illinois has had experience which is illuminating. Under Gov. Lowden the state's services were reorganized along lines similar to those proposed by the President for the national government. The results have not been altogether reassuring. The expenses of state government have continued to mount at an alarming rate. A few office holders were dropped, but others, and many of them in higher salary groups, were taken on. Commissions and bureaus which formerly reported directly to the governor now are administered by a hierarchy of officials, all drawing substantial salaries.

Still, a little money might be saved if, for example, the President's recommendation for transferring the functions of the shipping board to the department of commerce were adopted. But the only way to effect large savings is not by such a transfer, but by eliminating the services performed by the shipping board. Our government is going to continue to cost about as much as it does today until it quits doing many of the things it does today. That is axiomatic. If the aim were to reduce expenditures by a few millions, consolidations might, perhaps, serve the purpose. But the need is for reductions running into hundreds of millions. That entails dropping not only bureaus but whole departments overboard.

TREES FOR TAXPAYERS.

Incredible as it may appear, it is nevertheless true that the Cook county forest preserve district is still acquiring lands. The real estate column the other day reported that the transfer of title to three parcels in Northfield, Bremen and Leyden townships had just been recorded. The three purchases represented an expenditure of some $315,000. Just when these lands were bought and how they were paid for does not appear, but presumably the purchases are of recent date.

The forest preserve today has liabilities of $1,466,000 exclusive of $2,601,000 of bond and interest maturities coming due this year. No one can say with anything approaching certainty what its cash income in 1932 is going to be, but it is as certain as anything well can be that the income will not be sufficient to meet its existing debts and pay current expenses for maintaining the present forest preserve establishment.

There has been and is no question of the desirability of acquiring lands for the outer park belt. If the revenue situation were not what it is there might even be some excuse for acquiring lands now when prices are low. But today, when the payment of school teachers is months in arrears, when firemen and policemen are having payless pay days and the taxpayers are groaning under their load, the expenditure of money for the purchase of more park lands is an almost incredible folly.

HAWAIIAN GOVERNMENT.

After an investigation of conditions in Hawaii the department of justice recommends that the courts, prosecutor, and police be directly responsible to the national government. Specific recommendations are for the abolition of the offices of county sheriff and county attorneys, to be replaced by a high sheriff, who would have exclusive control of the police and constabulary, and by an attorney, both appointed by the President. The appointment of judges of the Hawaiian Supreme and Circuit courts would also be vested in the President, and the governor would have authority to select the treasurer and some other officials.

The findings of the assistant attorney general who has been investigating, Mr. Richardson, are not sensational. Conditions in the island are on the whole creditable to its people. But there is "extreme laxity" in enforcement of law, and the police administration is "impotent, undisciplined, neglectful, and unintelligent." This, obviously, invites disaster. The investigators say: "We therefore believe that the unusual conditions of race, society, and industry in the territory make a continuance of such laxity fraught with much social and political danger."

Of course, these proposals will open the floodgates of anti-imperialist oratory. They are nevertheless in the interest not only of our own peace, but in that of the islands, saving, of course, the politicians. No discrimination in the substantive laws is proposed. The guaranties of civil right will remain and are likely to be more secure under the new system than under present conditions. But the consideration which justifies and indeed insists upon the proposed régime is national security.

The Hawaiian islands are the outpost and buttress of our defense in the Pacific. We have signed away our right to fortify bases in the Philippines, in Guam, or any of our islands in the Pacific except the Hawaiian group. Hawaii, therefore, has for us a special character which will increase in importance with the years. It is a citadel which must be taken by any adversary who would invade our country, and it should be made as nearly impregnable as possible. We cannot afford to have an unstable situation in the islands. Their population is of mixed strains, by great preponderance Asiatic, and, while we do not ascribe disloyalty to any of the peoples enjoying American citizenship in the islands, the advisability of a direct control from Washington seems to us clear, both in the interest of the United States and that of the island population.

The Pacific is the arena of great events in which vital interests of the American people are and will be at stake. The Hawaiian islands are themselves a stake, now in our hands, but to be kept only by foresight and firmness. They must be considered not as one of the sovereign states of the mainland, but as a fortress. The District of Columbia has a special régime because it is the seat of the central government. The Hawaiian islands should have a special régime because they occupy a special position and are a special responsibility of the national system of defense.

NULLIFICATION BY EXCISES.

A singular peace abides with the Anti-Saloon league and allied organizations of the truly good when the signs of the times might start the wildest alarums. In truth, the devil himself has arisen among them and they seem to be fraternizing with him. They may be so preoccupied in hunting dimes for the empty chest that they have not looked about them or they may be in one of their strange periods of indifference to the behavior of their political pawns.

The excise tax which the dry house of representatives has voted on malt sirups, wort, and grape concentrates is the nearest thing to nullification of the Volstead act which has popped up in ten years. It is in its purpose a tax levied upon the making of intoxicating beverages, and the revenue, $46,000,000 estimated, is entirely dependent upon the anticipated breaking of the federal prohibition law. The dry government of the United States has levied a tax upon outlawed beverages and is encouraging the manufacture of them. That is in real effect the nullification of the act for profit by its enforcers.

THE STORY OF CINCINNATI.

[St. Louis-Post Dispatch.]

Judge Samuel Seabury of New York went to Cincinnati recently to deliver a ringing indictment of American municipal government in general and that of his own city in particular. Now Mayor Russell Wilson of Cincinnati has returned the visit. Speaking in New York under the auspices of the committee of one thousand, devoted to civic betterment, Mayor Wilson condemned the strangle hold which partisan politics has on the leading cities of the country and invited, by way of contrast, investigation of conditions in Cincinnati, the largest city now operating under city manager government.

"The only remedy for corrupt and wasteful city government," said the Cincinnati mayor, "is the dissociation of local government from national party politics. The awful waste of municipal government must stop if our 'institutions shall not perish from the earth.'" Mayor Wilson's observation is as true as the rules of the solar system. The present scheme of city government in New York, Chicago, and Philadelphia, and only to a lesser degree existent in most smaller cities, whereby municipal offices are operated to reward faithful party workers without regard to administrative needs and the public welfare, would eventually bring the nation to ruin. The complete breakdown in Chicago and Philadelphia indicates that a good start has been made and that the only hope lies in prompt and concerted action on the part of an aroused public.

What Cincinnati has done needs to be proclaimed from one end of the country to the other. Formerly known as the worst governed large city in the United States, now authorities in municipal government consider it the best. The transformation was not hard to effect. Cincinnati stood corruption as long as it could and then rose up and threw the political leeches into the Ohio river. It divorced from partisan politics the problems of municipal management which called for businesslike treatment. It instituted the city manager system.

Mayor Wilson thinks the city manager system is the solution. It may be. If that form of municipal government lost to the bosses in Cleveland, it has shown what it can do in Cincinnati, where there is an effective popular will in behalf of its successful operation. Under its city manager it has endeavored to give the taxpayers full return on their dollars, not 70 to 80 cents, as is the practice in many cities. As a result the tax rate has fallen steadily while the public services have constantly increased. Any one who has visited Cincinnati recently knows the change that has come over the city.

Other cities, including St. Louis, must eventually do what Cincinnati has done. By some means or other, they must divorce municipal management from partisan politics. They must or perish.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

WELCOME, OLD FRIEND— THRICE WELCOME!

They're going to bring the Flying Scotsman to our Chicago exposition next year. It's England's crack train and it runs from King's Cross station in dear old Lunnon to Edinburgh, in Scotland, in seven hours and fifty minutes. Which is reason enough, but we will greet the Flying Scotsman with loud cheers for another reason. For on the Flying Scotsman a waiter suddenly appears and says: "Would you care for anything to drink, sir?" To which we recall responding: "Sure, shoot the works!" "I fear I do not quite understand," said the waiter. "What have you got in the way of drinks?" asked we. "Everything," replied the waiter, "champagne, Scotch, cocktails, gin, port, muscatel, Burgundy, beer, ale, porter, stout, and so on and so on." "Bring us," said we, "two Scotch highballs to start with, quickly followed by two Martini cocktails, after which a small bottle of champagne will not be amiss." "Not at all, sir," said the waiter, "and I would suggest that the sparkling Burgundy is of a very old and rare vintage." "With lots of sparkle?" asked we. "Oh, quite, sir," said the waiter as he disappeared in the direction of the flying saloon.

So when we have the Flying Scotsman doing its stuff right here in Chicago next year we look forward with real pleasure to raising our cocktail glasses and drinking toasts to every dry we see in the offing and ordering large mugs of beer and ale as we pass dear old Fort Dearborn. Passing Machinery hall we shall open a bottle of champagne and at the Transportation building a small bottle of brandy. Ah, what a joy it will be to have the Flying Scotsman in Chicago and to know it will be run just exactly as it is in England, because those who are responsible for bringing it over so assure us. Just exactly as it is in England. Well, that's fine. "Waiter, a Daiquiri cocktail and a couple o' snorts o' hootch."

SONNET XLIX.

That day your eyes were smiling like the pool remembered from a dream of April rain, sending their message of a blue, a cool and shadowed sorrow, and the marble plane
we stood upon so surely wheeled askew, gyrating madly with a rhythmic swing, and we upon it, and I glanced at you and knew my heart an undecided thing, a foolish thing nailed two ways on a cross and that cross giving, with a broken beam, leaving me torn and crazy with my loss, leaving me with a slashed and crumpled dream.

And then to you I lifted up my face to find the chaos gone, the sun in place.

ANYHOW, there's one good thing! Walking through the loop and listening to the leather lunged megaphone bawlers in the autos bearing the banners of the various candidates for state's attorney we are assured that one and all if elected will drive crime from Chicago. That's fine. No matter who gets the state's attorney's job crime is going to be driven from our fair city. Now we can all go to sleep.

FOR THE FIRST TIME since the days of the Roman republic the grand old name of Cicero reverberates around the world. Cicero will be pointed out with pride and viewed with alarm from every political soap box in the country. After being hopelessly and overwhelmingly Republican for fifteen years, Cicero at the election Tuesday went Democratic three to one. And now Cicero will be employed as showing which way the cat is going to jump next November; Cicero, the straw which shows the way the wind is blowing; Cicero, the leaf brought back by the dove to the ark to show the flood is over. That is, of course, from the Democratic standpoint. And there may be lots in what they say.

"I WON'T be a party to presidential ballyhoo," virtuously declares Mr. Garner. Oh, goodness, Mr. Garner, are you thinking of becoming a candidate? Oh, the very idea!

THE DEMOCRATS have picked their keynoter and the Republicans are looking for one. The last report was that they had one treed out west somewhere, but the chances are that he slipped down at night and made his escape just like the others have done. It's a tough world!

EARLY SPRING DISCORD.

I want to sing of Springtime,
Of minnows and tadpoles;
I shall not write of daffodils
And praise-worn orioles!

The meadow lark, the nightingale?
Of songs they've had too much;
For poets since the world began
Have penned the praise of such.

(The crooked plum tree in my yard,
Today dressed up for June,
Frostbitten petals wither now
Beneath the chilled March moon.)

I want to sing of homely things,
Of which I feel a part;
The bleakness of a still-born spring—
The dead youth in my heart!

IS FROZEN MILK SAFE?

IN the process of marketing it occasionally happens that milk is frozen. On a cold morning a housewife takes in a bottle of milk that has been at the back door long enough to freeze. A milk driver finds that his wares have frozen in his wagon. A dairyman, driving several miles to a creamery, arrives with some frozen milk in his cans. What harm has been done? The consumer is especially interested in the safety of the product. Shall she throw away bottles of frozen milk?

There is no evidence that frozen milk contains any poisonous substance developed by reason of freezing, or even that it is less wholesome than milk that has never been frozen. There is no reason for expecting any such substance to be produced by freezing, and the use of thawed milk has not shown that any harmful substance is present.

Since the digestive apparatus of a baby is very delicate, it has been suggested that babies should not be fed thawed milk. It is established that freezing changes the fats and proteins physically and chemically and, therefore, thawed milk could not be readily digested by a baby. If this suspicion is correct, it has not been proved to be so. Thawed milk is a wholesome food for babies so far as the evidence goes.

The mother who takes in a bottle of frozen milk should carefully strain it. Freezing often breaks the bottle and she must be on guard for fragments of glass. More frequently, freezing causes the milk to push off the cap and to fill the mouth with a plug of ice. Removal of the cap by this means, or any other, somewhat increases the possibility of contamination.

The conclusion that frozen milk is wholesome is fortified by the known facts about ice cream. In ice cream the milk is frozen and it is wholesome. A very tasty dish is milk and clean snow or shaved ice. That is wholesome. It is said that in parts of Europe it is customary to ship frozen milk. There are no reports of harm done those who consumed this product after it had been thawed.

Much of the misinformation about frozen milk is due to appearance and odor of the thawed product. Freezing does not materially alter the fats physically and may change them slightly chemically. It does materially change the proteins chemically and physically. In consequence, thawed milk does not have a creamline and the appearance of the compound is different from that we are accustomed to.

If the thawing is done very slowly and the thawed milk is held at temperatures just above freezing these changes are less in evidence. Freezing and subsequent thawing accentuates any peculiar or unusual odors. If a milk having weed odors is frozen and thawed, the odors will be more readily recognized. These are objections to thawed milk, but they are esthetic and not related to wholesomeness or nutritional qualities.

CITIZEN OR NOT?

Chicago, April 1.—[Friend of the People.]—1. My husband came to America at the age of 5 and never took out citizenship papers. His mother, soon after their arrival, married a German, who later took out American citizenship papers but did not legally adopt my husband. Is he a citizen? 2. I married him in 1906 and divorced him ten years ago. Am I a citizen? M. M.

1. The husband's mother became a citizen upon the naturalization of her second husband, assuming it occurred prior to Sept. 22, 1922. The writer's husband derived citizenship through the citizenship of his mother, if his mother became a citizen before he reached the age of 21.

2. It is the view of the bureau of naturalization that native born women who married aliens before March 2, 1907 [the date of the law declaring that American women marrying aliens shall take the nationality of their husbands], did not, by reason of such marriage, lose their American citizenship, although some courts have held otherwise. The act of March 2, 1907, also provides that at the termination of the marital relations the woman might resume her American citizenship by continuing to reside in the United States. The act of March 2, 1907, was repealed on Sept. 22, 1922, and under its provisions the writer would have resumed her American citizenship if she was divorced before Sept. 22, 1922.

A CLOUD ON TITLE.

Chicago, April 3.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I have a building on the north side. I received my tax bill a few months ago and I did not have the money to pay for them. 1. A week ago the city gave the building over to a real estate company in order to sell the building so that they may get the taxes. Now I understand that the 1928-'29 tax bills are void. 2. Does that automatically give me the building back or not? If not, how is it possible to get it back? J. L. G.

1. Ordinarily no interference is made with the owner's possession as a result of tax sales in this community. The tax deed or the forfeiture is held merely as a cloud on the title. It seems probable that some one is imposing on you.
2. It seems probable that you are still the owner of your building subject to clouds. Your facts are not clearly before us, so we cannot advise you further.

CHINA-JAPAN WAR, 1894

HIROSHIMA, Dec. 5.—A dispatch from Field Marshal Yamagata dated Antong, Dec. 3, says that the Japanese scouting party sent in the direction of Ling Shan Kwan engaged the Chinese outpost on the summit of Notien Ling on Nov. 15. The scouting party was afterward reinforced at Sokako, where it was attacked by the enemy in large force. More than 40 Japanese were killed in this engagement. A detachment of infantry sent to reconnoiter Kwan Tien and Saibarhu was attacked by a large force of Chinese on Nov. 20 with the loss of several killed. Yamagata adds that measures have been taken to clear the country around Kwan Tien and Saibarhu.

LONDON, Dec. 5.—Opinion in official circles here is that there is no truth in the report cabled from Shanghai that a ten days' armistice has been arranged between China and Japan. It is added that all indications point to the contrary.

CHEFOO, Dec. 6. — The Tsung-Li-Yamen has decided to send a special ambassador to Tokio fully authorized to negotiate a treaty of peace. This is the result of an intimation from United States Minister Denby that he and the United States minister to Japan have prepared the way for direct communication between China and Japan, though the nature of the preliminary negotiations is kept secret.

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

APRIL 7, 1916.

WASHINGTON, D. C. — The long heralded crisis in the relations of the United States and Germany over the latter's submarine warfare is at hand, according to high administration officials. The graver aspect in the relations of the two countries is the direct result of the attitude of President Wilson, which is described as threatening. In conferences at the White House the President indicated clearly a strong inclination to sever diplomatic relations with Germany and he is restrained only because of reluctance to take personal responsibility for action of such moment, preferring to place the responsibility on congress. The tentative decision was to serve an ultimatum upon Germany, stating that further injury to Americans in submarine attacks on merchantmen will be considered cause for the severance of diplomatic relations.

LONDON.—The Daily Mail publishes a report that the Peninsular and Oriental line steamer Simla has been sunk in the Mediterranean off the west coast of Greece, with heavy loss of life. Forty-eight persons lost their lives through the sinking of the British liner Zent by a submarine, it was announced. The captain and ten survivors of the crew of the Zent landed at Queenstown and all agreed that the ship was torpedoed without warning. The British steamer Vesuvio has been sunk and three injured survivors have been landed.

FROM SECRETARY HYDE.

Washington, D. C., April 2.—On March 13 THE TRIBUNE printed a chart which purported to show that the expenditures of the United States department of agriculture had increased from 30 million dollars in 1917 to nearly 300 million dollars in 1931.

No explanation, no statement of items accompanied the chart. It created the impression that this increase was for agricultural purposes.

Because this impression is wholly false, and because it does an injustice to the cause of the American farmer, I am asking you to give equal publicity to the following facts:

One hundred seventy-four million dollars of the 1931 expenditures went to the states as federal aid in highway construction. This money served the general welfare and relieved unemployment.

Fifty million dollars went to farmers in drought areas as emergency relief loans. The department of agriculture did not ask for the money. It was no part of our regular program.

Fourteen million dollars went to the states for experiment stations, extension services, and forest fire prevention. The department of agriculture did not spend it. We were merely the channel through which the money passed.

Deducting these sums leaves 58 million dollars spent by the department. This contrasts with the 30 million dollars spent in 1917. [All other moneys were either paid to the states direct or were emergency funds for which this department made no request.]

But even this 58 million dollars is not a fair statement of the expenditures for agricultural purposes.

Four million dollars in 1931 went to the weather bureau, including $1,200,000 for commercial aviation—only $50,000 of the entire appropriation being directly for agriculture.

Six million dollars went for eradication of bovine tuberculosis—a public health service fully as much as an agricultural service.

Five million dollars went for meat inspection—another service primarily for public health.

One million six hundred thousand dollars was expended for enforcement of the food and drugs laws—another health service.

Fifteen million dollars, in addition to payments to states for forest roads already counted, went to the forest service to conserve our national resources for all the people.

Two million dollars went to biological survey, principally for wild life conservation.

These items add up to $33,600,000. Minor nonagricultural items bring the total well above 25 million dollars. That leaves, of the 58 million dollars, only 23 million dollars that can properly be charged against the department of agriculture for strictly agricultural expenditures. Of the 30 million dollars expended in 1917 about 11 million dollars was for strictly agricultural purposes.

The increase in expenditures by the department of agriculture for agricultural purposes from 1917 to 1931 was, therefore, about 12 million dollars. Any other statement is unjust to agriculture.

Since 1917 congress has enacted 24 laws to be administered by the department of agriculture. Here are 24 reasons why it costs more to run the department now than in 1917. In spending money to enforce these laws the department merely obeys a mandate from congress.

Is the department justified, is it intelligent in spending 17 million dollars for agricultural reasearch as it did in 1931? Agriculture has long thought so. Business and the general public must think so, too, if they will recall items like these:

Research on the southern cattle tick not only showed us how to control that disease carrying insect but demonstrated how yellow fever, malaria, typhus fever, African sleeping sickness, Rocky mountain fever, and other maladies are transmitted.

Hog cholera losses have been reduced because the department of agriculture developed a preveative serum. That is of importance to one of Chicago's largest industries.

A calcium salt, once so rare it cost $150 a pound, now may be had for 50 cents a pound because of work by the department's chemists.

New vat dyes, which permit the dye industry to meet competition from abroad, and to use cotton and artificial silk to better advantage, are in wide use because the department some years ago synthesized an entire new series of vat dye intermediates.

Cheap nitrogen from the air, of importance to our national defense as well as to agriculture, is in large part a reality because of research in this department.

Instances might be multiplied which would convince you that our expenditures for agricultural purposes are thoroughly justified. This does not minimize the need for economy and for reduction of expenditures at this time. We have reduced our expenditures so far as it lies in our power to do so. Our 1933 budget estimates for general bureau expenditures are $7,457,714 less than the 1932 appropriations provided. The total budget estimate for 1933, including payments to states, road funds, is 43½ million dollars less than the 1932 appropriations. The senate has added $1,000,000 for government participation in the Century of Progress at Chicago, which is only incidentally agricultural.

We shall continue to cooperate in every possible way to reduce expenditures. The amount of savings which it is possible to make must depend upon congress. We shall interpose no objection to any economy the congress may make; we ask only that congress and the public be truthfully informed.

ARTHUR M. HYDE,
Secretary of Agriculture.

Chicago, Ill., April 4.—On one of the islands above the newly constructed dam at Starved Rock there is located a tavern or house which seemed to me to hold some old memories. Can any one tell me the history of this place, or was it just built there to excite the curiosity of people visiting the beauty of the canyons in Starved Rock park? Also, is this one of the islands to be covered by the new artificial lake now being created? H. G. HANSEN.

THE SHORTER WORKING WEEK.

Chicago, March 31.—Some offices in Chicago have already adopted the shorter working week. I am employed in such an office, so I am in a position to honestly say that the plan is a wise one as well as a way to allow the worker to help end the suffering caused by unemployment. The worker has more leisure time in which to rest and study.

He can, therefore, return to his work refreshed and broadened after a day away from his work; he will be a more efficient worker than a tired man would be. The drawback, as any one can see, is the reduced salary. That serves its purpose, too. The worker will keep all of his money in circulation and the old stocking bank will be placed in the attic with other relics of bygone days.

COURT ENJOINS MOVIE MONOPOLY IN FINAL DECREE

Federal Judge Acts to Enforce Sherman Law.

A final decree enjoining 21 of the largest motion picture companies in the country from continuing in an alleged monopoly of the film industry was signed late yesterday afternoon by Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward. Among the defendants in the action were the Paramount - Publix and Balaban & Katz corporations.

JUDGE WOODWARD.

The defending film companies consented to the final decree, which constituted an admission that the monopoly existed, according to prosecutors from the United States attorney general's office, who filed their petition for the order yesterday.

Court Finds Conspiracy.

Judge Woodward found that the large companies, which consisted of all the principal distributors and exhibitors of motion pictures, had engaged in "a conspiracy to monopolize and restrain interstate commerce in the distribution and exhibition of moving pictures in violation of the Sherman anti-trust act."

The first petition in the case was filed in the District court three years ago. An amended petition, on which the order was based, contained the old allegations and some new ones. The first petition set forth that the defendants "by means of zoning and clearance schedules" prevented the owners of smaller and unaffiliated theaters from obtaining motion picture films except upon unfair terms and conditions dictated by the larger companies.

"Block Booking" Alleged.

In the amended petition it was charged that the latter companies held their monopoly by buying up more pictures than they normally needed. It was also alleged that the defendants leased pictures to the smaller theaters only in groups containing a fixed minimum number of films, so-called "block booking."

Smaller theaters were forced, the government charged, to purchase short subjects and newsreels whether they wanted to or not, while these conditions were not imposed on the larger theaters.

Another Decree Signed.

Another consent decree was signed yesterday by Judge Woodward enjoining the Corn Derivatives' Institute and affiliated companies from price fixing and the curtailment of production of corn sirup, corn starch and corn sugar.

In initiating action against the group the government charged that the defendants, who manufacture more than 98 per cent of the country's corn products, had violated the Sherman act since 1925. The decree requires that the defendants dissolve the Corn Derivatives Institute within 30 days.

BROTHERS CASE SETTLED; NEW HEARING DENIED

Supreme Court Puts Final Approval on Conviction.

The Illinois Supreme court yesterday denied Leo V. Brothers, slayer of Alfred Lingle, a rehearing of his appeal. The high court originally denied the appeal on Feb. 19 in an opinion upholding the sentence of 14 years for murder which Brothers is now serving in Joliet penitentiary.

The ruling yesterday brought to a close the 22 months' effort to find and punish the killer of Lingle which started on June 9, 1930, the day of the murder. There will be no further appeals on behalf of Brothers, his attorney indicated.

"There is nothing more we can do," said Attorney James C. O'Brien Jr., Brothers' counsel, when he was informed of the Supreme court ruling.

On some occasions cases have been appealed from the Illinois Supreme court to the United States Supreme court. Appeals in such cases are based on constitutional points, however, and there were no such points in the Brothers case to make possible an appeal to the high federal court, prosecutors held.

Assistant State's Attorney C. Wayland Brooks, who prosecuted Brothers before Judge Joseph Sabath in the Criminal court, expressed satisfaction when he was informed that the conviction had been finally confirmed.

"We are happy that the Illinois Supreme court has put its final stamp of approval on the conviction of Brothers," Mr. Brooks said, "because it demonstrates beyond doubt that Brothers received a fair, impartial trial within the law.

"We tried the case, as we do all other cases, with the thought always in mind not to have even a suggestion of error in the record, and when the verdict of guilty was returned we were satisfied that the conviction would be upheld, as is now borne out by the highest court of our state."

The opinion of the Supreme court sustaining the conviction, handed down on Feb. 19 and delivered by Justice Norman L. Jones, said in its final paragraphs:

"It is contended that the verdict is contrary to the weight of the evidence. We have very carefully examined and considered all of the evidence in the case and we cannot agree with that contention. The identification of the defendant as the killer was the principally contested question of fact. It appears to us that the testimony of witnesses who identified the defendant as the man who threw down the gun and fled from the tunnel and across the street is more convincing than the testimony of witnesses for the defendant."

WHALEN, NEW YORK'S 'GLAD HANDER,' SUED FOR $200,000 LIBEL.

New York, April 6.—[Special.]—Grover A. Whalen, sometime official "glad-hander" for the city administration, was made the defendant in a $200,000 libel action today. The complainant, Samuel Swett, treasurer of the National Washington Portal committee, charges Mr. Whalen with damaging his standing by warning the public against "private groups using the Washington bicentennial for profit." Whalen is chairman of the Washington bicentennial commission and is alleged to have been unduly cool toward plans for a bicentennial prosperity mass meeting which the portal committee was backing. In fact, he objected to the use of his name as a member of the committee and advised the newspapers of his objections. Telegrams to the press announcing his attitude were made the basis of the suit.

MRS. DOROTHY MICHELSON DICK WINS DIVORCE

Mrs. Dorothy Michelson Dick, daughter of the late Dr. A. A. Michelson, was granted a divorce from Sheldon Dick yesterday by Circuit Judge Daniel P. Trude just 23 hours after she had filed her bill, charging desertion.

Judge Trude granted Mrs. Dick a private hearing in his chambers. She asked no alimony, but received a property settlement and custory of her daughter, Dorothy, 3 years old. The terms of the settlement were not disclosed, but her attorney, Preston Boyden, said that it was "ample for the support of Mrs. Dick and her daughter."

Mrs. Dick is now living with her sister, Mrs. Philip Maher, 44 Cedar street, she testified. Maher, an architect, and a friend, Mrs. Walter Paepcke, 999 Lake Shore drive, wife of the president of the Container Corporation of America, testified as to the date of Mrs. Dick's separation from her husband.

ROBBER IS SHOT BY POLICEMAN IN OIL STATION

A young bandit employing a piece of wood for a pistol was shot three times last night by Policeman Joseph Kreft of the Town Hall station. He is Claude Johnson, 19 years old, of 4369 Kenmore avenue.

Johnson was shot and captured in an attempted robbery of the filling station at 3901 North Ashland avenue. Holding his hand in his right coat pocket, as though grasping a gun, he forced Curton Maynard, owner, and Richard Anderson of 1820 Addison street, into a rear room of the station.

This proved his downfall. Policeman Kreft was inside the room. As Maynard and Anderson entered with the bandit just behind them Maynard warned Policeman Kreft of the holdup. Kreft whipped out his revolver and fired three shots, hitting Johnson in the left thumb, right hand, and chest. None of the wounds was serious. In Johnson's pocket police found the pseudo gun of wood.

NORRIS OPPOSES SENATE RECESS TO VIEW PARADE

Washington, D. C., April 6.—[Special.]—Senator Norris [Radical Rep., Neb.], who voted against United States' entry into the world war 15 years ago, today opposed a senate recess for an hour to permit the senators to watch a parade in commemoration of that event. But the recess was voted and the senators viewed the spectacle from the steps of the capitol.

"I would be glad to celebrate Armistice day. I would be glad, any day," he said, "to pay tribute and honor to our army, our navy, and our soldiers. But to turn this into a celebration of a great war that brought civilization to the edge and verge of destruction is the most unreasonable proposition I ever heard of."

Refers to Unemployed.

Calling attention to a press dispatch referring to "Six million hungry, wanting work," Senator Norris declared:

"That is the parade we senators ought to watch. That is a parade that is caused because we entered the world war and brought practically all of the peoples of the world to their knees in suffering.

"Six million, you can't see that pass in one day. The several thousand outside the capitol who are rejoicing because we entered the world war, those you can see in an hour. But the parade of unfortunates, of hungry, of those practically unclothed, why you can watch it for a week and it will still be passing by.

"The women whose husbands lie across the sea, beneath the poppies, the fatherless children, tattered and cold and hungry, that, gentlemen, is the parade we ought to watch."

75,000 Men in Parade.

To the martial music of the army, navy and marine bands 75,000 men marched down Pennsylvania avenue from the capitol to the treasury in celebration of Army day and the bicentennial of George Washington, as well as the anniversary of our entrance into the war.

The parade, with 88 units, was the largest since the inauguration of President Hoover and the greatest military display the capital has seen since the war.

President Hoover, members of the cabinet, and high government officials witnessed the spectacle from a reviewing stand. The house as well as the senate recessed to view the parade.

Service Bands in Line.

It was the only time except in inaugural parades that the three great service bands had played in the same procession. And in addition to these three there were twenty others. Infantry, cavalry, and light artillery from nearby posts represented the army in the line of march, followed the marine band and a unit of marines in dress uniform. Then came the navy band with a unit of bluejackets, followed by R. O. T. C. units from colleges and high schools of the capital. A long succession of Legion posts and patriotic societies followed on foot and in automobiles.

DEMAND DEFENSE ACT BE CARRIED OUT TO LETTER

National Safety Keynote of Army Day.

An adequate national defense program, with the army, navy, and reserve forces built up to the provisions of the national defense act of 1920, was the keynote of the Army day banquet last night at the Medinah Athletic club. More than 1,200 regular army, National Guard, and reserve officers attended.

"Orders are of no avail without the power to carry them out, and we are in danger of losing that power," Brig. Gen. Albert Lyman Cox of Raleigh, N. C., told the officers. "Congress now threatens to make the only defense we have practically worthless.

Haven't Reached That Strength.

"The national defense act empowers the United States to maintain a certain strength. We have never reached that strength and we are in danger of losing what strength we have."

Maj. Gen. Frank Parker, commanding the Sixth corps area, sounded the same note.

"The necessary program to establish an adequate defense is three fold," he said. "We must have an understanding of the need, inform the people of that need, and develop an army to command the respect and confidence of the people.

"The program advocated 150 years ago by George Washington is the program we need. That is a well regulated civilian soldiery instructed by a small, highly educated and trained professional corps. Adequate defense consists of an intelligent military organization of man power, training of man power and the producing of supplies. All of these depend on appropriation and on this depends the efficiency of the entire defense system."

Pointing to the lessons learned by the United States in the world war and by France in the war of 1870, Gen. Parker stated that the backbone of the national defense is the reserve corps.

Dangers of Unemployment.

Edmond K. Hogan, international vice president of the railway car men, pledged the support of organized labor to a comprehensive defense program. He stated that unemployment, lowering the mental and physical standards of the working populace, presented the greatest danger to the possible armed man power of the nation.

Lieut. Col. J. C. Bohan, president of the Cook county reserve officers' association, acted as chairman. Judge John P. McGoorty, as toastmaster, introduced the speakers. Army day is observed on the anniversary of the declaration of war against Germany and is sponsored by the Military Order of the World War.

LEAGUE RENEWS DRIVE ON HOOVER NAVAL POLICIES

Questions Reasons for Halting Building.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 6.—[Special.]—The direct charge that the Hoover administration has permitted the effectiveness of the navy to be impaired during a period of world-wide unrest, was made today by the Navy League of the United States in a new attack directed at President Hoover's naval policies.

Without referring to its slashing attack on the President last fall, when Mr. Hoover was charged with "abysmal ignorance" of naval matters, the league spokesmen asserted that "in money expenditures, in ships and in men the navy has been restricted and reduced so that, in effect, it is being starved into inadequacy."

Navy Running Down.

The Navy league asserted that while scores of ships were becoming obsolete, virtually nothing is being done by the Hoover administration to replace vessels that have become overage and are becoming over-age. It asserted that during the past three years Mr. Hoover has not "inaugurated one single move to provide replacements—not to mention upbuilding in categories in which the United States is below treaty levels."

The league openly questioned the motives of the President in refraining from advancing a program which would give this country a fleet equal to that of Great Britain. The argument that this country cannot afford to prosecute a moderate building program because of the depression was assailed by the league as without merit. In this connection the point was made that while the administration has opposed new warship authorization on the ground of economy, it has approved "over one billion dollars in emergency relief work or loans."

Warship Bills Sidetracked.

Although the purpose of the league pronouncement was to stimulate sufficient interest in naval legislation to effect passage of a warship authorization bill at this session of congress, little prospect now exists that either the Vinson or Hale warship bills will be enacted this session. The Vinson bill providing for orderly building up to the London arms treaty limits will not be introduced until after the appropriation bills are out of the way, its sponsor said today.

"Virtually nothing has been done by the Hoover administration to replace vessels that have gone over-age and are going over-age," the Navy league said. "Personnel has been reduced, many vessels have been taken out of commission and broken up, and many others put in reduced commission. Moneys appropriated by congress for specified expenditures on the navy have not been spent.

"The navy has been restricted and reduced so that in effect it is being starved into inadequacy.

Cites World Disturbances.

"While Europe smolders and Asia is ablaze, the President insists that we cannot afford even to start moderate measures for building our fleet to treaty terms. Thus insistence on his point of view forced the house naval committee to abstain from reporting the Vinson bill at this time, allegedly because of the financial condition of the treasury."

In conclusion, the league stated: "With our navy and its relative status going from bad to worse, this year the navy department has not been permitted to recommend a single ton of new or replacement construction and administrative opposition has held up Congressman Vinson's proposal to start a ten year systematic building program with the initial expenditure next year of merely 18 million dollars."

LLOYD GEORGE, WAR TIME PREMIER, TO QUIT POLITICAL LIFE, REPORT

LONDON, April 6.—(AP)—David Lloyd George, noted Welsh Liberal, Britain's wartime prime minister, was said by circles close to him tonight to have decided virtually to retire from all participation in the work of the house of commons, although retaining his seat.

Only very large political events such as are not now in sight would bring him back into the parliamentary arena, it was asserted.

He already has reduced his personal staff and a further reduction is about to be made by pensioning, his friends said. He will devote himself, they added, principally to literary pursuits and to his hobby of farming.

PONTIAC AIRPORT HANGAR BURNS.

Pontiac, Ill., April 6.—[Special.]—A hangar and its contents at the Pontiac airport was destroyed by fire. Two airplanes, Waco and Robin makes, were burned. The fire was believed to have been incendiary. Loss was $8,000. The hangar cost $2,000, the two machines $5,400; the oil, tires, and airplane parts, $600. Insurance was carried only on the hangar.

Trades "Leap Year" Ring for Gun; Gets Into Court

Evansville, Ind., April 6.—[Special.]—Ownership of a "leap year" diamond ring was debated in Circuit court here today. Pearson Meador, an amateur detective, was accused of stealing it from Mrs. Trilby Swope, his former secretary. Meador says it was a leap year present to him after Mrs. Swope had proposed marriage to him. He then traded the ring to Earl Russell for a revolver.

EXPERTS PICTURE METROPOLITAN AREA OF FUTURE

Vision Its Spread Into 2 Neighbor States.

BY HAL FOUST.

A decentralized metropolitan area of the future was pictured yesterday at the annual meeting of the Chicago Regional Planning association at the Hotel Sherman. It covered the Fox river valley from Waukesha to Aurora and the lake shore from Milwaukee well into Indiana and included large areas of forest preserves, parks, golf courses, and country estates, large and small.

D. H. BURNHAM.

"Modern transportation," said C. B. Whitnall, Milwaukee county park commissioner, "made possible the centralization of population. The continued improvement in transportation is now acting as a decentralization agency, enabling families to escape from the devitalizing influences of congestion."

Urges Carrying Out of Projects.

Daniel H. Burnham, reëlected president of the association, urged that in the depression "we must not hysterically abandon projects of the kind that have made Chicago and its metropolitan area the dynamic commercial and artistic center it is today." He pointed out that the Chicago region is continuing to grow, having gained a quarter of a million since the 1930 census listed 5,300,000 persons.

State Highway Engineer Sheets said that the metropolitan areas in the future must receive a larger portion of the state's road improvements. He told of $2,000,000 to be spent in Chicago this year, the first state money ever to reach the city's streets.

Maj. Rufus W. Putnam, director of the Chicago Regional Port commission, reiterated his prediction that the Illinois waterway will be open to traffic next October.

Tells of Indiana Parks.

Col. Richard Lieber, director of the Indiana conservation department, told of the Hoosier parks that are enjoyed by Chicagoans "who overflow into the country for rest and relaxation from city influences." In Indiana within fifty miles of Chicago are 9,000 acres of reserve, including the Dunes park, where, according to Col. Lieber, 85 per cent of the visitors are Chicagoans.

Robert Kingery, manager of the plan association, said that while the suburbs are growing, the thirty square miles within the city itself decreased substantially in population during the last decade.

President Whealan of the Cook county board told of the increased use of the county's 34,000 acres of forest preserve. A decade ago, he said, the annual total of visitors could be measured in the hundreds, while last year it was estimated at somewhere between ten and fifteen million.

CHINA TO SEND SHANGHAITANGLE BACK TO LEAGUE

Delegates Abandon Hope of Making Peace.

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

SHANGHAI, April 6.—A proposal to adjourn sine die, leaving the entire problem of a settlement to the league of nations assembly, will be advanced at the morning session tomorrow of the Sino-Japanese peace conference by the Chinese delegates, Quo Tai-chi, Chinese vice minister of foreign affairs, announced tonight.

Discouraged and pessimistic, the Chinese believe an agreement with Japan is impossible under conditions that would permit China to maintain her national dignity. Japan refuses to set a definite date for withdrawal of her troops from the Shanghai area and China refuses to negotiate a final settlement until the Japanese troops are withdrawn.

Chinese Form Puppet Régime.

The situation was further complicated tonight by the formation of what Chinese officials charge is a puppet government under Japanese auspices in the Chapei district of Shanghai adjacent to the international settlement. This district is the one which the Chinese army defended so stubbornly at the beginning of the Japanese invasion.

This new government calls itself the "Temporary Association for the Preservation of Order" and has set up its own police force in Chapei under the protection of Japanese naval and military forces. "Export taxes" of 3 per cent are being charged on all goods taken from Chapei into the international settlement and Chinese territory under a regulation adopted by the new government.

The establishment of this puppet régime has inflamed anti-Japanese groups anew and anti-Japanese student lecturers are busy at street corners in all sections of Shanghai out of Japanese control.

Shantung Province Rebels.

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

PEIPING, April 6.—Gen. Han Fu-chu, governor of Shantung province, today assumed an attitude of open rebellion toward the Nanking government. His move is believed to be the signal for an immediate outbreak of civil war against the dictatorship of the Kuomintang party in cooperation with Gens. Feng Yu-hsiang and Yen Hsi-shan and Cantonese leaders. Gen. Han's revolt took the form of announcing and defending his action of detaining the Shantung revenues in order to pay his own troops, whose salaries are months in arrears.

"Kwangtung, Kwansi, Hunan, Hupei, Shansi, Szechuan, Kweichow, and Suiquan provinces are acting similarly," he said.

Gen. Han demanded the immediate inauguration of a constitutional government and the cessation of the Kuomintang dictatorshop.

Britain Snubs Manchouko.

LONDON, April 6.—(AP)—Great Britain has declined to recognize the existence of the new state of Manchouko, set up by Japan under Henry Pu-yi, former Chinese boy emperor, the house of common was informed today. The undersecretary for foreign affairs reported that his department had received a "communication purporting to be from the foreign minister of the new government of Manchuria, regarding the opening of formal diplomatic relations with Great Britain." He said no answer had been returned.

VATICAN FIRES OFFICIAL AFTER LIBRARY CRASH

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, April 6.—Fabio de Rossi, engineer and director of the technical office of Vatican City, was exonerated from penal and civil responsibility for the collapse of the roof over a wing of the Vatican library last December in the findings made public today by the judiciary commission appointed by Pope Pius XI. to investigate the disaster. The report, however, recommends that Rossi be removed from office. This has been approved by the pope. Four persons lost their lives and a large quantity of valuable books were destroyed in the collapse of the library's roof.

Mrs. Millholland is the daughter of Joseph F. Doyle, former president of the E. A. Armstrong company, military outfitters. Her wedding to Capt. Millholland was an event of the 1919 social season in Chicago. It took place at the Blackstone hotel before a hundred guests.

The bill, filed for Mrs. Millholland by Attorney Edward Bartell Jr., states that the couple separated on June 10, 1929. Mrs. Millholland asks custody of her daughter, Mary Elizabeth, 10 years old.

GIRLS! DON'T REDUCE

Until I tell you of the wonderful new way I discovered in

BATTLE CREEK

YOU eat all you want of delicious foods—take no harmful drugs like thyroid—no nauseating "salts"; no back-breaking exercises—Yet you lose excess fat so fast you can hardly believe the scales—you wear clothes sizes smaller as inches peel off bust, hips, limbs, neck, arms, and face—Oh! it's so wonderful—you'll never realize how thrilled you are going to be until you actually see what it does for you. You feel so peppy—and you look years younger. If you don't win love after this—you are just hopeless, girls.

Here's the recipe—and be sure to cut it out of the paper: You just get yourself a big bottle of BonKora—enough for a month or six weeks. It never costs over a dollar—all druggists have it or can get it for you. Eat three square meals a day—four if you prefer—but cut out the no-good starches and fats and eat more of the strength and tonic foods that the directions in the package tell about.

This BonKora is different from every other treatment you ever heard of. Doctors tell us fat is 96% water anyhow and this treatment simply makes the fatty parts of your figure throw off enough of the heavy water to make you more nearly NORMAL in weight.

Now let me warn you—when you have reduced your weight and measurements to normal, be satisfied and quit taking BonKora, except occasionally as a conditioner. Don't let yourself become too thin.

BonKora is free from any harmful drugs, is not habit-forming and may be taken by any one according to directions. Remember the name BONKORA—Beware of imitations! Big bottle of BonKora only 98c at all

Meet the GOODYEAR AIRWHEEL*

Softest • Safest • Smartest new motor car tire

* AIRWHEEL is Goodyear's trade mark, registered in the U. S. A. and throughout the world, and is used to denote that Goodyear is the exclusive maker of AIRWHEEL tires

● INTRODUCED FIRST BY GOODYEAR to aviation close to three years ago, these big, buoyant, soft-rolling rubber cushions set new standards of safety. They made smooth, gentle landings on plowed ground, swamp land, sand or snow where planes never dared to land before. They took the threat out of tricky cross-wind landings by absorbing side-sway. They gave new softness to landings and take-offs at express train speed. They put new power in brakes. Now Goodyear pioneers these super-soft tires for cars.

HERE is bad news for bumpy roads. Here is a tire that rolls over them as nonchalantly as if they were million dollar highways.

Its name is Goodyear Airwheel, and it's so downright handsome that a lot of people will want a set of these tires just for the style and swank they can add to cars.

But that's only chapter 1, page 1, in the story of what they mean to motoring.

Because they flow over bumps on twelve to sixteen pounds of air, they save you and your car from the jolts you get even from average balloons.

Because they absorb side-swing and take up side-sway, you'll find that they take curves with new security.

Because they put more of the All-Weather Tread against the road, they make the world's best-known safety tread safer than ever.

Because they're light-running and easy-rolling, they need no more gasoline than any other tires, and they make no difference in speed or steering.

Because they've been fully tested on the world's greatest test fleet, we can tell you that they matched the top mileage of balloon tires on test cars run on day-and-night schedules.

For owners of Fords, Chevrolets, De Sotos and Plymouths

But the one which most people are likely to buy is the 6.50-16, because it delivers the luxurious comfort of the Airwheel at closer the price of conventional tires—and in between are the 7.00-16, 7.50-15 and 8.25-15 sizes.

The Woman Hater

BY MAY EDGINTON

SYNOPSIS.

Faire Chapelle is the stepdaughter of Ma Chapelle, who owns Flaxen's Casino, a café of ill repute, near the waterfront of Port Bai. Faire and Aya, Ma's daughter by her first husband of dubious color, assist in Flaxen's. The Chapelles are looked upon as outcasts by respectable island residents. Faire feels their attitude keenly, because her father was of unimpeachable antecedents. He had brought her as a little girl into these unsavory surroundings and left her there at his death. She has kept aloof from all that Flaxen's represents.

Sir Philip Persian is governor and commander in chief of the Tama islands, Bai and St. Rosario. His young secretary and ward, Robert Grand, is involved in an affair with Mira Worcester, a faded beauty. Her husband has become suspicious. Sir Philip is anxious to save the boy from a scandal. Malise Bookes, the governor's aid de camp, forces Faire, through threats, to accept Mira's guilt. Sir Philip is furious when he learns what Bookes has done, and sends for Faire to try to make amends. He arranges passage for her to London, where her sister, Sheba, now Lady Rosewood, a widow, owns a famous beauty salon. Sheba takes Faire into the business. Malise Bookes, who was a former suitor of Sheba's, is sent home to London. Mira, who has returned to London, spreads malicious gossip about Faire, which Faire will not deny because of her affection for Sir Philip and her promise to him of secrecy. An estrangement developed between the sisters. Among Sheba's many clients, seeking the fount of youth, is Mary Chevronne, recently widowed, with whom Sir Philip had had a youthful affair, and feels honor bound to marry after his term expires. She is attracted to Faire and calls her to her home to give her treatments. Sir Philip returns.

INSTALLMENT XXXIV.

LOVERS' FAREWELL.

They moved onto the floor. "I don't dance well," Philip told her.

But he danced with her as if together they were the soul of the waltz that was playing. They could not have helped dancing as one. As one they drifted through the room, never touching other dancers, never having to pause, to look or maneuver, as if in isolation in a desert of their own they moved perfectly, each sensing the other.

"'Lo, Persian!" said a sulkily voice close by. Persian turned his head and saw Worcester dancing near them, with his wife. His arm tightened about Faire.

"Hullo!"

They drifted apart from the Worcesters, but not before Faire had seen Mira's face, pretty and hag-ridden as ever. Her thin figure was sheathed in a sensationally extravagant gown.

He was remembering the episode of the empty bungalow at Port Bai.

"I knew he was home," said Persian in her ear.

"Yes. I think they've got the expected money."

"Then she will stick to him."

There was something harder about Persian's dancing now. She looked up and saw a contemptuous purpose in his face. His arm about her was warm, vibrant, but his eyes had their old icy look.

"We'll speak to them, shall we?" he said easily.

She demurred and his arm tightened again.

"Yes," he said, "yes!"

They danced as long as the orchestra played, and then he took her to the table at which the Worcesters had seated themselves.

"You remember Miss Chapelle, of course?"

"Of course!" said Mira thinly, but with a sudden scare in her eyes under Persian's hard look. Worcester rose.

"I can't remember if we've really met, though we should know each other, Miss Chapelle," he said rather charmingly, cognizant also of the look in Persian's eyes. Indeed, he had—and not unjustifiably—a very different impression of this girl from the secret knowledge that his wife posesssed. He was remembering—in a natural male way—the episode of little Bobby Grand and the empty bungalow in Port Bai. . . . And now here she was dancing with Philip Persian! "Well," he thought, not unjustifiably, "she knows what's what. But I shouldn't have thought it of Persian!" He bowed over the hand she held out.

Then, under Persian's hard look, Mira took Faire's hand, and clung to it affectionately with her jeweled fingers. She made herself gush, scared by this ruthless man's knowledge of her:

"How lovely to see you enjoying yourself, my dear! You work a lot too hard! And how's darling Sheba? You know, Bertie, Miss Chapelle is Lady Rosewood's sister?"

"No one had told me that," said Worcester.

"That was a delightful voyage we had, wasn't it, my dear?" Mira went on, managing her voice.

"Delightful."

"I wish you'd come and see me. We're getting our new house now that Bertie has two pennies to rub together. Will you come and see me?"

"So nice of you."

"It would be sweet of her to come and see us, wouldn't it, Bertie?"

"Sweet," he echoed, staring.

"And you, Philip, you've only just got home," Mira went on.

"Today, as a matter of fact."

"O! Only today!" Her eyes went from him to Faire, unable to resist the implication: "And already . . . ! She continued: "You haven't yet seen your old friend, Mary Chevronne, of course."

"I called this afternoon, but she wasn't receiving any one."

"Not ill, I hope! Poor Mary!"

Faire felt Persian's fingers very gently pressing her arm. "Supper!" he said to her. They smiled at the Worcesters, the Worcesters smiled back. And again they were divided by half the length of the room, and at their separate tables.

"She's incorrigible," said Persian grimly. "Keep clear of her."

"She can't harm me any more."

"No." His finger tips drummed the table. "The news is stale. Bolt's shot. But keep clear of her."

"Does she love him?"

"She? No! Doesn't love anybody. Not 'love,' Faire."

"And he?"

"Worcester? O, in his way he loves her, poor devil."

He signed, and their waiter filled Faire's glass with champagne.

"Drink it, my dear. You need it. This evening isn't as easy for you as I'd thought I could make it."

"I don't care about 'easy,'" she whispered.

"My darling!" Persian whispered back.

"Don't, please!"

People looked up interested from nearby tables, the head waiter hurried forward—Sheba Rosewood was coming in, Malise Bookes close behind her. She made a lovely entry, dark and pale, with her quietly superb air of indifference to everything and every one.

"That's Sheba," said Faire.

Sheba and Bookes sat down; ordered supper. The orchestra was playing divinely.

"Will you dance again, Faire?"

She sighed: "I want never to stop dancing."

"Very well, you shan't stop while we're here," Persian said, and again he had her tight in his arm. They moved smoothly past Sheba and Malise Bookes.

Sheba looked up, smiled, and signed faintly.

After awhile, Persian said in Faire's ear:

"I think your sister and Bookes will be very happy together after she's made what she wants of him."

"I want them to be happy."

"You're growing wings, angel."

"No. No wings. Only I tell you, I'm all for salvage. There's so much waste in life. So much waste . . ."

"Don't let your little feet go to that tune," said Persian softly, and he shook her just a little in his arm, with tenderness, so that tears burned her eyes.

But the music became all at once gayer. He made her abandon herself to it.

"Nearly over; nearly over," she was thinking. She could not help thinking like that, although her body abandoned itself obediently to the rhythm, her ears listened, her heart beat to it, her eyes drank in like a sweet elixir all the colors and movements of the restaurant.

They were again at their table in a brief lull of the music when Sheba and Bookes left the club, walking out side by side, shoulders nearly touching, with that ineffable unconscious communion which tells the observer: "There goes happiness; there goes love."

"He doesn't deserve it," said Persian in her ear. His voice was quiet, but savage. She leaned her shoulder to his unconsciously and murmured back:

"Never mind deserving or not deserving. Let people have what they can get." She said it, thinking that there seemed so little for herself; but wanting to see happiness as one wants to see the sun, the moon, the stars, or the flowers.

"I must take you home," said Persian, with a direct look into her eyes. He lifted the black velvet coat about her shoulders lingeringly. Again they were in the car for the short drive to Soho square.

"I'll come up to your door," he said.

They climbed the long stairs side by side, and at the last, hand in hand. And outside her door, on the top landing, they stood, looking at each other.

"My darling," he said again.

This time she did not implore: "Don't!" He took her in his arms. The long passionate revealing kiss was inescapable for both of them. And as he held her and kissed her, Persian knew swiftly, and for a certainty, that no other man had ever kissed her thus, for love, on the lips, before. And despair and craving turned him bitter. Yet, as they drew apart, each of them smiled.

Bright Sayings of the Children

Lois, age 4, went to the window to watch for her daddy, but she could not see out, for the pane was covered with frost. Running to her mother, she cried, "O, muvver, I tan't see at all; the window is all chapped!"

Billy was asked how he liked his new teacher. "I would like her all right if she didn't change her mind so much. Yesterday she said two and two make four; today she changed her mind and said three and one make four," answered Billy.

People who plan menus for three meals a day have more trouble with well balanced lunches than anything else. What with trying to avoid giving their families more meat than is good for them, and getting in all the necessary proteins, carbohydrates, and minerals, to say nothing of the sunshine requirements that the scientists pile up on them every day, they are clever cooks who can interest their audiences at noon.

Sandwiches are a good solution to this problem. They combine that excellent food, bread, with other things. If their filling is inclined toward being a bit heavy, there is the opportunity to slip in a lettuce leaf for vitamins.

If your family is smallish, it would be well for you to invest in one of the sandwich grills that are on the market. They are designed for table use, are small, compact, and do their work more quickly than you would believe possible. Most of them do only one sandwich at a time, but they grill it actually in a matter of moments, so there's little if any waiting for seconds. You just make your sandwich, put it on the stationary part of the grill, slide the top into place, and the double action heat of the little contraption toasts your sandwich from both sides, and nicely, too.

When you think of toasted sandwiches, I'll wager that the first one that comes to your mind is cheese. Toasted cheese sandwiches certainly deserve this primary position. And they also deserve a bit of variation from the American cheese on white bread that is overworked. Substitute rye or whole wheat bread for the white. Or try raisin graham bread with English cheese on it, that yellow kind that is inclined to be crumbly and rich. Or, instead of bread, split round rolls and put the cheese into them. Rolls made of sweetened dough are excellent with a snappy cheese.

In making cheese sandwiches, be sure you are acquainted with the habits of the cheese. Some prepared ones have such a low melting point that they run out over the toast and on to the grill before the outside of the sandwich has attained the proper shade of brown. However good these cheese foods are in plain sandwiches, or on toast, they are not the best filling for a sandwich that is to be toasted whole.

One of the heartiest sandwiches I know of, which is just an old friend in another form, is the baked bean sandwich. To make it, butter slices of brown bread and spread them with a filling made from beans reduced to a paste with the addition of catsup or chili sauce. These are best when the beans are hot and the bread fresh. And, parenthetically, why is the conventional shape of a loaf of brown bread cylindrical? I have a friend, who makes hers in straight sided tins, producing a neat little loaf about the size of a pound of butter. I rather like the dainty square slices better than the more familiar round ones.

For really hungry people, club sandwiches are the thing, and what a variety of spring vegetables there is to help you out selecting ingredients for these. Though there be thousands, there will never be one equal to the tomato, nor will there be a club sandwich worthy of the name that hasn't a crisp bit of bacon lurking somewhere in it.

When sandwiches assume the grand proportions of some clubs I have seen, there arises the question of how to eat them. Well, since such utensils as the salad knife have joined us to make life more comfortable, I feel safe in saying that if you can pick your lunch up in your hand, do so. And if there's lettuce in it that doesn't take kindly to the idea of your breaking the sandwich in half, don't be bothered, but eat it in one piece. Life's too short to be balked by a leaf.

Tailored Suit in Navy Adds Blouse of Pink and White Striped Chiffon

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Every woman in Paris this spring has approved the vogue for the tailored suit by the final test of buying and wearing it. Since suits come in wool, silk and cotton, they're prepared for the climates of the world, and Paris likes the variability of these garments since, by a simple change of the blouse, they alter their character and may be worn for morning and for afternoon or even for informal evening.

The predominating type of tailleur seen in Paris is one with a very simple jacket, which may be any length from bolero to knee length, and with a skirt that has a high top and that is flared gently in the seams. Most suit jackets for wear in warm weather have no collars. You wear a blouse with a collar, or you drape the neckline with a printed scarf.

The Vera Borea suit, shown in the sketch today, is the kind of tailleur the Parisienne lives in during the daytime. It is made of navy blue feather weight woolen, and the jacket is a straight collarless one with almost full length sleeves. The skirt has the pointed, suspended top which is ubiquitous. The blouse shown with this suit is made of pink and white striped chiffon, cut exactly like a shirt, and with a tie of the chiffon at the front of the round Peter Pan collar. The delicate fluffiness of the material, tailored thus, gives the blouse an extra fillip of chic.

With suits of this kind, women in the French world of fashion wear varied blouses, cotton blouses, crocheted sweater blouses, and blouses of plain and printed silks, so the suit is good for all day.

Official Contract

By Charles True Adams

(International bridge authority; author of "Official Contract at Sight")

Yesterday's play-a-problem was one of the most interesting hands played at the Chicago Whist association's annual meet held in February in Chicago. E. J. Tobin of Chicago sat in the North position and Mrs. Hortense Evans sat in the South position. It is interesting to note that Mrs. Evans with Mrs. Sidney Lovell as a partner won the first national pair auction championship ever held by the American Bridge league in 1927. Please give particular attention to the play, as this was really an amazing hand—unquestionably the classic of the tournament.

NORTH (Dealer)

SOUTH
♠—Q
♥—K,Q,J,2
♣—Q,8,7,3

North dealt and bid a diamond. East passed, South bid a heart. West overcalled with a spade. North bid two hearts. East bid two spades. South now showed that she only held four hearts by refusing to rebid the hearts and instead bidding three diamonds, thus showing support for her partner's first mentioned suit. West overcalled with three spades. North jumped to five diamonds. East overcalled with five spades. South passed. West passed. North bid six diamonds, which closed the bidding.

East opened the ♠ 5, dummy played the Q, West the A, and North trumped with the ♦ 5. North then led the ♦ A, and followed with the ♦ J, which dummy overtook with the ♦ K. The trump suit was now clear. Dummy led back the ♥ 2, which declarer took with the ♥ A. Declarer then led the ♥ 10, which dummy took with the ♥ J. To the sixth and seventh tricks dummy led the ♥ K and ♥ Q. At this point it would seem obvious that North and South must lose two club tricks. But they didn't, and note carefully declarer's play at trick eight. At trick eight declarer led the ♣ Q from dummy, West played the ♣ K, and North the ♣ A. North now led the ♣ 4, East played the 10, dummy the 3, and West the 6. You will note that East has no other club to lead back. Anything else he leads will be trumped in the dummy and a discard taken in the closed hand. As it happened, East must lead a spade, which he did. He led the ♠ K, dummy trumped with the ♦ 6, and declarer discarded the ♣ 5. Dummy then led the ♦ 9, which declarer overtook with the ♦ 10. Declarer then took in the twelfth and thirteenth tricks with the ♦ 8 and ♦ 7 for six odd—the little slam bid and made.

At trick eight declarer had to guess who had the two clubs, and must have that player in the lead at trick nine so that no further clubs could be led. By good fortune he guessed correctly in leading the queen—another of those uncanny inspirations that come to the great player.

The deal could have been played at six hearts and no defense could have defeated the contract, but it is difficult to see how such a declaration could have been arrived at. Here is tomorrow's play-a-problem:

NORTH

Backgammon Is Revival of Ancient Game

Many Tales of Prehistoric Origin.

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

Rich man, poor man, beggar man, thief—doctor, lawyer, merchant, chief—each has tried his hand at the backgammon board the last year and a half. For, you may have observed, there's been a big parade in the direction of our forefathers' diversion with the best parlor gamesters in the lead shouting, "Back to backgammon."

Some have become enthusiasts, others have dropped by the wayside, but find one who wouldn't be willing to try another game on the handsome and historic backgammon table just imported from England and put on display in the home furnishing salon of one of our department stores. Mrs. George Halleck Taylor, an authority on interior decorating, explained yesterday that this piece of Sheraton crotch mahogany [it might easily be mistaken for an end table] was produced in England about 1790 for the intercounty Suffolk and Norfolk backgammon matches. It is one of the two tables on which these championship games were played and was made extra large and semi-portable, that the matches might take place in the local athenæum where spectators could be admitted. The companion table is still in the eastern part of Suffolk in the family of the original owners.

A match might well be played on it today for all is in readiness, the original set of the dice cups, dice, and draftsmen. There is some question as to whether the rules followed in the late 18th century were the same as those we use now.

We talk about the game as a revival, but, as a matter of fact, it has had a certain popularity all along—at the Paris sidewalk cafés, where it is called "tric trac," for example, and in some American communities, such as Providence, R. I., noted for its expert backgammon players. Of course, it has evolved from the simpler form of dice and lot throwing. The word itself is usually considered a contraction of a Welsh word meaning "little battle."

When it comes to the invention of the game itself, however, there are more conflicting accounts than there are communities claiming to be the birthplace of Homer. In the tomb of Tut-ankh-Amen a gaming board was found with sets of men and dice. Similar discoveries have revealed that a match played with draftsmen and dice was known in Ur of the Chaldees more than 5,000 years ago.

Undeniable record is the mural from the tomb of Nefretari, the beautiful queen of Rameses II., who ruled in 1300 B. C. during the 19th dynasty. In accordance with the Egyptian custom of burial, when images of servants and pictures of daily activities were placed in the tomb so that the departed one could enjoy all the pleasures of her earthly life in the after life, a picture of this queen playing "tables" or backgammon was included so that her soul could indulge in a game whenever she desired.

In later centuries backgammon was a favorite among the gentry. Kings and their mistresses wagered their jewels on the dancing dice. To Louis XIV. it was second only to billiards. James I. of Scotland spent the evening before his murder playing at the tables with the ladies and gentlemen of his court. It is also recorded that Mme. Pompadour owned many expensive boards, one, in particular, inlaid with gold and ivory and appointed with men of green and white ivory delicately carved.

Luck played an important part in the winnings then, and so it does today, though our best gamesters insist that backgammon is as much a test of skill as chess or bridge, love or the stock market. Choose which you will!

"Bright Skin" New Novel by Julia Peterkin

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"Bright Skin," by Julia Peterkin. [Bobbs Merrill.] Published today.

JULIA PETERKIN has for a third time done a memorable panorama of Negro life on a southern plantation. To "Black April" and "Scarlet Sister Mary" there must now be added "Bright Skin" in any consideration of the literature of the lowly field hands of the south.

JULIA PETERKIN.

"Bright Skin," like its predecessors, deals solely with the Negroes of the plantation. No white face pales its pages and—what is more remarkable—no white psychology, not even that of the author, intrudes into the maze of black superstition and childlike belief and natural gayety and solemnity and carefree acceptance of fate. Even the language in which it is written [as well as the words which come from the lips of the characters] is the idiom of the people.

It doesn't matter what Julia Peterkin's books are about. It is their mirrorlike reflection of a strange, exotic, simple, stupid, knowing people that makes them great. The years which she has spent on a plantation in South Carolina with hundreds of black people at her door have not been years of blind acceptance of them, but years of intense human understanding of them. Thousands of people have spent lifetimes on plantations and have seen no drama in the life around them. Julia Peterkin had that rare faculty of seeing the warp as well as the woof of the black tapestry and the skill to set down her observations in a language which preserved the spirit of the epic.

Social Drama Marks Book.

"Bright Skin" has less of the thumping drama of the other two novels and more of the minute day-by-day intensive blackness of its characters, it seems to me. You felt that "Black April" and "Scarlet Sister Mary" were tremendous drama in their own right. You feel that "Bright Skin" is social rather than individual drama. Not that drama doesn't stalk through "Bright Skin." All seven of the deadly sins have their place in its pages. All, however many of the heavenly virtues there are, fill the crevices. There is humor of the same Charlie Chaplin like quality that there was in the former books—pathos so mixed with hilarity as to wring your heart while your sides are splitting. But "Bright Skin" is a little sadder than the previous tales because its sadness is that of the spirit rather than of fate. The hero of "Bright Skin" is named "Blue" and his poor little life is blue indeed.

I recommend the way I read "Bright Skin" as the supremely perfect one. For the first time in my life last week I visited on a large Mississippi plantation, a cotton plantation dotted with the cabins of Negroes. In the soft spring air that floated about us on the gallery of the "mansion house" the intense drama of hundreds of black people was alive. The night time brought them to life. In the caressing blue-blackness drama simply throbbed. A butler in a red-checkered waistcoat was such a boy as the heroes of all plantation tales are made of, and you could imagine him telling in resounding guffaws to a circle of the black elite tales of the white folks that didn't even know cotton plants when they saw them. Bandannaed black women lolling on cabin "piazzas" always with a touch of cerise about them somewhere, pickaninnies so beautiful that you wanted to own one as a work of art just to look at, the whole seething life of a people remote and undisturbed you felt about you.

Becomes Alive in That Setting.

"Bright Skin" came completely alive to me in that setting. Julia Peterkin has penetrated the armor plate which surrounds that life. It is obvious as you see it for the first time that knowing the people who fill books like "Bright Skin" and "Porgy" is no transient job of clever reporting. The sensitive person may feel the surging life behind the curtain, but if he tries to lift that curtain hastily he will find, I am sure, only one layer after another of impenetrable barrier. "Bright Skin" and its predecessors are no clever bit of journalistic observation. They are the result of intense search, of almost scientific exactness. They might almost be studies in anthropology, so skillfully do they record facts of a strange civilization. The fact that the civilization is within our geographical boundaries does not mean that it is in any sense akin to our own. Mrs. Peterkin has been superbly successful in making that fact plain and in giving the utterly remote psychology of a strange people intense human reality.

"Bright Skin" is the April choice of the Book League of America.

Jackets—Any Kind You Like—That's Fashion

BY RHEA SEEGER.

A GOOD sized book could be written about jackets this season . . . there are enough of them to describe . . . their public as well as private lives would easily fill pages providing good spicy information for all fashion readers. Jackets are the most successful fashion climbers you have ever worn . . . they stick around and through every hour of the day . . . you can't snub them, or ignore them, or ditch them. You have bed jackets, you lucky, lazy people that sip the breakfast orange juice and coffee in bed . . . your lounging pajamas have jackets . . . you shop in dashing new jacket-ed suits . . . all your sports clothes call for jackets . . . an afternoon ensemble can't ensemb without its matching jacket and evening gowns coldly shrug their missing shoulders until a jacket is provided . . . and the end is not then!

We who have been razzed for centuries because we are not consistent finally go so beautifully and thoroughly consistent that we let this jacket madness claim us completely . . . why even the newest spring nightgowns have jackets!

You can wear them short, or long, they can be fitted or not so fitted, they have short or long sleeves and the new puffed muff-like sleeves . . . they are in color for contrast or harmony . . . you can wear printed jackets with plain colored frocks or plain colored jackets over prints . . . however you plan it, it's a gay and giddy jacket existence if you don't weaken for a long coat. You can't jilt your jackets, even though you try to compromise with capes for they, too, do everything possible to look like a short coat.

How Sleeves Do Things.

Sometimes sleeves are the most important part of the brief coat . . . as in a particularly stunning ensemble that consists of a black crinkled crêpe dress with long tight fitting sleeves and a long slenderizing dress . . . over this is worn a chalk white silk crêpe short coat . . . a jacket coat that hugs the ribs and bursts forth with a lot of glory and material in the sleeves . . . these sleeves are tight to the elbow, but from then on down to the wrist the makers certainly lavished material and pleats and gathers that only a tight elastic band could successfully keep at the wrist. This costume is about the most startling creation any one could dream about . . . it would be perfect for afternoon or evening dress parade.

But the smartest, newest idea these jacket racketeers have launched is the new wool and silk combinations . . . a colorfully printed silk frock and the ubiquitous jacket, but this time in wool. You simply can't escape the cape or jacket . . . even chilly weather is provided for, hence the wool coats. These are the costumes that frankly go in for strong color contrasts.

Checks Combine with Dark Wool.

Checks are sporting propositions that combine smartly with dark wool . . . a red and white checked silk frock, as bright and snappy as a sergeant's salute, joins the jacket union with either a black or blue short coat . . . a scarf of the same checked silk of the frock can be tied in telling way for shoulder chic.

A deep brown study of dollar size dots resulted in a brown and white combination that hasn't equal for daytime wear. The dress is cleverly designed of brown silk printed with huge dots in white [it can be worn later without the jacket, with white accessories for warmer weather] . . . the jacket that jogs right along with this dress is of brown silk crêpe . . . it, too, may be used with other frocks that have the same tone of brown among their printed designs.

Bull Sea Elephant Will Join Circus Animals Tomorrow

A bull sea elephant, 21 feet long, will add his guttural roars to the medley of noise in the menagerie of the Sells-Floto circus when it opens its annual engagement in Chicago April 16 at the Coliseum.

The animal was captured only a few months ago off South Georia island, an outpost in the Antarctic ocean a thousand miles from the tip of South America. He will arrive tomorrow in Peru, Ind., winter headquarters of the circus, riding in a special car, which contains a 40 foot tank for his comfort.

The sea elephant is a bigger and bulkier brother of the Lincoln park sea lions. Although the specimen obtained by the circus is 21 feet long and weighs nearly two tons, he is just a young fellow as his kind go and has not attained his full growth, circus people assert. Despite his awkward bulk, he is able to shuffle along on his flippers faster than a man can walk.

Good morning!

Glorious scenery is one great asset of "Carnival Boat." The panoramas of mountainous country about the logging camp where most of the action occurs are grandly thrilling. You can almost breathe the spicy air. You yearn to get into old togs and high boots and walk and walk and WALK!

Then, the log rolling scenes are fascinating—and a runaway log train hands you a kick such as you used to get from the old railroad "dreadfuls" featuring Helen Holmes. Three assets! Number four—photography. Splendid!

These considerations aside, the film becomes just movie with no acting that is outstanding enough to save the piece from mediocrity.

The story presents you with the somewhat unusual spectacle of a gray-haired father trying to arrange the life of a son whose hair is as hoary as his own. Regrettable miscasting of Mr. Boyd, I'd say, for his maturity lends an incongruous aspect to the picture as a whole.

Mr. Bosworth, as the old boss of the lumber camp, finds that the time has come to retire. He plans that his son, that lusty, carefree lumberjack, Buck Gannon, shall succeed him. But there's another fellow who wants the job—(Fred Kohler) and Hack is every bit as good a workman, if not so fine a character, as is Buck . . .

Buck's in love with a girl on a carnival boat that periodically ties up at a wharf nearby. His father's determined opposition to marriage between Buck and Honey complicates matters further . . .

Direction is haphazard, acting is unremarkable, dialogue is cut and dried, comedy relief is seldom funny.

Altogether, I thought, "Carnival Boat" gives evidence of being slung together in a hurry.

Fairbanks to Quit S. Sea Island Location Soon

Hollywood, Cal., April 6.—(AP)—A radiogram from Douglas Fairbanks, film star, on location with a company in the South Sea islands, said today he and his company would start for home on April 25 or 26. Fairbanks left San Francisco on Feb. 27 for the South Seas to film a romantic comedy drama, the first picture of this type to be attempted with the South Sea islands as a background.

"Shire Colt" Is Sure to Delight the Youngsters

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

How English some English names are! Take this one—the Cotswold hills of Gloucestershire near Chipping Campden. Could anything be more English?

Two people spent the summer before last on a farm in that part of England and fell in love with a soft eyed, playful, shaggily beautiful young colt. They watched him from the time he was a day old, wobbly baby, on all through the summer. When these two people, Zhenya and Jan Gay, returned to America the frolicking, soft eyed young creature came with them—in their memories. And finally he came to life again in the most beautiful little child's book I have ever seen.

The book is called "The Shire Colt." It tells in pictures and simple charming text the story of Brownie, the shire colt's first summer in the pasture lands and on the farm, some of the time adventuring by himself and some of the time wth his great, strong, shaggy mother, Djuna. These huge English draft horses are a very part of England, said to have astonished the great Ceasar when he went to the Britain of his day.

The illustrations are lithographs with a combination of vitality, beauty, and feeling that leave you searching for words. Zhenya Gay, who is an artist of repute, has made a surpassing book. It is a rare experience to be able to to say: "Here is a perfect young child's book. Here are things young children love; lots of pictures done with a clearness, gayety, and simplicity that is childhood itself, but so truly beautiful that no child whose parents can buy it should be without it." It is not often one is able to speak so of a book—but I do say all of that.

As for you, grownup, whether you have children or not, this book is something for you to enjoy as you do any adult work. The art is mature and there is one picture that is a veritable animal nativity. The book's quality has been so recognized that a special limited edition of 276 is to appear later.

"The Shire Colt," by Zhenya and Jan Gay is published by Doubleday Doran, Garden City, N. Y. The price is $2.

Reception Features Opening of Art Show by Antiquarians

Mrs. Coburn's Superb Collection of Paintings and Pastels Placed on Display.

BY JUDITH CASS.

MRS. ROCKEFELLER McCORMICK'S Napoleonic gold urns and compotes were taken out of their locked cases at the Art institute yesterday and used on the tea table at the reception given by the Antiquarian society of the institute for Mrs. Lewis L. Coburn, so that shows better than anything I could write what a notable and important occasion it was!

The reception marked the opening of Mrs. Coburn's superb collection of paintings and pastels which are hanging in galleries 52 and 53 under the sponsorship of the Antiquarians. Securing the loan of this fine collection is probably the Antiquarians' most noteworthy accomplishment in a long list of worth while accomplishments.

Sharing with her collection the interest and attention of the fashionable throng which attended the reception was Mrs. Coburn, who sat in a chair in the receiving line and received the congratulations and thanks of the Antiquarians and their guests. Mrs. Coburn's raisin color georgette gown was dressed up [not that it needed any such touch, but flowers do give such a partyish look] with a shoulder corsage of gardenias.

Also in the receiving line were Mrs. Joseph M. Patterson, Mrs. James M. Hopkins, Mrs. Arthur Meeker, Miss Florence Bartlett, Mrs. Edward H. Brewer, and Mrs. Chauncey McCormick. Mrs. Potter Palmer, president of the society, is in Florida so her gracious presence was missing.

The receiving line was a picture itself, for the colors of the gowns of several of the women were unusually lovely. Next to Mrs. Coburn stood Mrs. Patterson, wearing a corn color wool crêpe with a sable scarf and a wide brimmed brown straw and velvet hat; then stood Mrs. Hopkins in a deep violet crêpe dress with a tiny shiny black straw hat with a veil. Next came Mrs. Meeker, in black and gardenias, and then Miss Bartlett in a springlike gown of navy blue and blue and white print, a silver fox and a broad brimmed blue straw hat. Mrs. Brewer was in black and white, and Mrs. McCormick had chosen a lovely corsair blue and white print gown for the occasion. She also wore a silver fox and a brimmed blue hat.

Spring Flowers on Tea Table.

Mrs. Walter S. Brewster had arranged the tea table and Mrs. Phil Miller poured. The table was covered with a cloth of sheer white material dotted in green and holding spring flowers, and cakes were the lovely gold urns and compotes previously mentioned. The Antiquarians' own silver services were used for the tea and coffee.

Some of those at the reception were Miss Kate Buckingham, who greeted friends from a wheel chair; Mrs. Walter Borden, Mrs. Robert Hall McCormick, Mrs. Charles S. Dewey, Miss Naomi Donnelley, Mrs. Edward Swift, Mrs. Tracy C. Drake, Miss Harriet Monroe, Mrs. Joseph O. Watkins, Mrs. William C. Pullman, Mrs. Thomas W. Hinde, Mrs. John Palmer Welling, Miss Cornelia Conger, Miss Emily Larned, Mrs. Erich Gerstenberg, Mrs. Charles W. Dempster, Mrs. Shreve Badger, Mrs. Augustus Maxwell, Mrs. William H. Hubbard, Mrs. Murry Nelson, Mrs. Edward Litsinger and her daughter, Mrs. Calhoun Smith, Miss Harriet Stuart and Mrs. Edward A. Leight.

Several of the guests at the Antiquarians' reception had to leave early to attend the weekly meeting of the Friends of Opera guarantee fund committee at Mrs. Franklin M. Miller's apartment at 1500 Lake Shore drive. Pledges secured during the last week, as announced at yesterday's meeting, amount to $2,150, bringing the total sum raised by the Friends of Opera to $47,500. This amount, plus the money raised by Mr. Insull's committees, totals $330,000 toward the necessary guaranty fund of $500,000. The Friends of Opera are to continue their campaign under Mrs. Charles K. Corsant's chairmanship and to report their progress at weekly meetings.

Thomen-Sherman Wedding Plans.

Various members of the Lucius Sherman family will be going east in about a week for the wedding, and its attendant festivities, of Roger Fowler Sherman and Miss Ingrid Gwendolyn Thomen, which will take place at 8 o'clock in the evening on Friday, April 22, in St. John's church, Clifton, Staten island. Following the ceremony there will be a reception at the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Otto John Thomen of 49 Central avenue, St. George, Staten Island.

Mrs. Wheeler Barto of Chappaqua, N. Y., will be her sister's matron of honor, and another sister, Miss Beatrice Thomen, who is a student at Smith, will be maid of honor. The six bridesmaids all are eastern girls and several of Mr. Sherman's seven ushers are easterners also. His brother, Lucius Booth Sherman Jr., will act as best man, and another brother, Stuart, will be among the ushers.

Mr. Booth and his bride will be at home at 2123 Ridge avenue, Evanston, after May 15. Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Sr., who reside in Winnetka; Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Sherman [Jane Pearce], the bridegroom to be, and his best man will go east together.

Reservations for luncheon at the Woman's Athletic club today, following a morning musical by the Russian trio, have been made by Mrs. Jefferson Jackson, Mrs. Edwin W. Sims, Mrs. Joy Seaman, Mrs. Thomas E. Wilson, Mrs. John Gilchrist, Mrs. John L. Fortune, Mrs. Frank M. Gordon, Mrs. Charles Prindiville, Mrs. Averill Tilden, Mrs. Oliver Holmes, Mrs. John Wheeler, and Mrs. Paul Steinbrecher. The president, Mrs. Raymond C. Dudley, and the board of directors will have their usual table.

All those persons who have been so worried about Mrs. Charles H. Chadwick since she went to Johns Hopkins hospital for a serious operation will be glad to know that one of her friends received a wire from Mr. Chadwick yesterday saying that she is getting along splendidly and that her doctors promise a speedy recovery.

Miss Helen M. Bennett will speak on "The Century of Progress" at a luncheon meeting of the Boys' Shelter club today at the Drake hotel.

Luncheon for Woman's Orchestra.

What Price That Lovely Gown if Posture's Poor?

Straighten Up, Gals, and Look Lively.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

It's gratifying to note the manner in which the dressmaker is beginning to rely on the beauty practitioner for clothes selling coöperation. Just the other day I attended another dress exhibition, the exploited feature of which was the body building exhibition.

We women present were told how little it profited us pictorially to buy a gorgeous model if we didn't have the posture wherewithal to carry it well. Then we were treated to pictures of our possible selves, round shouldered and sway backed and lumpy silhouetted. We really didn't look so pretty as we were shown up, those of us who saw ourselves as others must.

There apparently are three posture defects commonly noted which have a mean effect on the new outfit. First, there is that round shoulderedness which seems to settle in a bulge at the base of the neck. Then there is the round shoulderedness characteristic of certain thin women which lends most favorably to flat chest and a generally fallen-arch-look to the critter. And finally there is the sway back which sends the diaphragm and abdomen into outlandish prominence. Any crooked back will do. But the sway seems to be the worst silhouette projector.

Now these posture improvements are not things that can be corrected with an orgy of tomato juice. Diet will not affect the spinal cord, except in the feeling of freedom from weight. Diet will not correct that lump between the shoulder blades, either. It helps the bloated diaphragm, to be sure, also the enlarged abdomen, but dieting will not change the appearance of a fat abdomen and diaphragm if the spine sways in or fails to follow a nice, straight line.

Exercise you simply have to do to correct posture faults—a lot of exercise. I don't mean a lot of different movements, but repeated muscular movements aimed at the faulty spot must be administered.

The first exercise demanded is to stand erect, to stand tall, to hold the back up as if it were a straight line. Just this improvement in standing will do considerable reducing. I haven't space today for exercises, but if you find yourself suffering any of the three above named posture defects, let me know and I'll subscribe the exercises you need, providing you'll trust me with a stamped, addressed envelope and your confidence.

Hits "Inferiority Complex" of U. S. in Music Attitude

Cleveland, O., April 6.—This country should rid itself of any inferiority complex regarding the music of its "better" composers, members of the National Conference of Music Supervisors were told today.

The champion of American music was Ruth Haller Ottaway, president of the National Federation of Music Clubs.

"The federation gives more than 100,000 hearings yearly to American compositions, but it is the Russian composer, Gretchaninoff, who must tell us that the day is gone when it is necessary for Americans to send their children abroad to study music and that more good music has been written in America in the last two decades than Europe has produced in fifty years," she said.

"If music is to be an influential factor in American life," Miss Ottaway continued, "sincere interest and pride in American composition must be definitely demonstrated."

New Clara Bow Enjoys Role as Housewife

Fires the Maid to Do Her Own Work.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., April 6.—The old Clara Bow is gone and in her place there is Mrs. Rex Bell, housewife. A ring at the door bell of the Bell home—a modest six room place in Beverly Hills—reveals a girl with chestnut hair and dimples who looks like the old Clara, and yet not wholly like her, for she is wearing an apron, and she looks plumper than her last days while under the old contract on the Paramount lot.

Clara lets it be known she let the maid go and is doing most of her own housework, even to cooking breakfast and supper for Rex, who has been working cowboy stuff at Universal.

Imagine Clara Bow getting up at 7 o'clock in the morning to poach eggs, fry ham, stew prunes, and watch the toast. That's just what she does every morning, and Clara says: "I love it."

The two biggest thrills that Wallace Beery experienced in recent months were when he adopted his 18 months old daughter, Carol Ann, and when the chief petty officers' mess at North Island navy air station, San Diego, invited him to fly down and be the petty officers' guest last week. The invitation was extended by Chief Gunner Jack Campbell, U. S. N., who became Wally's pal during the filming of "Hell Divers" at the naval station.

When Buster Keaton got back from the Mexican border with his two youngsters, Joe and Bob, yesterday, he found their mother, Natalie Talmadge Keaton, not at home, and expressed regret that the family quarrel, which last Monday involved district attorneys, police chiefs, lawyers, and family friends, had reached the evidently serious stage.

Buster said, "I only took the boys and flew with them to San Diego to show who wears the pants at our house. I adore my wife and she knows it. I've been a bad boy, I guess, but I have got to stand my punishment, I guess."

He ended hopefully with the guess that his wife would come home.

Harold Roberts, leader of the University of Southern California band, has been signed by Radio to present the football march with which the penitentiary football fans cheer their eleven in the Wheeler and Woolsey comedy, "Hold 'Em Jail."

Maxwell Anderson, who co-authored "What Price Glory" with Laurence Stallings, is here to adapt "Washington Merry-Go-Round" as a film story, and says: "The writers of that story let the national capital down easy. There was plenty more they could truthfully have said." Anderson thinks the stage has degenerated into "local color and wisecracking," but believes the movies have "made good progress artistically."

The Chicago Drama league will hold its annual meeting and election next Tuesday in Curtiss hall of the Fine Arts building. "Autumn Crocus," a first play by Miss C. L. Anthony which opened last summer in London, will be read at the meeting by Miss Anne Hoen.

The dinner dance committee of Madonna center is giving a tea party at the center next Thursday afternoon "about 4 o'clock," so a note from the secretary, Mrs. Edward N. Hurley Jr., says, for the junior committee of the benefit which it to be held on Saturday, April 30.

Gordon, Mrs. Allen B. Ripley, Miss Mary Agnes Amberg, and Miss Marie Plamondon.

New Notes of Travels.

Mrs. Frederick Hauck (Janet Chase) will start to motor east in her sister Libby Chase's car just as soon as she learns when Libby is to arrive in New York from England, where she went for hunting and the Grand National with Mrs. Noble Brandon Judah. Both girls will visit their sister, Mrs. Polly Chase Boyden, in New York for about a fortnight while Mrs. Hauck paints some of her decorative birds and fishes on the walls of Alicia Patterson Brooks' new apartment in New York. Miss Libby Chase probably will reach New York in about two weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Reynolds have returned to their apartment at 209 Lake Shore drive from a trip to California.

Miss Marjorie Bertha, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward M. Bertha, is remaining in the east for her spring vacation from Radcliffe college. Her parents have gone to Boston to spend a few days with her, after which she will visit friends there.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederic Clay Bartlett have returned to Boston after a three day visit with the junior Frederic Bartletts of 1301 Astor street.

Mrs. W. E. Ritchie to Leave Today.

Mrs. W. Edward Ritchie of Hinsdale is leaving today for Montreal to visit before she sails from there on the S. S. Montcalm on May 12 to spend the summer in Sweden, Norway, and Denmark. During her absence her house will be occupied by her son, Lyell H. Ritchie, of 179 East Chestnut street, and his wife and little son, and the younger Mrs. Ritchie's sister, Mrs. Thomas A. Belknap, of 106 East Oak street, and Mr. Belknap and their baby daughter. Mrs. Belknap and the baby, who was born at the Michael Reese hospital about two weeks ago, will go directly to Hinsdale from the hospital tomorrow, but the Ritchies will not move out until later in the spring.

Mrs. Lyell Ritchie's brother, Mackay Stoddard, and his bride, the former Katharine Campbell Godard of Swampscott, who, by the way, is a cousin of Mrs. W. Edward Ritchie, have taken an apartment on East Elm street, to which they will move on May 1. Mrs. Stoddard is in Swampscott now getting her house there ready for rental, as she does not expect to go east for the summer.

Mrs. Emanuel La Roche, who has been with her mother, Mrs. Frank A. Rehm, at Lake Geneva, has left to rejoin her husband and two children in Paris. Mrs. Rehm and her sister, Mrs. Armin Brand, are in the cottage on the Rehm estate at Lake Geneva for the summer and the main house is closed.

The entire board of officers of the American Opera society was reëlected at the organization's closing luncheon late Saturday at the Fortnightly. Miss Emily B. Larned is to continue as president; Mrs. John Hemphill Coulter, Mrs. Wilhelm L. Baum, and Mrs. Hayden B. Harris, vice presidents; Mrs. Edmund J. Tyler, recording secretary; Mrs. Harold E. Jacket of Gay Spring Colors Marks Pattern Dress Today

WOMAN'S AND MISS' JACKET DRESS.

In the original model the skirt was a plain, light green sheer woolen, and the blouse in a vivid yellow printed silk crêpe. The patterns can also be carried out in one color, any of the flat silk crêpes.

The pattern, 2752, comes in sizes 14, 16, 18, and 20 years and 36, 38, and 40 inches bust measure. Size 16 requires 2¼ yards of 39 inch material for the blouse with 2 yards of 39 inch material for the skirt and ⅝ yards of 35 inch for the camisole.

Annual Show of Palette and Chisel Opened

Critic Finds Exhibition Better Than Usual.

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

The Palette and Chisel club has just opened its annual exhibit of paintings and sculpture by members in the club galleries, 1012 North Dearborn street. The exhibit impresses one as being better than usual. The number of entries is possibly smaller, but the quality of the canvases shown is higher. The club is more than maintaining its standard.

After a great deal of discussion and shifting and shifting of points of view, the Palette and Chisel club gold medal was awarded to a brisk, fresh, and decorative landscape, "Along the Fox River," by Oscar B. Erickson. John Spelman's "Fishing Shacks" ran it a close race. Mr. Spelman shows two paintings, the "October Snow" being more in his accustomed manner; "Fishing Shacks" is differently handled and is really a magnificent painting of ruffled water and wooded shore. If there is a weakness it lies with the foreground, but the canvas as a composition is eminently satisfying.

Oskar Gross offers two effective portraits. "Himself" is a self-portrait, romantic, virile, and like. His other, "The Boss of a Ward," smacks of our gangster politics and is a capital piece of characterization. From these to the delicate and sensitive still life by Leo Marzola, "Tre Pome," which is some sort of shorthand for the French of "three apples," is a far cry but can be accomplished. Marzola continues his reputation of exquisite craftsmanship in this painting.

"Aviators," by Sam Avery, is a picture not to be overlooked. He paints a gay scene of boys flying kites over green fields threaded by an inviting road. Edward Grigware offers a choice, rare, quiet moment in "Dry," a desert scene transcribed in the softest blues and grays. It is a fascinating canvas. Maurice Greenberg tries out a novel design in "Circus Pattern" and is successful with it, so successful we are willing to wager it would be irresistible done in vivid, gleaming circus colors.

Among the other artists who are represented are Othman Hoffler, J. Jeffery Grant (with a magnificent boat, "The Lucy Evelyn"), Andrew Dobos, James Topping, Arnold Turtle, Glen C. Sheffer, Robert Kilbert, Holger Jensen, Joseph Tomanek, and Karl Brandner. The exhibit will continue to May 6 and is well worth seeing.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., April 6.—[Special.]—President and Mrs. Hoover have as their guests for a few days Admiral and Mrs. William S. Sims, who arrived this morning from Newport where the admiral is on duty. Mrs. Hoover entertained a small company at tea this afternoon in their honor. Their marriage took place some years ago here when he was a lieutenant in the navy and she was Miss Anne Hitchcock, daughter of the secretary of interior and Mrs. Hitchcock.

Secretary of the treasury and Mrs. Mills were hosts at dinner this evening. Their guests included Postmaster general and Mrs. Walter F. Brown, the secretary of commerce and Mrs. Robert Patterson Lamont, the Italian ambassador, Nobile Giacoma de Martino; Senator and Mrs. Robinson of Arkansas, Senator and Mrs. Barbour of New Jersey, Representative Ruth Pratt of New York, Assistant secretary of the treasury and Mrs. James H. Douglas Jr. of Chicago, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Ferry K. Heath, and Baron Paul Schell, attaché of the Hungarian legation.

The speaker of the house and Mrs. John N. Garner tonight made their second appearance socially since he became speaker of the house. They were the guests of honor of the Congressional club, composed of wives and daughters of the members of congress.

The president of the University of Chicago and Mrs. Robert M. Hutchins are at the Mayflower for several days on their way to Charleston, S. C., for a visit.

Plan Army-Navy Ball

Mrs. Charles S. Dewey and Mrs. Hubert Burnham were among the guests at a luncheon given yesterday at the Stevens hotel by Mrs. Frank Parker and Mrs. Walter S. Crosley to discuss plans for the Army-Navy ball on April 30 at the Stevens. Mrs. Parker and Mrs. Crosley are chairmen of the box committee. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Events on the Stage

Walter Hampden's management announces that his one week's engagement at the Blackstone theater in "Cyrano de Bergerac" will begin on Sunday night, April 17, instead of on Monday, the 18th; and thus a conflict with the opening of Katharine Cornell's visit in "The Barretts of Wimpole Street," at the Harris, will be avoided. Furthermore, the same bulletin states that Mr. Hampden will be quite happy to squeeze this extra performance into his stay, because mail orders are piling up rapidly in the Blackstone box office. He now wishes that he had arranged for a longer sojourn in Chicago.

This will be only the third time that Mr. Hampden has given a Sunday night performance during a career that covers thirty years. Incidentally, curtain time at the Blackstone for "Cyrano" will be 8 p. m. at night and 2 p. m. in the afternoon. This is necessary because "Cyrano de Bergerac" is cut in the generous proportions of the French romantic drama, and Mr. Hampden is giving the full text of Brian Hooker's excellent translation.

"Zombie" will end its run of four weeks at the Adelphi theater next Saturday night. Ralph T. Kettering, manager of the playhouse, is hurrying to New York to inspect a musical show that is in the market for a Chicago engagement.

The management of "Counselor-at-Law" sends word that "present plans now under advisement point to the fact that this play will be at the Selwyn until the first week in July." However, other plans under advisement contemplate the booking at the Selwyn of Helen Hayes in "The Good Fairy," beginning May 9. Probably the solution of this problem will be another Chicago theater for either Elmer Rice's drama or Miss Hayes. It would not be difficult to find a vacant playhouse.

Laurette Taylor's New York engagement in Barrie's "Alice-Sit-by-the-Fire" and "The Old Lady Shows Her Medals" was abruptly terminated last Tuesday night. Ticket holders were given a refund and were informed that Miss Taylor was ill. Yesterday Manager William A. Brady decided to close the run. This was the second interruption of Miss Taylor's performances, repeating an incident on March 14.

The Barrie revivals brought Miss Taylor back to the New York stage after an absence of five years. Her acting received high praise from the critics.

The Tatterman Marionettes in a puppet show revue are announced for an engagement of one week at the Goodman theater, beginning May 8. The program is intended for adult audiences. This organization of puppeteers has been in existence since 1923, and has made extensive tours. William Duncan and Edward Mabley of Cleveland, O., are the producers and managers, and also the authors of much of the material. C. C.

French Play Tomorrow.

A French play, "Les Trois Souhaits," will be presented tomorrow morning at Senn High school, the proceeds to go to the children's lunch fund at the Jenner school, where Miss Hattie Listenfelt, former Senn High teacher, is principal. The principal parts in the play will be taken by Mrs. A. W. Ruehe, 1644 Estes avenue, and Mrs. Edward Mahon, 1020 Ardmore avenue.

Swedish Club Adds to Many Chorus Honors

Fresh Vigor of Voices Wins Praise.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

The Swedish Choral club, an organization with the record of having accomplished many notable deeds in the art of song, added to its reputation with a spring concert at Orchestra hall last night. In commemoration of the bicentennial of the birth of Joseph Haydn, the second part of the program was given over to some excerpts from his oratorio, "The Creation." The first part consisted of brief sacred part songs. In the numbers of "The Creation," there was assistance from three excellent soloists, Dorothy Bowen, soprano; Edwin Kemp, tenor, and Edward Davies, bass. The two solo parts among the part songs were filled by Mrs. Jennie E. Peterson, soprano, and president of the club, and Albert Langenberg, baritone.

The organization's great merit has always been and still is the fresh vigor of its voices. Its female section overbalances to a certain extent its tenors and basses, but Conductor Harry T. Carlson has developed its singing in a fashion so that the preponderance becomes less noticeable than it otherwise might. It is an alert chorus, spirited, quick to follow the conductor's beat, expressive to a marked degree, and with a praiseworthy ambition to sing the English language so that it may be understood.

It excels in two diverse virtues, the ability to build up a complex contrapuntal web, and the direct simplicity of a straightforward melody. Two Negro songs, Nathaniel Dett's "Listen to the Lambs," and the spiritual, "Joshua Fit de Battle of Jerichro," displayed this latter quality in fine fashion. These were the songs in which Mrs. Peterson and Mr. Langenberg appeared as soloists.

Hazel King, a young lyric soprano, gave a song recital at Kimball hall last night. She has the endowment of a voice of unusually pleasant quality which has been developed until it is a music making instrument of considerable ability. At present she is in the period where good tone is of more importance than the projection of words. Her English vowels are fairly clear, the consonants are likely to be slurred. Further research into this item of the art of singing ought to bring with it the correction of her greatest lack, namely, the coloring of her voice to give expression to her texts.

Kleenex is an exquisite tissue, made of softest rayon-cellulose. It is many times more absorbent than linen or cotton, and so is especially soothing during colds.

THE HORROR OF IT ALL! NURMI MAY BE A PRO

JustThinkWhatThat Means, if Anything.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 6.—The suspension of Paavo Nurmi from amateur competition and particularly from the Olympic games on the charges of professionalism is consistent with the locker room lawyerism of those who dot the i's and cross the t's of the amateur regulations, but sport should not be made to accept the blame for this attempt to remove a great athlete from two long races on the California program, the 10,000 meters and the Marathon.

It has long been a ridiculous reproach to the Olympics that Jim Thorpe, the Indian from Carlisle, was disqualified after the fact and deprived of the honors which he had won in the games of 1912. Thorpe had accepted a few dollars of pay for playing baseball in the United States, but baseball was not an item of the Olympic program and the fact that he had been paid for playing this game had no bearing at all on his Olympic record. He would have performed just as well in the track and field events in which he excelled at Stockholm if he had never received a dime for playing baseball.

Still No Pro Class in Track.

Similarly, Nurmi, if he did receive duplicate or overlapping expense allowances for one meet in Poland and another one in Italy, is no better runner because of that. He has been and may still be a magnificent athlete in a branch of sport which supports no professional class. That is to say, there is no professional class of foot racers who excel the amateurs as the pros in baseball, boxing, and golf excel the amateurs.

If a track athlete is not amateur in heart, then, at the very worst, he cannot be very professional in fact, particularly in Europe, which has been Nurmi's theater of operations for several years, because the pay-off for runners is small, even in the United States, and smaller still on the other side of the water.

Because there is no professional class of runners the governors of the Olympic games ought to be lenient to any amateurs who have done the best they could in amateur meets. After all, the legitimate expense allowances for amateurs are pretty stingy, taking no account of the fact that a man traveling on the road may have to tip the porter, the bellboy, and the taximan, or buy an extra meal at midnight or order up a few bottles of mineral water for a group of casual dropins come to yodel his praises and drink his very good health and chance.

Why Not Olympics for All?

Even an amateur in the ideal state may be an habitual athlete, which is what Nurmi is, and the International Amateur Athletic federation is taking advantage of a fine technicality to suspend this great runner because he made some money in a way he shouldn't have, if he did.

For that matter, the Olympics should be thrown open to all the great runners, even including those who have set themselves up as writers and moving picture actors and made a little money which they certainly could not have made if they had not been noted athletes. To typewrite a piece for a magazine is not athletic activity. Neither is it an athletic pursuit to leer or simper at a moving picture camera for pay, and if the athlete who does this likes to console himself with the notion that his writings are bought or his face and form are sought for the movies because he is a superior writer or actor we ought not deprive him of this little comfort.

Without his athletic reputation he might not be able to land a newspaper job calling up the morgues for items, and the movies probably would have none of him whatever. But he has been competing before crowds for years and seeing his name in the paper, he has neglected his legitimate progress to take part in sport, and though he may be a bit of a pest and a transparent sham in the activities which he calls his vocations, it is kind to let him go along blowing soap bubbles and cutting paper dolls importantly.

Nobody Knows Him.

No correspondent in Finland has ever written a good informative story about Nurmi's way of life, stating whether he actually holds a legitimate working job and whether, by his scale of living, he has ever given any support to the suspicions which were aroused by his American tour some years ago. Possibly it is because his way of life is plain and monotonous and his job legitimate, and there was nothing to report as to a change in his scale of living after his visit to America. There was no evidence that he made any money on this trip, but the suspicion was strong because certainly some one made much money and no accounting was given of the receipts.

Nurmi came to America under the auspices of the Finnish-American A. C., which had a couple of rooms set aside as headquarters in a Finnish community house in New York and was not an athletic club in the luxurious American sense. There was neither swimming pool nor gym and when the Finnish-American A. C. ran a Nurmi show which drew about $20,000, the interest in this money, naturally, extended beyond the membership of the club.

But Mr. Dan Ferris of the A. A. U.

ORIOLES, BRAVES TIE, 8-8.

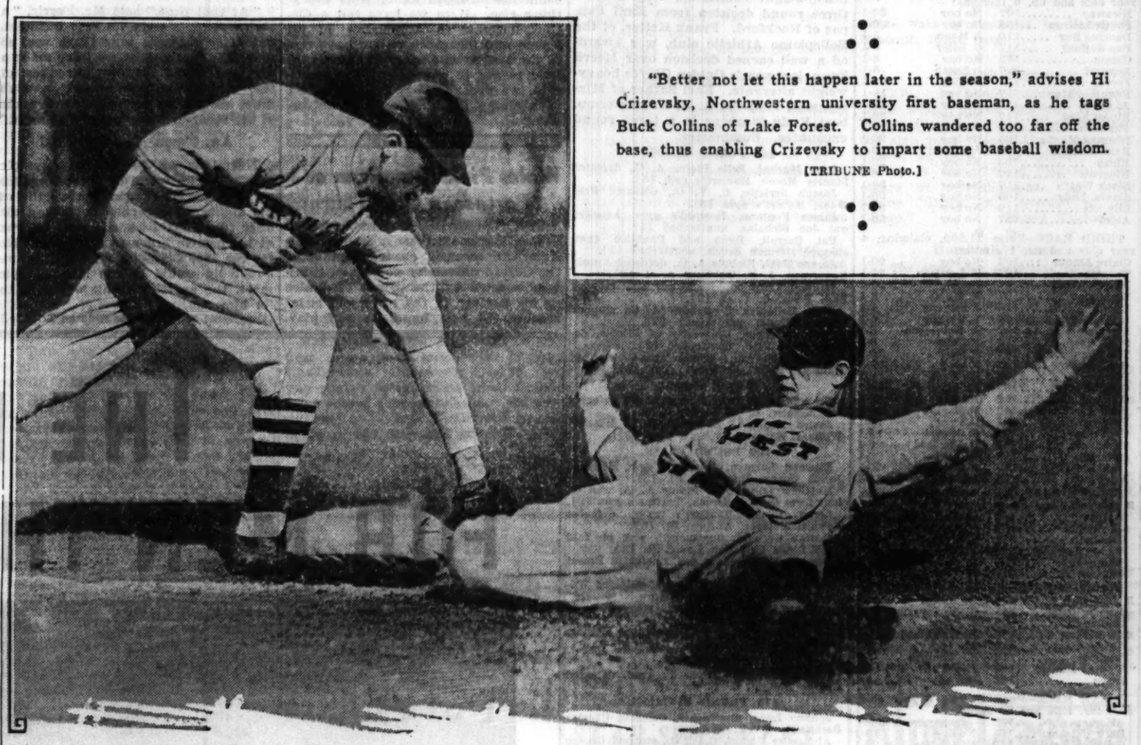
Baltimore, Md., April 6.—(AP)—Cold weather halted today's baseball game between the Baltimore Orioles and the Boston Braves at the end of the eleventh inning, with the score tied at 8-all.

There were four home runs, Boyle and Linton knocking the ball out of the park for the Orioles and Aker and Berger duplicating for the Braves.

The Orioles outhit the National league players, 16 safe hits to 11 for their opponents.

The score at the end of the ninth inning was 7 to 7, and in the tenth two doubles by each side pushed over another run. There were no runs in the eleventh.

SPRING COMES TO WILDCATS' LAIR



"Better not let this happen later in the season," advises Hi Crizevsky, Northwestern university first baseman, as he tags Buck Collins of Lake Forest. Collins wandered too far off the base, thus enabling Crizevsky to impart some baseball wisdom.

REIFF ELECTED N. U. BASKETBALL CAPTAIN FOR '33

Joe Reiff, star forward on Northwestern university's basketball team for the last two years, was elected captain for next season at the annual basketball banquet at the North Shore hotel last night.

Reiff, who starred at Crane High school, won a regular position on the Wildcat five as a sophomore. In his first year he was high scorer in the conference and played a big rôle in Northwestern's successful drive for the championship.

This season he was the team's high scorer and helped keep the Wildcats in the race for the title until the last week when Purdue forged into the lead, dropping the Purple into a tie for second with Minnesota. Reiff is a member of Sigma Chi fraternity.

Attendance at Cubs' Coast Games Drops

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Dallas, Tex., April 6.—Attendance at Cub exhibition games on the Pacific coast this spring has fallen nearly 50 per cent below that of last year. Veteran baseball observers with big league teams advance several reasons for this decline but in the main general economic conditions are held responsible.

Not only did the Cubs fail to draw as before, but the Pirates and the Giants, the latter strangers to western seaboard fans, have not enjoyed the prosperity that made California such a favorable training ground other years.

Giants Draw Only 8,500.

In the case of the Cubs, nothing less than a AA team has been played, and for the most part the Chicagoans have engaged major league opposition. The Giants, with the celebrated John McGraw, attracted only 8,500 fans to a Sunday game against the Cubs in Los Angeles where once the Cubs and Pirates played to 21,500.

Coast magnates are worried and big league owners are evincing no little concern in the matter. Can the meager audiences in California be a harbinger of the fate that awaits major league clubs in the championship campaign? Some observers opine that it is and already the reduction of admission prices has become the frequent topic of lengthy dissertations.

BRAVES PLAN BARGAIN DAYS.

Boston, Mass., April 6.—[Special.]—Officials of the Boston National League Baseball club today announced that women will be admitted at half price to Braves' field on Mondays, Tuesdays, Wednesdays, and Thursday. They will be admitted free on Fridays, Ladies' day.

Spring Comes to Alaska! Playing Ball in Snow

St. Paul Island, Pribiloes, Alaska, April 6.—(AP)—Baseball spring training time in the Aleutians and not a sand lot in sight. So the members of the Naval Radio Station team turned out today in six inches of snow which made for lots of fancy sliding but not much fielding practice. The government boys are preparing for a strenuous season against the Seal Hunters' team of the island.

MINOR EVENTS STANDINGS SHIFT IN A. B. C. MEET

Detroit, April 6.—(AP)—Detroit bowlers were responsible for the two changes in the minor events of the American Bowling Congress tournament late today.

Ernie Hartman and Hank Ehrle rolled a 1,295 total to go into a tie for sixth place in the doubles event. Hartman was the chief pin getter with a 709, enough to place among the leaders in the all events. He had previously registered 617 in the team event, and his windup effort of 580 in the individual competition gives him 10th place in the all events.

LOUISVILLE HAS OWN IDEA ABOUT HOW TO BEAT SOX

Get Six Runs Off Thomas in One Inning.

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Louisville, Ky., April 6.—The Louisville Colonels fell on Tommy Thomas with murderous intent in the third inning of today's baseball contest with the Chicago White Sox. They made a half dozen runs and these counted for a lead until the Sox tied the score with two out in the ninth, after which the Colonels got another run in their half of the ninth to register a 7 to 6 victory.

Tommy was a good pitcher except for the horrible doings in that third. He hadn't allowed a hit until one was out in the third. Then he gave up six in a row. Later he settled down and allowed only two hits in the next four innings. Both of these were doubles which led off innings, but no score resulted from either.

Watwood Stars Again.

Johnny Watwood, who hit a homer with two on in the ninth inning in yesterday's game, for a time showed prospects of being a hero today. In the first half of the ninth Blue singled with two out, stole second, and came home on the second hit made by Watwood, who entered the game in the seventh. This tied the score and Johnny reached second on the throw in, but Campbell, who may be rated as the big spring flop of 1932 if he isn't careful, fanned without giving any evidence of knowing what Bubber Jonnard was pitching the ball.

After seeing the score tied the Colonels, scoreless in all but one of the first eight innings, lost no time in revealing that they didn't have to go on that way.

With Gregory pitching, Weis beat out a perfect bunt along the third base line and moved to second on Olivares' sacrifice. Weis went to third on a wild pitch, after which Adair and Pinch Hitter Marcum were given intentional passes to fill the bases. The game ended when Pinch Hitter Nachand sent a long fly to Campbell, scoring Weis.

Campbell Is Disappointing.

The game was the first started by Manager Lew Fonseca, who has become discouraged with the feeble efforts of Campbell in the hitting department. He weakened to let Campbell play the last three innings, in which Bruce further reduced his batting average. In his last 38 trips to the plate, the young man who had been counted upon to supply the big Sox punch has socked three hits, including two successive doubles in Little Rock, where he was a hero last year.

Thomas became the first pitcher to go more than six innings. He had intended to go the route, but gave way to Pinch Batter Smead Jolley, who ended a rally in the eighth by hitting into a double play.

The contest, barring the bad inning, was a good one, if for no other reason than that it saw Bill Cissell smacking a triple and three singles in four times at bat.

The two pitchers—Weinert and Jonnard—are former Cubs, as was Al Shealy, who licked the Sox yesterday. The boys will not have to face any former Cub pitcher tomorrow, however.

Sox Take Lead, but—

The Sox had three runs when the Colonels busted loose in that third inning blast. Selph was hit by a pitched ball to start the second inning and scored on Cissell's triple. Cissell scored on a wild pitch but Grube, Thomas, and Anderson were retired in order. With one out in the third, Blue beat out a bunt and reached second on Weinert's wild throw past first. Fothergill filed to E. Funk, but Fonseca singled to left, scoring Blue.

The first seven men to face Thomas were easy outs, but Shea, second man up in the third, made the first hit off Tommy, a single to center. Then followed a double by Weinert, successive singles by E. Funk, Maguire, and Layne and a double by Branom. These terrific happenings, combined with an error by Anderson, a wild pitch by Thomas, and a long fly by Weis, ac-

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Dallas, Tex., April 7.—The Cubs put in a couple of bad hours this afternoon, but eventually beat the Pirates to get an even break on the six game spring series. The score at the end of eight innings of various kinds of performing was 8 to 7, whereupon the team quit so that the Chicagoans could catch a train for Kansas City, where they have a date with the American Association Blues tomorrow.

The Cubs' fielding mistakes and some surprisingly poor pitching by Guy Bush enabled the Pirates to get a five run lead in the first half of the game. Meanwhile the Chicago batters were suffering under the power of Glenn Spencer. But the pitching was turned over to Steve Swetonic in the sixth and business picked up in a hurry.

Herman Goes to Sleep.

Herman took a little nap in the third or the Cubs might have beaten the Pirates to the honor of scoring the first run. Hack led off with a burst of speed on which he beat out a grounder to the pitcher. Herman tried to bunt, but couldn't, so took a swing and singled to center, Hack taking third. Piet knocked down Cuyler's drive and recovered in time to throw out Hack at the plate. Herman then began counting sheep off second base and a snap throw from Spencer to Thevenow caught him. Barton followed with a drive to the fence, but P. Waner took it in.

The two run assault on Bush in the Pirates' third got under way when Spencer singled to center with one out. Dugas hit a grounder past Grimm for two bases, Spencer scoring. P. Waner singled to center, sending Dugas home.

Thevenow Forced In.

Piet walked to start the fourth and Bush immediately was treated to some real action. Thevenow bounced a lucky single through short, Piet going to third. Stephenson reached for Finney's fly, but it fell for a single, Piet scoring.

Spencer bunted to Grimm, who endeavored to engineer a force play at third, but the throw was wide. This filled the bases and Thevenow was forced in with a run when Bush, trying to dust off Dugas, hit the youngster on the arm. Finney scored while Herman was throwing out P. Waner.

The first thing done by Swetonic when he took over the pitching in the sixth was to pass Cuyler and Barton, Stephenson grounded out and a walk to English loaded the bases. Grimm's single scored Cuyler. Finney made a throw to third, hoping to cach Barton napping, but the ball went wild and Barton scored. English went to third and H. Taylor, running for Grimm, took second. Hemsley drove in the pair of runners by singling to center. Dan Taylor, serving as pinch batter for Bush, delivered a double, on which Hemsley scored the tying run.

Swetonic Runs for Exit.

Thevenow fumbled Cuyler's grounder with one out in the seventh. Swetonic walked Barton, an offense for which he was promptly yanked in favor of Swift. Stephenson was so glad to see Mr. Swift that he almost tore an arm off Suhr with a line single on which Cuyler scored. English singled to right and Barton came home. H. Taylor slapped a hit to left, giving Stephenson a chance to score the third run.

The Pirates came so close to tying it up again in their portion of the seventh that there wasn't any fun in it for Warneke. P. Waner doubled past Moore, who had gone to left, and Comorosky tripled down the first base line. Traynor's single scored Comorosky. Suhr singled, putting Traynor on third. Warneke then recovered his skill. He fanned Piet. The Pirates figured a double steal might get Traynor home, but he was chased back to third and Suhr was thrown out. A called third strike on Thevenow ended Warneke's misery.

Bowie, Md., April 6.—[Special.]—Al Jolson's On Watch filly, On Tap, second choice in the betting, won the Martha Washington purse for fillies and mares, feature of the card here today, by three lengths from H. D. Bonsteel's filly, Vacillate, the favorite. W. W. Vaughn's Canron was third, and Marcasite fourth in a six horse field.

B. Hanford outrode Robertson in the race, leading all the way and drawing away at will. The time was fast, 1:06 1-5 for five and a half furlongs. Away to a flying start, Hanford never let up on the On Watch filly. The winner paid $5.40.

Jockey J. Bejshak was injured during the running of the third race when his mount, Wise Kid, bumped into the inner rail and fell into the infield. Bejshak received a cut on his shoulder, and later at the hospital it was reported his condition was believed to be serious as his lungs were bleeding.

Open Hearth won the sixth race easily, after catching the field on the back stretch, being the first favorite to score since the first race. Burke had the mount. Pending was second and Triple Threat third. The winner paid $4.20. A. Pelleteri's Fiddler won the fourth race. Fiddler had a half length margin over Voltagreen at the finish and Sun Memory, the favorite, was third.

Moon Phase won the third race when Skirt falled in the stretch, but the latter, which was favorite, held the place, beaten by a head. Wellet, outsider, was third. Jockey Gilbert rode well to win with Moon Phase. He went to the front and kept his mount in the lead to the far turn. Skirt was permitted to take the lead and held it to the sixteenth, when Gilbert again came to the front. The time was 1:57 4-5 for the mile and a furlong. The winner paid $37.90.

CATHOLIC LEAGUE COACHES IGNORE NEW GRID RULES

Three of the four football rule changes, adopted by the national collegiate rules committee several weeks ago, were rejected by football coaches of the Chicago Catholic High School league yesterday. The fourth—concerning substitutions—was the only rule adopted.

The flying block and flying tackle, which in the opinion of many college coaches was the cause of injuries, was not abolished by the league coaches. They also voted against the new rule covering use of hands by defensive linemen.

A change also was made on the kick off. Under the new collegiate rule the ball will be put into play by a drop kick, punt or place kick. The Catholic coaches decided that five men of the receiving team must play between the 40 and 50 yard lines, and the ball will be kicked from the ground without tee as in 1931.

The new regulation adopted by the Catholic league on substitutions enables a player to enter and leave the game four times instead of twice. The team making a substitution will be charged with a "time out" under the new rule.

The Chicago Public High School league's stand on new rules will not be determined until the rules committee meets next week.

COTTON STATES LEAGUE ASKED TO TAKE VACATION

Vicksburg, Miss., April 6.—(AP)—The Cotton States Baseball league will not operate this season, it was indicated tonight in a statement by Frank A. Scott, president, who telegraphed members suggesting that they keep the organization intact but take a year's "vacation."

The directors have been struggling several months to reorganize a six club circuit, but had been able to bring only five clubs into the loop.

Marek Wins in Olympic Boxing Trials

The preliminary round of the Central district Olympic boxing tryouts and A. A. U. championships ended last night at Loyola university gymnasium with 32 bouts in the welterweight, middleweight, light heavyweight and heavyweight classes. Thirteen hundred saw the contests.

Boys in seven classes will fight in the quarter finals tonight. Only four heavyweights are left and they will compete in the semi-finals and finals tomorrow night.

Max Marek, Golden Gloves light-heavyweight runner-up, won a close three round decision from Emil Pappas of Rockford. Frank Ketter, of the Belleplaine Athletic club, was awarded a well earned decision over Merril Tonn, last year's Golden Gloves heavyweight alternate. Earl Sather of Minneapolis, National A. A. U. runner-up, beat Rudy Sterbenz in a three round encounter. Summaries:

HELEN MOODY OFF TO EUROPE SOON FOR 3 TOURNEYS

San Francisco, Cal., April 6.—(AP)—Mrs. Helen Wills Moody announced tonight she would sail from New York April 27 for Europe to participate in three major tennis tournaments.

Mrs. Moody said she would enter the French hard court championships at Paris May 22. She then plans to go to London, where it is expected she will play as a member of the United States Wightman cup team on May 13 and 14. She also will enter the Wimbledon tournament in June.

Mrs. Moody, American woman champion, did not participate in either the French or English championships last year, but in 1930 she won the women's singles title in each and, paired with Miss Elizabeth Ryan, won the women's doubles title.

Predicts Fan Will Bear Tax Burden of College Sport

Ann Arbor, Mich., April 6.—[Special.]—The proposed 10 per cent federal tax on admissions to college athletic events probably will be added to the old admission price if the revenue bill passed last week by the house of representatives is enacted into law, Prof. Ralph W. Aigler, chairman of the board in control of athletics, declared today.

"There aren't a half dozen universities in the country that could stand to take the tax out of receipts now," he said. "For every university that is wealthy there are a hundred that are having financial difficulties. Of course, if conditions were as they were a few years ago, the tax might be deducted from the gate receipts, but our income has dropped along with everything else. Here we have felt a distinct decrease in attendance in all sports and inasmuch as we have one of the largest and most complete athletic plants in the country to maintain, we probably will feel the effect of a slump as much as any university."

The Horror of It All! Nurmi May Be a Pro

who investigated the case, insists that any money which went astray went to persons other than Nurmi.

"It costs about $12,000 to run such a show," Mr. Ferris says, "and Hugo Quist, who was handling Nurmi's tour, did not seem to know anything about box office work. He left blocks of tickets with friends to be sold, without taking even a memorandum. I got one block of tickets and when I offered him a receipt he said, 'O, that is all right, you will remember.'"

"At that time," said Mr. Ferris, "a club's receipts were its own business, but after Nurmi's tour there was so much discussion that we have made a change. Nowadays, on the request of the registration committee, a club must show what disposition was made of the receipts of any particular meet."

Aw, C'mon—Let Him Run!

Nurmi is an athlete of Olympic quality. The world of sport provides no professional competition worthy of his ability. He turned down a great offer from Tex Rickard when he was at his best in order to remain eligible for the 1928 Olympics and, as this undoubtedly would be his last Olympic meet, the sporting thing would be to let him run.

LOUISVILLE HAS OWN IDEA ABOUT HOW TO BEAT SOX

Tying Run Eludes Sox.

The Sox got two runs in the fourth and seemed in a fair way to go much farther until a double play blighted the program. Cissell singled to left and Grube walked, then Thomas sacrificed. Anderson singled to center, scoring Cissell and Grube. Then Hayes walked. Blue smashed a liner to Adair and Anderson was doubled off second. The Sox got the potential tying run as far as third in the sixth inning. Cissell got his third hit, went to second while Jonnard was throwing out Grube, lingered while Thomas was being thrown out and went to third on a wild pitch. Anderson walked, but Adair threw out Hayes.

A neat fielder's choice and a double play halted Colonel accumulation in the sixth. Weis led off with a double but was out, Grube to Selph, when Olivares attempted to sacrifice. Adair and Olivares were doubled, Cissell to Blue.

In the eighth inning Cissell again did his best to effect a tie. With one down, Bill knocked his fourth straight hit, a single to left, and stole second. Grube walked, but Jolley hit into a double play.

NEW GIANT CLUB TAKES OVER OLD WHITE SOX HOME

The American Giants' baseball park, Pershing road and Princeton avenue, first home of the White Sox, has been leased for a term of three years to R. A. Cole and Ahmed Rayner. They also have purchased the stands and improvements in the park.

It is their plan to install a team of colored ball players under the management of David Malarcher, former captain and manager of the American Giants. It also is planned to include facilities for football, cricket, tennis, skating, and tobogganing.

TWO TOURNEYS WILL MARK '33 GOLDEN GLOVES

Novice Class Formed to Match Opponents.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Although 1932 Golden Gloves boxing for Chicago will not end until the international bouts with the champions of Germany at Soldiers' field July 26, plans already are being formulated for next year which promise to make amateur boxing a more popular sport than ever before. Next year the metropolitan eliminations will comprise a double tournament.

Eight champions, from the 112 pound class to the heavyweights, will be determined as in the past. This division will be known as the open class and will comprise the more experienced boxers. In addition, a tournament will be held for novice boxers. Both tournaments will be conducted simultaneously.

Novice Boxers Also Get Gloves.

There will be eight champions in this novice division and the winners will receive diamond studded golden gloves, the same award that is given annually to the winners of the open class.

The Chicago tournaments this year proved that a novice tournament is necessary. Nearly 1,000 amateur boxers entered Golden Gloves tournaments in Chicago. The records of the registration committee of the Central association of the A. A. U. indicate that many of these boys competed for the first time. Obviously these novices, almost without exception, cannot expect to compete successfully with boys who have been boxing for months. In many cases these youngsters, since the pairing in the bouts is by lot, draw opponents who are superior, so far superior that the referees frequently find it necessary to stop the bouts in the first rounds.

The introduction of a novice tournament will eliminate these one-sided bouts. Not only will the inexperienced boys be grouped together, but their elimination from the open class will cut down the number of bouts necessary for the experienced boxers to win in order to capture a Golden Gloves championship.

Any boy who has not won more than one Golden Glove bout will be eligible for the 1933 novice tournaments in Chicago. Those who have won more than one bout in previous Golden Gloves competition will be classed in the open division.

They'll Box on Same Nights.

Both the novice and open classes will box on the same nights. The qualifiers in the open class will continue in the Tournament of Champions against the out of town teams as in the past. This year twenty newspapers in five states sponsored Golden Gloves tournaments and sent their champions to the finals in Chicago. During the Tournament of Champions the Chicago novice meet will be continued until only sixteen boys remain in the running for championships. These sixteen boxers, two in each weight division, will fight on the final night for Golden Gloves trophies.

The eight open champions and eight novice champions will be eligible for the intercity squad which will meet New York in the sixth annual series of bouts next year. In addition two more boxers in each of the eight weights will be put in training for the New York bouts. From this squad of 32 boys, 16 will be named for Chicago's intercity team.

To Equalize Competition.

In all probability the novice champions will not box against New York unless an exceptional boy makes his debut. However, the purpose of the introduction of the novice meet will have been accomplished. Amateurs, who have had no experience other than winning one match in Golden Gloves, will be pitted against each other. The quality of the competition in both classes will be more equal.

It has been decided that Chicago's Golden Gloves squad will begin training July 5 for the international matches with the champions of Germany. At least two boys in each weight will start training and while the eight champions have first call on the right to step into the ring at Soldiers' field against a German, the team will be protected against injury or incapacity.

Talking it Over

BY ARCH WARD.

A HABIT sometimes is a terrible thing, but now and then it can be overcome.

It is even possible that the Athletics may deviate from established routine and finish second in the 1932 American league pennant race. At least that is the prediction of Harry Grabiner, vice president and secretary of the White Sox.

HARRY GRABINER.

Mr. Grabiner displays remarkable fortitude in publicizing his opinions. Baseball, like most other sports, is an uncertain game. A team that today looks like a group of sculptors tomorrow may be only a collection of bricklayers. You seldom run across a baseball leader whose forecasts go beyond "the race this year be earnestly waged."

The New York Yankees are the club Grabiner picks to sidetrack the Macks. He admits the wish may be father to the thought, for he believes a change in leadership would be wholesome for the league.

"The Athletics in recent years have been one of the luckiest clubs in baseball," Grabiner stated. "They have been remarkably free from injuries. Mack has had a great break in having his three star pitchers, Earnshaw, Grove, and Walberg, always ready for service. He hardly can expect to be blessed with the same good fortune year after year.

"Suppose either Grove or Earnshaw should develop a sore arm or for any other reason be incapacitated for a considerable time. What would happen?"

Possessing no stature as an expert, we parried:

"What would happen, Mr. Grabiner, if Earnshaw or Grove were incapacitated for a considerable time?"

"Why the club would suffer immeasurably," he replied. "It has shown no strong reserve pitching talent. Of course, with hitters like Cochrane and Simmons the A's will be the team the others will have to beat. But I think the Yankees can do it, though they did finish 13½ games behind last September."

The Yankees, along with his own White Sox, are the most improved club in the league, Grabiner estimated. They have a better infield, better pitching staff, better reserves, and their outfield, even with Ruth a year older, is as good as ever. The Sox leader looks for Joe McCarthy's new infielders, Crosetti and Saltzgaver, to brace the team's defense.

Washington and possibly Cleveland are the other teams Grabiner concedes may outdistance Chicago. Probably on the basis that the Sox couldn't slip farther back and still remain in the league he predicts great improvement in conditions on the south side.

"I never have been so sold on a manager as I am on Lew Fonseca," Harry remarked. "He has everything you look for in a leader—brains, personality and ability to handle men. He has the 100 per cent cooperation of President Lou Comiskey. Any deals Fonseca wants to make to strengthen the squad will have the support of Comiskey."

The Sox president is now at Battle Creek, Mich., taking reducing treatments. He will join the club at Indianapolis Saturday.

"We have a pitching staff that ranks second to none," Grabiner went on. "The club demonstrated in the city series last fall what it can do when it gets good pitching. Lyons, Thomas, Faber, Frasier, Hadley, Jones, and Caraway all are ready for regular turns.

"Two new infielders, Hayes and Selph, will add defensive strength and hitting power. Hayes will average .280 and he is one of the finest fielding second basemen we have had. His mark last season was below that figure, but he played in only 38 games. Selph ought to hit .300. He had a wonderful all around record with Houston."

What to do with big Smead Jolley is a problem undecided, according to Grabiner. As an outfielder he had trouble covering territory the equivalent of a silver dollar last season. Fearing that the depression might cut this down to a dime, Fonseca has attempted to convert him into a catcher, with varying success.

Jolley is too good a hitter to keep off the club, so he probably will be returned to the outfield where the newcomers, Anderson or Campbell, both fast afoot, can help him out. Fonseca himself probably will play one of the outfield positions much of the time. The club needs his hitting.

Grabiner announced that the demand for tickets to Tuesday's opening game is the heaviest in several years.

Bowen Routs Phillips, 23-5, for 3d Victory

Bowen High school, defending south section champion, is ready for the 1932 Chicago Public High School league season. Pounding two Wendell Phillips pitchers for 21 hits, Bowen scored its third practice victory, 23 to 5, yesterday at Bessemer park. The victors collected 11 runs in the first two innings, scoring six in the first and five in the second. Blanchard started for Phillips and was relieved by Payne. Bowen used four hurlers, Rose, Schwartz, Dudek, and Miller.

Roosevelt Wins, 9 to 4.

Winning in other pre-season contests yesterday were Roosevelt, Englewood, and Harrison. Roosevelt defeated Marshall, 9 to 4, at River park; Englewood beat Parker, 21 to 6, and Harrison triumphed over Lindblom, 6 to 5, at Hamilton park.

A four run rally in the last inning gave Harrison its victory over Lindblom. The score was tied, 2 to 2, until the fifth inning, when Lindblom counted three runs to take a 5 to 2 lead.

Englewood Gets 4 in First.

Englewood scored four runs in the first inning in its game with Parker. Hendrickson pitched for Parker, but was routed in the third when Englewood scored four more runs. He was replaced by Ayers. Englewood scored again in the fifth and collected nine runs in the sixth.

Hanley to Tell Grid Coaches of Rule Shifts

High school and college football coaches throughout the Chicago area have been invited to attend a two day school in theory and practice to be conducted by Coach Dick Hanley and his varsity staff at Northwestern university, April 15 and 16.

Most of the sessions will be devoted to an interpretation of the new rules which go into effect next fall. Coach Hanley will discuss each of the new rules, giving his version of how they will affect the game. Lectures on line play and scouting will be given respectively by Pat Hanley and Maury Kent, both members of Northwestern's varsity football staff.

The lectures will start Friday afternoon and continue through Saturday morning. A football game between two picked Northwestern squads will be held Saturday afternoon to give a practical demonstration of the new rule changes.

Northbrook was formerly the University Golf club, which recently consolidated with Rolling Green. Northbrook will open Saturday as a daily fee course. During his absence from Chicago Jenkins has been at the Epworth Heights club, Ludington, Mich.

One of the latest additions to Chicago's daily fee courses is found in the Vernon Country club, which opened last week. A private course for nine years, the club is located a mile and half west of the Waukegan road on Deerfield avenue. Charles A. Nash is the operator.

Familiar Faces at New Posts to Welcome Golfers

Golf association members in Chicagoland will find familiar faces in new rôles in their official families this season. With the exception of Joe Davis, who remains as secretary, the Chicago District Golf association will present an entirely new lineup in President John McKinlay Jr., Beverly; Vice President Harry E. Radix, Ridgemoor, and Treasurer A. W. Hale, Medinah.

In the Western Golf association, R. Arthur Wood of Exmoor is the new president, succeeding Leslie Gordon, who has moved to New York. Norman B. Freer of Hinsdale is first vice president and Hal C. Gifford, secretary in 1931, is second vice president. Henry Bartholomay is the new secretary, while B. C. Hardenbrook of Skokie and Henry A. Gardner of Indian Hill are retained as treasurer and general counsel, respectively.

All officers of the United States Golf association have been renominated for 1932, the ticket including Herbert H. Ramsay, president; Robert M. Cutting and Rodman E. Griscom, vice presidents; Prescott S. Bush, secretary, and Charles S. Sabin, treasurer.

The Chicago District Women's Golf association will have the following official family: Mrs. Helen C. Hepburn, Skokie, president; Kathleen Carey, Butterfield, vice president; Mrs. John A. Wheeler, Evanston, corresponding secretary; Mrs. D. S. Egbert, La Grange, treasurer; Mrs. J. W. Weaver, handicap chairman, and Edith Fyffe, Exmoor, chairman of team matches.

Col. C. G. Holden of Olympia Fields has been elected president of the Chicago District Club Managers' association. Frank G. Brunner of Flossmoor is vice president, with Frank H. Murray of Ravisloe remaining as secretary and treasurer. U. S. Skeens of South Shore and William Evans of Ridgemoor are the directors.

How I Got My Start in Baseball

BY CHARLEY ROOT.

[As told to Irving Vaughan.]

Dallas, Tex., April 6.—For all I know, the industrial world may have lost a pretty good pattern maker when I took to baseball. Anyway, that was what I was doing down in Middletown, O., in 1919. When not trying to make patterns I was pitching for the mill team, but realizing while I was doing this that I was gradually getting toward the spot where somebody would give me the lift I needed. Even though married and settled down at that time, I continued to nurse the idea that I was a pitcher and not a pattern maker.

CHARLEY ROOT.

Another combination pattern making-baseball job was offered from Hamilton, O., in 1920 and while there I pitched against both Carl Wellman of the Browns and Hod Eller of the Reds. Both had been imported because the opposing teams felt the need of some expert to beat our team. Both Wellman and Eller urged me to follow them back to their big league places of employment, but Wellman put up the best argument. I signed with the Browns.

In the spring of 1921 I received notice to proceed to Louisville where the team, coming through from St. Louis on its way to Bogalusa, La., would pick me up. I went to the hotel as directed and the mischievous bell boy who took me to my room informed me that if anybody knocked on my door during the night I shouldn't open it. A man had been shot and killed when he answered a knock on the door of the same room a few days before. I didn't open the door until the following morning.

I went to Bogalusa and thought I was doing fine, but the bad news came when I was told I had been released to Terre Haute. For a while I thought I'd go back to the pattern maker's bench, but I didn't. After getting to Terre Haute, there was another disappointment. I was a pitcher and when told to warm up I figured my chance had come. But when the manager wanted me, it was as a pinch hitter. The Browns turned me back to the same team in 1922 and in 1923 kept me, later shipping me to Los Angeles. The Cubs took me on in 1925 only to send me back after the training trip. But that was the last of the disappointments.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

PA AND MA AND THE DEPRESSION.

"There's nothing to do but give up," said Pa,
As he handed the evening paper to Ma.
"I've been cut again and the rent is due
And I'm sick of these beans and oxtail stew,
Give the wolf at the door my portion, Ma,
And turn off that radio, too, growled Pa.

"O, listen a minute," said Ma, "Be still,
They're telling of Blackie from Pineridge Hill.
He is strapped to a plank every day," said Ma,
"'Cause his back was hurt in the Argonne, Pa.
He wanted to die, he thought he was through,
There was nothing a cripple like him could do,
And then, one desolate day," said Ma,
"He heard a voice on the radio, Pa.
It told of invalids who must stay
Staring at four blank walls all day.
Then Blackie remembered the trees and the flowers
That helped to comfort his lonely hours,
And he wanted to share his Pineridge Hill
With all those others, alone and ill.
So whenever the pain would grip him tight,
He would reach for his pencil and write and write.
It seemed, somehow, he could best forget
In describing a cloud or a gay sunset,
And he prayed each night in his fitful rest
To do something useful before he went West. . ."

"I'll just help myself to that stew," sniffed Pa.
"I want you to do me a favor, Ma,
Get in touch with Blackie, I don't care how,
Tell him his prayer has been answered NOW.
He worked a miracle, tell him, Ma.
He made a MAN from a WORM," said Pa.

At Washington.

When Chicagoland's Golden Gloves team went to Washington after the New York bouts the boys visited many public buildings. One port of call was the senate, where Vice President Curtis left his post as presiding officer, after calling a ranking senator to the chair, and met the Chicagoans in his chambers or anteroom or office, or whatever it is that Vice Presidents have.

After a short visit and exchange of amenities, Bill Sturm, from our auditing department and purser, in a way, for a party of forty on the trip, was the last to say good-by. Bill rose to the occassion with "Well, good-by, Mr. Vice President; it was mighty nice of you to leave the chair to meet us. I hope you get your budget balanced all right. I'm having a terrible time with mine."

DAINTY HEPATICA, IN OWN FUR COAT, LAUGHS AT APRIL

Fragile Flower Protects Buds from Chill.

BY BOB BECKER.

It won't be long until one of the first wild flowers to bloom in Chicagoland will demonstrate an interesting method nature follows to permit these early blossoms to get the warmth of the spring sun.

The hepatica is one of the early spring flowers which tells part of this interesting nature story. On a hike through the woods a few days ago we examined several hepatica plants. They demonstrate the advisability of even flowers wearing "fur coats" if they are brave enough to stick their blossoms above ground in April. Brushing away the dead leaves covering the plants we found the flower buds already above ground, each stem covered with a silky hair-like growth which protects them from the chill winds, and sometimes snow during the fickle month of April.

Blood Root Grows Ulster.

The hepatica is just one of several spring flowers which must get its blossoms above ground and complete a large part of its life cycle before trees grow leaves and cut off sunlight. The hepatica plant leaves follow its blossoms. The hepatica plants which we examined still had last year's leaves attached to the roots, some of them quite green under the blanket of dead oak leaves.

The arbutus is another hardy spring flower. This plant is in such a hurry to send its blossoms above the ground that it starts on the job even before the snow melts in the north woods. As a trout fisherman we regret this because by May 1 the fragrant arbutus which drenches the timber country with its scent has just about disappeared along many of the streams which we fish.

Blossoms Grow First.

In Chicagoland there is one spring flower growing on the hillsides overlooking Lake Michigan and in the oak woods which is always associated with the delicate hepatica. This is the blood root with its fragile snow white flowers. What always interests us in connection with the blossoms which the blood root develops is the way the plant puts a long green ulster around each stem bearing the flower. The flower tops a stem five or six inches high. Curled around it as if to protect the thin stem from cold and winds is the leaf.

An indication of the situation in the automobile insurance business is seen in the annual statement of the Inter-Insurance exchange of the Chicago Motor club, according to E. R. Seely, president of W. C. Kirby & Co., certified public account, who completed the audit yesterday.

"In the face of what looked like depression in 1931," he said, "the exchange sold 78,083 contracts, an all time record, compared with 75,153 in 1930. The exchange, a reciprocal company, returned in cash to contract holders $816,473 during 1931, against $789,030 in 1930. The savings return was greater in 1931 than in any other year of its history.

BIG FOUR SHAPE PLAN TO CHASE DANUBIAN BLUES

Hope to Agree on Scheme by Friday.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, April 6.—Representatives of the big four powers—Great Britain, France, Italy, and Germany — met this afternoon in London and in three hours made enough progress to warrant the belief that the group will have agreed upon a plan for helping the ailing Danubian nations by tomorrow or Friday at the latest.

SIR JOHN SIMON.

Prime Minister MacDonald presided. With him were Sir John Simon, foreign secretary; Walter Runciman, president of the board of trade, and Neville Chamberlain, chancellor of the exchequer, Pierre-Etienne Flandin, finance minister, represented France, aided by a corps of experts. Dino Grandi, foreign minister, represented Italy, and Bernhard W. von Buelow, head of the reich foreign office, Germany.

Work Out Details Today.

Today's work was in the form of a general debate on principles. Tomorrow the statesmen will get down to details on proposals for loans and tariff preferences.

The powers today also agreed on the formation of an expert committee of four treasury representatives to study the report of the finance committee of the league of nations on the Danubian states—Austria, Hungary, Jugo-Slavia, Czecho-Slovakia, and Rumania—which is to be presented to the league council next Tuesday.

It was made clear, however, that this is not a committee of the present conference but is appointed to advise the governments on future movements. The British representative will be Sir Frederick Leith-Ross, deputy controller of the treasury.

Italo-German Opposition Seen.

While today's proceedings were entirely harmonious, it is understood that neither Germany nor Italy is prepared to accept the Franco-English plan for a preferential pact among the Danubian nations.

They have a plan of their own, the basis of which is that they will undertake to buy agriculaural produce from the Danubians by granting them customs preference and will ask nothing in return. They hope, however, that the Danubians will buy their manufactured goods.

Whichever plan is adopted by the big four will be presented to the Danubian nations with an invitation to take it or suggest something better, but it will be impressed upon them haste is necessary to secure the benefits of the rescue plans.

"DANUBIANS" SKEPTICAL

BY WILLIAM SHIRER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VIENNA, Austria, April 6.—Not very hopeful, but willing to grab anything helpful thrown their way, the Danubian states watched with interest the opening of the four power conference in London today.

Most of the states have been informed through their diplomatic channels that the big four powers are ready to offer three proposals: first, a scaling down by some $150,000,000 of the state debts owed by Austria, Hungary, Chechoslovakia, Jugo-Slavia and Rumania; second, granting of new loans totaling about $39,500,000 to be divided among the five states; third, forming of an international control committee to oversee finances of the five countries.

Czechs Balk.

Czechoslovakia, most prosperous of the Danubian states, announced today that it would never consent to outside control of its finances. The other nations indicated that they would accept almost anything in exchange for a new loan.

Austria, which cannot hold out much longer, decided today that it could not wait for the London conference. Chancellor Karl Buresch announced that he would go to Geneva himself next week to try to put through a loan from the league of nations of 100,000,000 schillings [about $14,100,000], the sum recently recommended by the league financial committee.

Both Hungary and Austria informed Prime Minister MacDonald yesterday, it is understood, that they would have nothing to do with the proposed Danube customs union unless Germany, and Italy, two of their best customers, agree to everything. Bulgaria has instructed its minister to London to try to climb on the Danubian bandwagon too, Sofia reports said.

CONTINUE HUNT FOR HIDEOUT OF KIDNAPER GANG

Peoria, Ill., April 6.—[Special.]—With authorities of three counties united in their search for the hideout of the kidnapers who abducted Dr. James W. Parker, well known physician and held him in custody for 18 days, no new developments were reported.

Four or five others are being sought as aids of James W. Betson and Joseph Pursifull, contractor and lawyer, respectively, who are being held under state warrants charging kidnaping for ransom.

Betson and Pursifull are believed to have been the "brains of the outfit. Despite repeated questioning by authorities neither Betson nor Pursifull would name the other.

It has been fairly well established that the hideout was located south and west of Pekin, a drive of about 45 minutes from that city. All descriptions given by Dr. Parker associated the place with a nearby river backwater or pond. The location is thus narrowed to a five mile strip along the east side of the river from Pekin to Bath, a distance of about 60 miles.

TAX CARRYING GROWING JOB FOR SANTA FE

Almost Equal to Common Earnings.

BY O. A. MATHER.

Striking illustration of how American railroads have been affected by mounting taxation, particularly in adverse times, is afforded in the annual report of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fé railroad. Federal, state, and local governments last year took almost as much from the railroad for taxes as it was able to earn for its common stockholders, who are the real owners of the one and a quarter billion dollar property.

Total taxes of the Santa Fé in 1931 were $15,038,205, according to data made public last night by President W. B. Storey in his report. While this was a smaller total than the system paid in 1930, this was almost entirely due to greatly reduced earnings and a consequent decline in federal income taxes. Thus, total taxes paid to the federal government were only $1,415,729, or $3,056,757 less than in 1930. On the other hand, state, local and miscellaneous taxes aggregated $13,622,476, which was only $185,588 less than in 1930.

Little More Than Taxes.

Now let us consider the railroad's earnings. Net income, after all charges, was $23,101,691, and preferred dividends took $6,208,640. There was a balance of $16,893,051 for the common stockholders. This was only about $1,755,000 more than the various governments took in taxes. The balance was equivalent to $6.96 a share on the common stock, while the taxes were equivalent to $6.19 a share. Naturally, taxes were much more onerous last year than in 1930, when net income was $37,348,800, equivalent to $12.86 a share on the common stock.

But even in that year, total taxes of $13,280,551 represented $7.51 a share. As the result of reduced earnings and heavy taxes, the Santa Fé failed to earn its usual common stock dividends. In order to make up for dividends and make surplus adjustments, the railroad was forced to dip into surplus to the extent of $4,991,739. However, the total surplus still is $316,320,008.

Adopts Rigid Economies.

Reduced earnings and high taxes combined to force the Santa Fé management to adopt rigid economies. President Storey says the program of additions and betterments was confined to such projects as were immediately required. New equipment was bought only for replacements and no new equipment has been ordered for this year. Expenses for maintenance last year were the smallest since 1916.

In contrast with the amount taken by various governments in taxes, President Storey calls attention to the fact that the federal government is going forward with its program for inland waterways, which compete with the railroads. He also speaks of unequal competition from motor carriers which operate on the public highways.

"All evidence continues to indicate as strongly as ever that there is no economic justification for them," Mr. Storey says in referring to waterways, "and that counting all costs their use is much more expensive than rail service." On the subject of motor carriers he also says: "There is indication that the people generally are discovering, altogether apart from consideration of the interests of the rail carriers, that motor carriers usually do not pay their proper share of the cost of construction and maintenance of public highways or reasonable compensation for their commercialized use."

LARGE COPPER SMELTER OMITS ONE DIVIDEND

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 6.—Predictions about action by the directors of the American Smelting and Refining company were fulfilled today. That board met and decided to pass the common dividend, due at this time.

Favorable action, however, was taken in connection with regular quarterly dividends of $1.75 a share on the preferred and $1.50 a share on the second preferred stocks, both payable June 1 to shareholders of record May 6.

Amercian Smelting had already reduced its common rate three times since establishment of a $1 quarterly rate following split-up of the stock on a three for one basis in February, 1929, previous to today's action, the company had ordered a payment of 12½ cents three months ago, which compared with 37½ cents six months ago and 50 cents nine months ago, when the rate was reduced from $1 quarterly.

J. C. Emison was elected vice president and treasurer of the company. He formerly held the office of treasurer.

Rio Tinto Company, Ltd., mining issue, announced omission of the final dividend on the ordinary stock due at this time. Today's action means that ordinary stockholders get no dividend for the year 1931, as the interim dividend was also omitted last October.

Directors of Cerro de Pasco Copper today decided, in view of the demoralized state of the copper market and the uncertainty as to the outlook to defer for the present consideration of any dividend. The company distributed 25 cents quarterly in each of the last three periods.

Owen D. Young Taking Part in Insull Parleys

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 6.—Owen D. Young, chairman of the board of the General Electric company, is taking an active part in negotiations looking toward the sale of Middle West Utilities company's Atlantic seaboard properties to eastern utility interests, it was reported here today.

Mr. Young's interest in Middle West's affairs rests in the fact that the Insull company has for years been a big customer of General Electric and one of the large users of its equipment. His position in the present negotiations is said to be that of an intermediary between the Insull interests, the eastern utility companies, and New York bankers, including J. P. Morgan & Co.

Some Possible Customers.

The problem of financing was said to be an obstacle to the eastern interests entering into deals with the Insull people. Mr. Young is understood to be trying to smooth the way. It is understood that he has suggested that J. P. Morgan & Co. would be willing to help the eastern concerns in financing the purchase of Middle West's properties.

While the lineup is uncertain, United Gas Improvement, a Morgan enterprise, is regarded as a possible purchaser of the Insull New England properties, while Public Service Company of New Jersey might buy the Insull units in that state. Stone & Webster, it is believed, might acquire the properties in Virginia. Such sales would necessitate large cash outlays by the eastern utility companies. With long term financing well nigh impossible in the present bond market, it would be necessary for the bankers to finance the projects.

If these deals are completed they would go a long way toward solving Middle West's immediate financing problems and tend to concentrate its operations in the central states. One of the chief causes for the company's present financial difficulties was due to its ambitious expansion in the east in the last two years. Purchases were made through short term financing which the company has not been able to fund.

PLAN AWAITED HERE

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

The Chicago financial community awaited developments yesterday in the negotiations being conducted for a reorganization of the Middle West Utilities company. Samuel Insull, chairman of the board of the company, left for New York during the day. While the purpose of his trip was not announced it is expected that he will confer with bankers there on refinancing plans for the big utility holding company.

As far as could be learned no definite plan has yet been presented to the bankers by Mr. Insull. Preliminary discussions were held Tuesday, but the negotiations remain in a formative stage. It is expected that the matter will come to a head in the next ten days or two weeks.

While the negotiations over Middle West affairs continued up in the air yesterday, securities of the various Insull companies receded again on the New York and Chicago exchanges in line with the general market trend.

Lively Trading in Shares.

Transactions in Middle West common reached 36,000 shares as the price fluctuated between 50 and 87½ cents a share. The preferred stock was turned over in light volume around 2%.

Announcement was made during the day of the failure to take any action on the preferred dividend by the directors of the Mississippi Valley Utilities Investment company, a Middle West subsidiary.

In New York Middle West debentures showed losses ranging from 1½ to 2¾ points, with the 1932 series closing the day at 15. The 1935 maturity sold off to 10½.

Revived interest was shown in Insull Utility Investments common, which broke from 50 to 12½ cents a share on sales aggregating 5,000 shares. The huge amount of paper values which has vanished in the last 30 months is apparent when it is recalled that the stock of this investment trust now selling at 12½ cents sold at $149.25 a share at the peak of the bull market in 1929.

The receivership bill pending in the Circuit court against Insull Utility will not come up for hearing for several days, it was reported yesterday. Attorneys who brought the action will file an amended bill in the next few days, it was stated. The company has given no indication as to what line of action it will take in answering the petition.

RIO DE JANEIRO, April 6.—(AP)—A government commission, undertaking a study of the financial condition of Brazilian states, today found deficits in eighteen of the country's twenty states.

The commission said it regarded the loans generally as "scandalous," with the interest and terms of payment onerous.

Newspapers here published figures indicating that the foreign debts in fifteen states amounted to $155,918,800, £39,646,161; francs, 231,237,205, and florins, 8,900,000—a total of more than $309,000,000. The annual interest on these debts was found to total more than $30,000,000.

KREUGER AND TOLL COLLAPSE ANEW ON WALL STREET

New York, April 6.—(AP)—Large blocks of securities of the International Match company were thrown on the New York market today following upon publication of the report of the Swedish committee investigating the tangled financial affairs of the late Ivar Kreuger. Three International match issues, comprising two 5 per cent bond issues and one preferred stock issue, of a par valuation totaling $185,000,000 broke to new low prices where their aggregate market value was only $10,755,000.

These same securities, based on high prices touched last February, had sold at a market valution of $95,000,000 only two months ago. At today's low prices their aggregate shrinkage from par amounted to approximately $175,000,000 and from the February high prices, to nearly $85,000,000.

The Kreuger & Toll company, American shares, listed on the New York Stock exchange, broke to a new low at 50 cents a share. Their high price for the year was $9.12 a share. But the principal storm broke in the securities of International Match company, which is one of the principal subsidiaries of the Kreuger & Toll company. This company was formed in 1923 to take over foreign interests of the Swedish Match company.

International Match convertible 5 per cent bonds which had sold as high as $645 per $1,000 bond earlier this year, broke to a new low at $90, then rallied to $130, where they were off $60 on the day. The company's 20 year 5 per cents, which had sold as high as $625 per bond this year, broke to a new low at $75 from which level the price rallied to $110, where it was off $80 on the day. The company's preferred stock, which is of $35 par value and had sold earlier this year at $24.50 a share, broke to a new low of $2 a share, where it closed the day, off 50 cents a share.

A. & P. TEA CO. SALES EXCEED BILLION IN '31

Net profits for the fiscal year ended Feb. 27 last of $29,792,974 were equal to $13.40 a common share. This compares with the record profits of $30,742,775 or $13.86 a share in 1930.

Sales of F. W. Woolworth company for March amounted to $21,255,378, as compared with $21,723,190 for the like 1931 month, a decrease of 2.1 per cent.

For the first three months of this year sales were down 3.8 per cent from the corresponding period a year ago, aggregating $58,039,551 and $60,348,770, respectively.

Hubert T. Parson, president, stated there has been a steady increase shown in trade since January. For the first three months of the current year, Mr. Parson said, ten districts have bettered their position, showing an improvement in sales.

Sales of the National Tea company for the four weeks to March 26 were $5,444,055 ,against $6,158,430 in March, 1931, a decrease of 11.6 per cent. For the twelve weeks to March 26 sales were $16,361,037, compared with sales of $18,805,055 in the same period of 1931, a decrease of 12.9 per cent.

W. T. Grant company reports March sales of $5,566,792, compared with sales of $5,333,766 in the same month last year, an increase of 4.3 per cent. For the first three months of 1932 sales amounted to $14,898,291, compared with sales of $13,790,968 in the same period of 1931, an increase of 8 per cent.

An increase of 6 per cent in March sales compared with the same month a year ago was reported by McCrory Stores, the figures being $3,584,230, against $3,381,447.

Sinclair Refining Co. Will Start Big Campaign Today

"Newspapers, national magazines, farm journals, trade papers, and radio will carry the Sinclair sales message to 30,000,000 families virtually every week during the remainder of the year," said Assistant District Manager J. F. McCarthy, under whose auspices the meeting was held.

SWEDEN LIKELY TO PROSECUTE AIDS OF KREUGER

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

STOCKHOLM, April 6.—It was taken for granted tonight that criminal prosecution will be begun soon against the managers, boards of directors and auditors of the late Ivar Kreuger's companies.

Kreuger himself is beyond reach of the law, but his own countrymen are condemning him as a great swindler. The accountants' report made last night, with its sensational charges is regarded as only the first installment of an unsavory story and there is nation-wide dread of what may come next.

It was learned tonight that the process of manipulating accounts beban as long ago as 1926. The question now being asked is how Kreuger was able to keep the balance sheet alterations secret, even from his own close associates for five years.

Plan London Committee.

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, April 6.—British Bankers and others interested in the Kreuger companies took swift action today as a result of the accountants' report published in Stockholm. A meeting was hurriedly convened by Lee, Higginson & Co., N. M. Rothschild & Sons and the Hambros bank and attended by representatives of the Stock exchange and insurance and trust companies.

It was decided to invite certain persons, whose names will be announced tomorrow, to be a provisional committee, keeping in touch with the situation in Sweden and with the investigating committee there. The committee will consider what steps should be taken to protect the interest of British stockholders.

Some Feverish Trading.

Feverish dealings in Kreuger & Toll and Swedish Match company shares occurred on the Stock exchange today. Kreuger & Toll, which nominally is worth £5½ and touched £56 in 1928 fell to 5s while Swedish Match, which also is nominally worth £5½ and rose above £26 at one time today sold at 13s 9d.

Meanwhile, some British fears were allayed by an announcement that neither the British Match corporation nor its subsidiaries have any shares in the two Swedish companies nor have they made any loans or financial guarantees to them. About 29 per cent of the corporation's £6,712,500 ordinary capital is understood to be held by the Swedish Match company.

National Carbon Co. Plans Special Sales Campaign

Within a very few days all dealers in the Chicago area will be given the details of the program presented to wholesalers.

New York, April 6.—Private advices received in Wall street today show that Henry Ford is taking his first real substantial step toward the big production schedule he announced shortly after the turn of the year. Orders have been placed with parts makers for enough materials to build 100,000 of the new model Fords.

The production program of the company is said to call for the stepping up of daily output to 1,000 cars a day next week. It is planned at the same time that, beginning the week after next, 2,000 cars a day will be the output and in the week of April 25 a goal of 3,500 cars a day has been set by the engineers.

From the week of April 25, on, the program calls for the production of a minimum of 3,500 cars a day and this is to be maintained through the month of May.

Taken collectively these production figures indicate that by the end of next month the Ford plants will have built somewhere in the neighborhood of 100,000 of the new units.

All of the accessory manufacturers who feel that they are equipped to manufacture the parts for the new Ford models which the Ford plants do not manufacture are hard after some share of the business.

Britain Faces Severe Task Over Budget

BY SCRUTATOR.

In about two weeks Neville Chamberlain, chancellor of the British exchequer, is to present his budget for the fiscal year that began the first of this month. The result will be interesting because this year's budget is going to be a lot harder to balance than last year's.

There are two ways to balance a budget. One is to raise taxes; the other is to reduce expenditures. The British have already boosted the estate tax to a point beyond the line of diminishing return. The emergency income tax takes five shillings out of every twenty of ordinary income and large incomes, if any, pay surtax up to 7½ shillings.

Last Thursday the books of the United Kingdom were closed for the fiscal year, showing a surplus of £364,000 ($1,771,000 at par and $1,383,200 at the current rate of exchange).

Seen as Encouraging.

This naturally was encouraging news to a nation that six months previously faced an estimated deficit of 350 million dollars. It was confirmation of the recent official assurances that the country was once more paying its way. Here, at least, was some recompense for a year of sacrifices—a year during which values had been written down more than 25 per cent through the abandonment of the gold standard and a year in which taxes had become even more of a levy on capital.

Unfortunately, the announced "surplus" was more apparent than real. The government had gone a long way toward reducing the deficit, but it hadn't gone far enough. The balancing of the budget was partly a bookkeeping feat.

For one thing, one-quarter of the income tax receipts for the year just begun were used to balance last year's books. This is just another variation of the tax anticipation warrant scheme of public financing that has contributed so much to tax woes in Cook county.

Use Five Quarters' Income.

The British budget was balanced with five quarters' income tax receipts instead of four. To get even the usual four quarters of income tax this year a similar raid will have to be made on next year's income tax. And with private incomes still further reduced it becomes apparent that the income tax, like the estate tax, has reached the line of diminishing return.

Even the appropriation of a quarter of this year's income tax receipts was not sufficient to balance last year's budget. Other "bookkeeping" which amounted virtually to a draft on capital was resorted to.

The dollar exchange account established during the war to meet dollar payments in the United States was tapped for £12,750,000.

The grand totals for the year are: Revenues from all sources, £770,963,000; expenditures, £770,599,000. Expenditures were £12,580,000 less than estimates contained in the budget when it was revised last September.

The additional saving, however, was more than offset by the fact that actual revenues were £13,737,000 less than had been anticipated. The government, for example, had counted on £33,000,000 from estate taxes, but received only £65,000,000 from that source. There was also an unexpected deficiency on the miscellaneous account.

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 6.—Discouraging news from various sources continued to weigh heavily on the stock market today. Difficulties of the Insull concerns beset the utilities; omission of the American and Smelting Refining dividend was a drawback to the mining shares; the railroads had the added burden of a carloadings report showing a drop of more than 23,000 cars for the week and a decline of 24 per cent from the corresponding period of last year, and the list as a whole was still under the spell of pessimism over the trend of affairs at Washington.

More than 200 separate issues, including some of the highest priced shares of the list, were swept down to new lows for the long bear market and hundreds more duplicated their old minimums in a swell of selling that would not be checked. Some of the day's casualties sold to the lowest price in ten years or more. Volume increased as the bear contingent grew more active in new directions, and the day's turnover came to around 2,100,000 shares.

Utility Shares Retreat.

Utility shares showed the way down in the earlier stages of operations. In addition to the Insull situation they were called upon to digest another extremely discouraging report on power output—showing a drop of 11.9 per cent as compared with the same week last year. Peoples Gas of Chicago was under pressure and gave up another 3⅝ points to touch a new low of 68.

American Telephone, one of the two active stocks remaining above the $100 a share mark, eased off another two points, but recovered one of them in the later trading. Consolidated Gas dropped 2¼, and Standard Gas almost

TRANSFERS FOR MARCH REGISTER GAIN OVER 1931

Increase in Number and Consideration.

Transfers for the month of March showed an encouraging increase over the same month last year, according to Clayton F. Smith, recorder of deeds and registrar of titles for Cook county, who yesterday made public his monthly report. There were 4,509 transfers filed for record as compared with 4,306 during the same month last year, a gain of 203. The total stated consideration for transfers filed during last month was $5,016,321. This compares with $2,991,497 in March of last year. This is an increase of $2,024,824.

The recorder's monthly figures show 2,178 less trust deeds and mortgages filed during March of this year than the same month last year. The decrease in stated consideration was $5,093,250. The total number filed during March, 1932, was 2,159, with a total stated consideration of $19,757,503. During the same month last year the total number of trust deeds and mortgages filed for record was 4,337, with a total stated consideration of $24,850,753.

The property at 324-26 South State street, improved with a four story building, with 25 foot frontage, has been bid in by the New England Mutual Life Insurance company at foreclosure sale for $337,540. It once was owned by Silver Brothers and was purchased by Samuel Saffer at an auction sale last year. The original loan made by the risk company was $294,000, but improvements brought this up to $352,000. This is said to be the insurance concern's first foreclosure suit in Chicago.

Sheridan Business Block.

Owners of first mortgage bonds secured by the Sheridan Business block, at the southeast corner of Sheridan road and Irving Park boulevard, have been asked by the bondholders' protective committee to turn in their securities in order to assist that body in the reorganization of the property.

This issue, underwritten by the American Bond and Mortgage company in April, 1927, was originally in the amount of $180,000, but has been reduced to $166,500. The property is 105x150 feet, and is improved with a three story store and apartment building.

Since Nov. 1, 1931, when the owner defaulted in the payment of interest, the income of the property has been collected by the trustee under the bond issue in the interests of the bondholders, in accordance with a surrender of possession secured from the owner by the committee. Earnings are insufficient to pay taxes and no funds are available for interest or amortization requirements.

Taxes Unpaid.

Principal and interest payments aggregating $10,980 are past due and unpaid. Taxes, representing part of the 1928 and all of the 1929 assessment and unpaid pending objection, total approximately $7,892.

Bonds of this issue may be deposited with the Chicago Title and Trust company, the City Bank Farmers Trust company, New York City, and the Atlantic National bank of Boston.

Craig B. Hazelwood is chairman of the committee, which includes Frank W. Blair, Frederick G. Curry, H. K. Hallett, Dayton Keith, Joseph E. Otis, Walter J. Sugden, and Charles W. Weston. George L. Wire is secretary.

Estimated receipts at Chicago today: Cattle, 5,000; hogs, 18,000; sheep, 14,000.

Hogs advanced 5@10c on yesterday's rather spiritless trade. The finish of the session was within 15@20c of last week's highest marks. Better demand for fresh pork at advancing prices is one of the few bright spots in the market. Packers report a good clearance of fresh cuts, and with some of the smaller houses cutting only two or three times a week, the available supply has been small.

Recent price gains in fresh meat threw a fairly large number of small local orders into the hog market yesterday making small packers and city butchers the principal buyers. The mild upturn was scored in face of small eastern orders. Almost 30 per cent of yesterday's available supply was held off the market when it became evident that larger houses did not intend to follow the lead made by smaller packers, and about 8,000 hogs were still in the pens at the finish. Most 200@225 lb butchers sold at $4.10@4.30, with the peak for the day at $4.40, paid for 185 lb light weights.

Heavier hogs ranging upwards to 300 lbs sold largely at $3.80@4.00, while 350@400 lb butchers brought $3.50@3.70. The heaviest hogs on the market, a carload of 460 lb butchers, sold at $3.50. Hog receipts have been running exceptionally light for some time. Yesterday's total at the eleven leading markets at 57,000 were smallest for midweek since middle of last August.

No changes were registered in the hog futures market yesterday. Offers in July and September contracts were steady at $5.75. Bids for heavy grades in the latter month were posted at $5.00. May bids were at $4.50 and offers at $5.00@5.25.

Good Steers Sell Well.

There was a two way trend in the cattle market yesterday, with everything in favor of the better grades, despite the fact that offerings carried the best Wednesday quality in recent weeks. Interest converged in choice steers immediately after the opening.

Well finished offerings frequently sold at better prices than similar kinds brought on the preceding session, but the rank and file of cattle, those selling at $7.50 and below, revealed a weak to 25c lower basis in midsession and later. The generally better quality kept the average price from declining. Yearlings came to the front when Swift selected 23 fancy 1,072 lb averages at $8.35, the extreme top of the list. Prime 1,387 lb beeves made $8.25, while few others passed $7.75. Butcher stock got good action and heifers in spots were slightly higher, although none in the receipts were good enough to sell above $6.75. Calves ruled steady to strong on a light run. Stockers and feeders were slow and steady.

Lambs Forced Higher.

Light receipts forced lamb values higher yesterday, but the trade was draggy all day and most of the good kinds sold on very late afternoon rounds at $7.50@7.75 to larger packers, or 15@25c above the preceding session. Arrivals were smallest for Wednesday since last August, only 7,000 coming on the Chicago market. Aged sheep and yearlings were unchanged. Feeder lambs sold steady again.

Receipts at Chicago for today are estimated at 5,000 cattle, 18,000 hogs and 14,000 sheep, against 4,822 cattle, 16,411 hogs and 8,688 sheep the previous Thursday, and 4,626 cattle, 16,538 hogs and 18,686 sheep a year ago.

SHORT INTEREST GROWS DESPITE NEW YORK RULES

New York, April 6.—(AP)—The New York Stock exchange reported today that the total short interest in the market as of April 1 amounted to 3,279,398 shares, an increase of 176,522 over March 1. While the increase was small, it occasioned some surprise in Wall street, as it had been expected that the new stock exchange regulations on loaning stock to shorts, which took effect April 1, had presumably caused some withdrawal of the shorts.

The total as of April 1 was 280,833 shares less than the high level of the short interest for March, reached on the 23d, but this shrinkage failed to reduce the total under that of March 1. The stock exchange announced, however, that the April 1 total included a short interest of 181,420 shares of Kreuger & Toll company American certificates, against 38,307 shares of that security on March 1. Substantially the entire increase in this position was a hedge against long stock which for legal reasons was not available for sale.

Between March 1 and the middle of the month there was little change, the total rising from 3,107,484 to 3,560,231 shares. Thereafter there was a steady shrinkage, until the total was reduced to 3,279,398, as of April 1.

There was a drop of about 50,000 shares in the short interest on March 25. The drop from March 31 to April 1 was only about 20,000 shares, despite the high premiums commanded by stocks for loans to shorts at that time, coincident with the new stock exchange regulation which required brokers to get specific permission from customers before lending their marginally held stocks. Premiums have since declined considerably, as the market has accustomed itself to the new ruling.

The short interest at the end of February amounted to 3,081,194 shares, against 3,536,207 shares on Jan. 20. On Nov. 30 it was 3,745,642 shares.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 6.—The market value of all shares listed on the New York Stock exchange declined $3,084,162,977 during March to $24,501,326,280 as of April 1, which was the lowest point since the exchange began to compile these figures on Jan. 1, 1925. On March 1 the market value was $27,585,989,257.

The exchange had 1,269 issues on April 1, aggregating 1,314,158,762 shares, against 1,276 issues, aggregating 1,320,153,047 shares on March 1.

The average price of listed shares on April 1 was $18.64, a new low record. This compares with an average of $20.90 on March 1, and of $19.99 on Feb. 1.

Owing to the increase in member borrowings during March and the decline in the market value of shares, the ratio of security loans to market values advanced last month from 1.90 per cent, the lowest mark recorded, to 2.18 per cent.

KANSAS DUST STORMS BOOST PRICE OF WHEAT

Offset Decline in the Stock Market.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Dust storms swept across western Kansas into the central part of that state yesterday and resulted in apprehension of severe damage to the winter wheat crop in an area that has heretofore claimed the outlook was generally favorable.

The pessimistic reports from the west and southwest with the prospective delay in spring wheat seeding more than offset the continued weakness in stocks and also in Liverpool and resulted in a rally of around 2c after a small break early.

Toward the last reports of a few scattered showers in the dry sections of Kansas led to a selling movement which brought about a reaction of around 1c from the high with the finish unchanged to ¼c higher. May closed at 56@56¼c; old July, 58⅝@56¾c, and old September, 60⅞@61c.

Expect Bullish Reports.

The official weather forecast indicated no precipitation of consequence over the winter wheat belt, but as is usual when a crop scare develops the market is very sensitive to weather news. According to trade comment, bullish private reports are likely to be received until such time as the drought in the southwest is broken. Irreparable damage is regarded as having occurred in some sections, largely in western Kansas and Nebraska, and eastern Colorado.

Estimates made by Minneapolis line elevator houses indicated that spring wheat seeding was from one to two weeks late due to the wet soil and also the failure of the government seed loan act to become operative. More attention was paid by the trade to the prospects that the spring grain would get a late start than of late, and Minneapolis early showed pronounced strength, and maintained part of the upturn at the close, finishing ⅞@⅝c higher.

Foreigners After Wheat.

While Liverpool closed ⅝@⅝c per bu lower with May at 57¾c, there was a fairly active export demand with sales of 500,000 bu or more in all positions, largely hard winters with Greece taking a cargo at the gulf. Bids in the latter position were said to have been on the highest basis relative to the futures so far this season, and there were intimations of further business in sight. Rumors were heard at the seaboard that both France and Germany had been good buyers during the day, but lacked confirmation. Winnipeg was unchanged to ¼c higher for the day with May closing at 62¾c in Canadian funds.

Corn futures continued to fluctuate largely in sympathy with wheat, breaking around ½c early, only to rally later and close ¼c lower to ⅛c higher. May finished at 35½c; July at 38⅞@39c, and September, 40¾@40¾c. The country sold 45,000 bu to arrive as the result of the rally while shipping sales of 33,000 were the best in some time. Trade was largely of local character.

Oats Sold for Export.

A good export business was claimed to have been done in Canadian oats via Vancouver, but the quantities were not given. Seeding is under way as far as South Dakota with indications of an increased acreage in the latter state. Futures finished ⅛@¼c lower with May at 24c; July at 24⅜@24½c, and September at 25⅛@25¼c.

Rye showed independent weakness, closing ⅝@1⅛c lower with May at 46c; July, 47⅛c, and September, 48c. There were no reports of export demand in evidence, and some stop loss orders were uncovered on the way down.
